Navy Needs Sailors.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1-Two thousand inlisted men are wanted by the navy to bring the strength up to the full limit authorized by law. The navy requires these sailors this winter in order to place the fleet of torpedo boat destroyers in commission now practically completed and ready for service. There will be nearly30 of these boats, and the majority of them are now within a few per cent, of readinees for service, The navy also requires a large number of eamen for ships already in commission to fill up the complements and give each vessel the number her rating calls for.
