HEALTHY OLD AGE.

It is the devout wish of nearly all people to live to a ripe old age. None of us want to die young. This universal desire can be realized if care be taken of the health in early and middle life. A little precaution then will add many years to our existence. Death can be kept away a long time. Happy, healthy old age will be the lot of the woman who promptly corrects the ailments which afflict her sex. In youth, Wine of Cardui will take the female child safely over the dividing line between girlhood and womanhood. As a wife she needs it to help her through the triats of prefnancy and childbirth with as little discomfort as possible. At the Change of Life it will help her over the dangerous place that appears in her pathway between 40 and 50. Then will come many years of truly blissful existence. She will grow old slowly and gracefully. To the last she will preserve that charm and beauty which are always characteristic of perfectly healthy grandmothers. It is for women alone to decide whether they will be healthy or sick. The remedy for their sickness to close at hand.

THE BLEEDING CURE.

A RELIC OF THE MET WAL METHODS

OF A CENTURY AGO.

One hundred years ago the sovereign halin for every ill, from fainting to fe-ver, was bleeding. The wonder is that a buman race was left to admit the folly of the practice. It was the correct method of the day, recommended and employed by the best physicians of the time. The surgeon who attended George Washington in his last illness first set about bleeding his august patient. The story is that he took several cups of blood from the vigorous arm of Washington and then dingressed the ense. Washington died, Some say that if he had not been bled he probably would have lived. The cry comes, But that was a cen tury ago! In sharp contrast stands the wonderful advances made by modern surgery. Thankfully it may be said that such is the truth. But sometimes customs die hard, and today the doc trine of "cupping" has devotees as faithful as those who gave up their life sustaining fluid in Washington's time. This is a startling statement. The writer would have been skeptical if he had not learned its truth himself. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries this grewsome form of treatment was the work of the barber. That guild has maintained its prerogative into the twentieth century. In a certain little side street in New York, crushed between two towering brick buildings, stands a timid story and a half frame The suggestive striped pole which emblazons the art of the dweller within juts over the walk. In the window hangs a sign bearing the word "Cupping." If today were set back to 1700, the pole alone would tell the stoand so the sign. The barber is a German. He was much surprised at the question asked. Everybody knew that cupping was a ecessity, especially in the spring, he said. Sometimes, he added, he was so busy that little time remained for his shaving and hair cutting of customers.

Times, they say, have changed.

"Ach, yes," said the barber, "It keeps me a busy man. How strange you say that you thought it no longer was practiced. People come here morning. soon and night every day, but mostly do they come here in the spring and fall. It is then that the blood needs drawing off. If you have a pain in your head, you come to me. I take my little cup, burn the air in it out, push down my little knives just behind your ear on the neck, and when the cup is full I take it away. If your beadache is not better yet. I take another cup, so be it that the bleeding stop not, upon the other side. Maybe your back pains; I cut you a little on the side. Your arm pains; I draw the blood from your wrist." The barber bared his arm. The skin was crossed with tiny, pale nicks, like those one sees on the wrist of a morphine victim.

"Twelve is the number of cups 1 draw at one sitting," the barber said, "It is a bad pain that will not be gone then. If you come again the next day with the pain, I draw off more until the ache has disappeared completely."

The cups look like sherry ginsses with the stems removed. The knife, or lancet, is arranged like a name stamp. Pressure on a spring plunger drives the little blades, which are arranged in pairs or triplets, luto the skin. It is here that the skill of the operator comes into play. When the incisions are made in the neck too vioent, a tap on the plunger might mean the severing or wounding of an artery. Pressure too light would not let the blood flow fast enough. The barber must have a trained touch.

Upon the condition of the cup much depends. The air is exhausted by means of a tiny alcohol flame. This makes a vacuum. The cup is pressed on lightly, but firmly. The blood rushes under the skin beneath its rim; then like a flash, the little knives are pushed like a flash, the little knives are pushed down, and the bleeding begins. The operator never takes more than 12 caps at one sitting. That would mean perhaps a baif plut of bloed.

This agatem of bleeding for human allments harks back to the carliest times. All through the middle ages it was the besting balm for the sufferings of mankind. The success firmly believed that the loss of blood in this This is the season for house cleaning, the time to prepare for the "sire Death" of bugs, ands, roaches, and in-sects. How? Listen!
