NEW BERN, N. C., THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 28, 1901.

NINETEENTH YEAR

HACKBURN SELLS R. & G. CORSETS.

Every woman knows what the R. & G. corset is. It is the corset of comfort with the essence of style. It is the only corset that will not, cannot, and does not stretch. If you buy an R. & G. Corset that does stretch or proves unsatisfactory in any way, bring it back to us and we will give you a new one.

We have in stock the Famous No. 397, moderately straight front, which is popular with most women who do not demand an extreme straight front. Those who do will find it in the new, straight front shown in our illustration. Our corset stock is large and well selected. Call and see it.

We sell No. 397 for $1.00

CALL TIME!

Today the Court of Impeachment Will Cast Its Vote.

Speeches Yesterday By Osborne and Watson. Public Feeling Against the Proceedings Summary of the Speeches.

Special to Journal.

RALEIGH, March 27.—Contrary to the general impression that it would be, the argument in the impeachment trial, was not concluded today.

Frank I. Osborne, of the counsel for the defense, spoke until nearly four o'clock this afternoon. The Hon. C. B. Watson began his argument for the prosecution and had not concluded his speech when the Court adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Osborne's speech is generally regarded as being calm, conservative and logical. On the other hand Watson's was in jury address style and undignified in tone. Several times his criticisms on Osborne brought the latter to his feet in order to set Watson straight upon several of his remarks.

It is safe to say that the Senators were not favorably impressed by Watson.

The closing speech will be made in the morning. It is thought that it will then take several hours to determine the vote as five counts must be voted upon, that being the number of articles presented by the board of managers.

Osborne in his address insisted that this was a political prosecution and he said that the reading alone of the articles of impeachment would show that. He said that if the judges could be impeached for an error of judgment, then Judge Robinson could be impeached for taking Manager Allen's advice in the Governor against Worth. He insisted that Shell Fish Commissioner White's salary was not a claim against the State and cited many cases to prove that it was not.

In answer to the charge that the judges were partisan, he said he was attorney general of the state in 1895 and knew better than any one else how grandly and bravely Judge Furches sat on the bench and saved the state from the disgrace of the political control of the asylums and other non-partisan offices. He said that in ingratitude to General Ransom and men like him had caused the Democratic party to be buried under the twenty thousand adverse majority. He appealed to the Senators not by cruel treatment and ingratitude to these men, to invite a like rebuke from the great body of people who believed in fair play. He said that he had been a member of the Legislature of 1899 and drew some of the acts that the Supreme Court had construed away, and that he did not claim infallibility himself and did not claim the infallibility of the judgment or purpose of that body.

Mr. C. B. Watson began to speak for the prosecution at 8:40 o'clock. He alluded to Osborne as having turned State's evidence against the Democratic Legislature of 1899 and said that out of all the lawyers on the side of the defense, the Republican lawyer Judge Bynum was the only one who had not held up to scorn the Democratic Legislature of 1899 and 1901. He said that the claim that the people were against impeachment was an old trick and read similar arguments from the Holden impeachment trial of 1871. He also read from the impeachment trial of Judge Bernard to show that a judge could be impeached for partiality to friends while giving decisions. He said that a mistake of an executive or legislative officer could be condemned and overlooked but that a willful error of the Supreme Court lived as a precedent forever. That contracts made under this decision could never be set aside and that it was known of all men that the judges were mad all through over the Republican defeat in 1898.

From conversations with all kinds of persons along the road from New Bern to Raleigh, today, the impeachment trial has been a fruitful topic.

The approach to the end of the trial causes various remarks, some more forcible than elegant, but I found the sentiment everywhere against conviction of the judges.

It is surprising how strong the impression prevails, that the basis for the impeachment proceedings was politics. With this view, the voter who is simply a voter, is disgusted with the whole proceeding.

As one man said, "They only want to get the Judges out, so they can get the places themselves."

A gentleman in Goldsboro, said, "I have always been a Democrat, and my father before me, but I vote no more tickets, just because they are said to be Democratic. I am going to vote for men, and I would not vote for Bill Allen for town constable, although he is a close personal friend."

Even the politicians, who feel that to think beyond party notions is rank evil, are not feeling easy. There is too much distrust in the air, and the future political horizon looks dark and threatening.

The impeachment matter has got beyond the denial that is not political prosecution. That politics is the sole impetus in the whole proceedings is recognized generally.

The verdict cannot change the public feeling against the prosecutors of the Judges. They are marked by the voters. C. L. STEVENS.

THE SWINDLERS.

Gold Brick Men Identified. The Raleigh Safe Robbers.

Special to Journal.

RALEIGH, March 27.—D. H. Wheeler, a South Carolina farmer, has identified Hawley and Howard, the gold brick swindlers in Greensboro jail, as the men who called him "Dear Uncle Henry" and robbed him of $7,000 in a gold mine scheme six years ago. They seem to be old at the business.

A locksmith who examined the safe of the Southern Express Company here, says the dynamiting was done by practised safe robbers, and thinks a regularly organized gang is working the State.

The Textile School.

Special to Journal.

RALEIGH, March 27.—Mr. D. A. Tompkins of Charlotte is here, looking after the plans for the new textile school building at the A. & M. College. The Legislature appropriated $15,000 for this purpose, and the manufacturers of the State had before made voluntary contributions. It will probably be established on a good basis this year.

Hanna Does Not Aspire.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The closing of National Republican headquarters in this city is taken by politicians to mean that there is nothing in the rumors that Senator Hanna, chairman of the National Committee, is ambitious for the nomination for the Presidency in 1904. The offices were opened immediately after the November election, with Hanna in charge, and a report went forth that he would keep his campaign flag out until 1904.

During the first four years of McKinley's term the Republican National Committee maintained headquarters here. The Republican organization in the various States was kept alive, a prefect scheme was elaborately worked out, and the office was in constant touch with all portions of the country.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

No Chance For Rival Dealers to Present Their Claims.

Presbyterian Synod in Session. Mormons Make Converts. School Libraries. West Point Appointees all Safe.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 27.—The numerous publishers' agents who are here were surprised and not particularly gratified when they were informed that all sessions of the Text Book Commission, which is to adopt the books to be used in the North Carolina schools, are to be executive. This will give the agents no opportunity for argument, and their efforts at securing special consideration for their books will be in vain. A member of the board tells me it will be in session about three weeks, according to present indications. There are thousands of volumes of specimen copies of school books, fourteen copies of each book being required. The members of the commission will study school books more closely for the next few weeks than they have before since they were in third reader.

The district conference of the Methodist church meets at Clayton tonight. Quite a number of ministers will attend.

The North Carolina Synod of the Presbyterian church is in session here. Dr. Morton, the moderator, preached the sermon last night. The session will be for only one day, as it is to complete the record of the regular convention.

Twenty of the ice manufacturers of various towns met at Goldsboro last night, and formed the North Carolina Ice Association. Representatives were present from Elenon to Greensboro. The object of the association is to curtail cost of manufacture, and regulate the price. Some persist in calling the association the Ice Trust.

The Methodist churches at Clemmons-ville and Union Ridge, Forsyth county, were blown down in the severe storm there.

Mormons are making many converts at Mount Olive, Wayne county. One day this week nine persons left town for Utah. Most of the converts are, of course, among the poor and ignorant.

Quantities of lettuce are being shipped north from Wilmington.

Mr. W. H. Bagley, brother of the late Ensign Worth Bagley, has been quite ill with appendicitis. He arrived here last night with his mother, Mrs. W. H. Bagley, of Washington.

A great deal of interest is taken in the school libraries which were authorized under an act of the Legislature. The State gives $10 to such an object where the people raise $30. Some eighteen school districts have raised the money for libraries in the past two weeks. It is expected that at least two hundred small libraries will be established by this act.

The Wells-Whitehead Co., the independent cigarette factory at Wilson, deny that they have sold out to the American Tobacco Co.

The capacity of the Ashley Bailey silk mill at Fayetteville, is to be increased. It is owned by New Jersey parties.

It is understood that all the North Carolina appointees to West Point stood the examination successfully. One is a son of Frank I. Osborne, another of Dr. George T. Winston.

Old Couple Elope.

Middleton, N. Y., March 26.—John Millen, aged 79, widower, and Nancy Downey, aged 77, widow, both of Shawangunk, Ulster county, eloped last Friday to escape from opposition of their children. Family councils resulted in many obstacles in the way of the wedding. During the absence of his family, Mr. Millen went to Mrs. Downey's house, took her into his wagon, and drove 14 miles to the house of Squire Bevier, who married them.

Garden Seeds.

Fresh Garden and Flower Seeds at Davis Prescription Pharmacy.

Anxiety About Funston.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—The result of General Funston's daring expedition into Isabella province is awaited with great anxiety by War Department officials. They regard his plan of capturing Aguinaldo as extremely hazardous. They fear that he has counted too strongly upon the loyalty of the company of native scouts which forms nine-tenths of the force in the expedition.

In the expedition which started two weeks ago, General Funston and the handful of Americans accompanying him are really at the mercy of these native scouts. However, the possibility of their turning the tables on the General must have been very carefully considered before General MacArthur gave his consent to the plan.
