"Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. I quickly secured a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure, giving her three doses. The croup was mastered and our little darling speedily recovered." So writes A. L. Spafford Chester, Mich. F S Duffy & Co.

Irish Lacemaking.

After the famine of 1847 iscemaking was revived in Ireland. Limerick, the most successful Irish ince, is not realon net and mustin.

The Irish point, so called, is the ancient cut work, being made in quite the same way. Net was first made by machinery in 1768. The machine was an adaptation of the stocking loom to lacemaking and was cumbrous and not very effective. In 1800 John Heathcote, a farmer's son, evolved from consciousnes and she is fast regaining her normal and experience the first machine to make true bobbinet with perfect six sided holes. It brought a great hue and cry about his ears from laceworkers, who fancied they saw themselves thus reduced to beggary.

The Luddites broke into the factory where the machines were first set up and made scrap iron and kindling wood of them. The only result was to drive the new manufacture to other and safer quarters. For long the secret of the machine's construction was most jealously guarded by English manufac turers. Not satisfied with letters pat ent they kept up a coast patrol to make ure that nobody ings to France.

At last, though, they were outwitted plan of it in his mind managed to get safe over sea and build a machine in

The widow declined to take any payment on the ground of having inconvenienced him so much.

Chuckling to himself, the farmer lifted down his market basket from a hook, and, finding it rather light, he tore off the covering and shouted:
