HINTS FOR FARMERS

Selection of Cattle. The selection of cattle best suited for their intended use is of great importance to feeders and dairymen, and it is even more important to breeders of either beef or dairy cattle. For the purpose of presenting in a simple and graphic way some information concerning the differences between good and inferior animals and the extent to which certain desirable qualities affect their value for beef and dairy utility the United States department of agriculture has had prepared and will soon issue farmers' bulletin No. 143, entitled "Conformation of Beef and Dairy Cattle." It was prepared by Andrew M. Stone, professor of agriculture and vice director of the national agricultural experiment station. The author has endeavored to define as nearly as possible the ideals that should be kept in view in pursuing the business and to point out as far as possible the relation of these standards to the economic side of animal industries. By diagrams, descriptions and suitable illustrations he has given the information necessary to enable the stock feeder, the breeder, the farmer or the dairyman to become a competent judge of cattle by sight and touch.

Straw and Corn Fodder. It is not many years ago that farmers in the western states were burning their straw stacks to get them out of the way. There was apparently no market for it excepting at points where the cost of transportation was likely to exceed the price for which they could sell it. Now at nearly every market in the states the price of good straw is as high as that of No. 1 hay, and in some places it is higher. There were some who would not burn it, but put it in the yards for the farm animals to pick what they wished to of it and to trample the rest into manure. After a few years it was found that the farms of these men increased in fertility and productiveness, and the practice of burning straw was nearly discontinued even before the common use of the baling press made it profitable to ship it to eastern markets. A change almost as great has taken place in the opinion of the value of corn fodder. It is but a very few years since the corn growers of the western states cut no corn fodder, but after picking off ears let the cattle and hogs in to pick and break down the fodder or what they would of it, and then it was a task in the spring to break down the rest so that it could be plowed under. Now it is nearly all being put through the shredder and made so fine that any stock eats it, and it is thought as valuable as the average western hay.—American Cultivator.

Agriculture in Russia. M. de Witte, minister of finance, has presented to the czar his report on the agricultural and commercial crisis in Russia. He says that the metal industries are on the verge of ruin, and the textile industries are depressed and many bankrupt. The productivity of the land has decreased 27 per cent in twenty years. The average acre of land, because of bad cultivation, produced but one-fifth the amount produced by an acre in America. The number of horses has decreased 45 per cent in thirty years, and the introduction of machinery will not explain this. Of the agricultural population 42 per cent are hopelessly in arrears with their taxes, and in Finland, Poland and the Caucasus, inhabited by non-Russian nationalities, are the only parts of the empire showing general prosperity.

The Latest Swindle. Still another signature swindle is reported from Indiana. Sharpers from Chicago went through country districts representing themselves as hunters. They would approach some farmer, tell him that they wished to hunt on his land and cheerfully pay $5 for a permit to do so. The farmer would sign a receipt for the money, and this turned up later as a promissory note for $500. It is said that the swindlers secured $5,000 in one county by this process. It is noticeable that most of the swindling schemes now worked to the detriment of farmers begin with the payment of a small sum, which dispels the suspicions of the victim.—Rural New Yorker.

Convenient Crib. A bushel contains 2,548 cubic inches and can be made by constructing a box or crate whose inside dimensions are 14 by 14 by 13 inches. Such crates contain a bushel when level full. For the end pieces select one inch pine boards, thirteen inches wide and saw them into fourteen inch lengths. Cut hand holes parallel with the grain of the wood near one edge. This may be done with an auger, the roughness being cut down with a chisel. Next saw good, strong four foot lath into sixteen inch lengths. Nail six of these to the end pieces to form the bottom and five to form each of the sides. These crates are inexpensive, durable and easily made.

For Postponement With Notice. Kansas live stock breeders, says the Chicago Drovers' Journal, are now engaged in a campaign to secure reciprocity between the United States and Mexico in order that the market for the staple commodities of our farms may be extended. The Kansas farmer is not at all selfish. In taking his stand to improve trade with our sister republic he is not working for Kansas alone, but for millions in other states.

A Convincing Answer. "I hobbled into Mr. Bickson's drug store one evening," says Wesley Nelson, of Hamilton, Ga., and he asked me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for the pain in my back which I had suffered for a long time. I told him I had no faith in any medicine as he had all failed. He said: "Well if Chamberlain's Pain Balm does not help you, you need not pay for it." I took a bottle home and used it according to the directions and in one week I was cured, and have not since had any more of the same trouble. Sold by J. B. DeWitt Co., Chicago, Ill.

THE WRITERS.

Mrs. Arthur Stannard (John Strange Winter) has been made president of the Society of Women Journalists in London. Sarah Grand's visit to America is said to be largely with the idea of studying the American girl as a subject for a novel. Wallace Budge, the well known authority of the British museum on Egyptology, is about to begin the publication of a complete history of prehistoric Egypt down to the time of Cleopatra. Mrs. Ruth M. Crocker, the New England poet and miscellaneous writer, has just celebrated her eightieth birthday in Boston. Her mother was a lineal descendant of John and Priscilla Alden of Mayflower fame.

Why He Wept. The extensive authority of parents under the Chinese laws is well known. A Chinaman of forty years, whose aged mother flogged him every day, shed tears in the company of one of his friends. "Why do you weep?" he was asked. "Alas, things are not as they used to be!" answered the devoted son. "The poor woman's arms grow feebler every day!"—Sporting Times.

Didn't Work. First Suburbanite—I hear that neighbor of yours adopted that hired girl of his so as to get her to stay with the family. Second Suburbanite—Yes, and now his adopted daughter wants to stay in the parlor and play the piano all day and let her mother do the housework.—Judge.

Anticipation. "Doesn't it make you the least bit envious to see what elegant furniture Mrs. Eby is putting into her house next door?" "Not a bit. My husband says it will be sold by the sheriff within six months—and I'll be there to buy."—Chicago Tribune.

His Means of Support. Magistrate—What is your vocation—I mean what do you do for a living? "Ah, yes, yes, I understand you now, sir. What I do for a livin' is, my wife takes in washin'."—Baltimore Jewish Comment.

WHEN BABY IS COMING USE Mother's Friend.

Woman's greatest dream of beauty and glory is when nature has chosen her to become a mother. Every faculty is keenly alert and her nature the finest as she foresees the joy, the ambition, the success and the life-long satisfaction coming, coming nearer, day by day, in the clear and innocent being so soon to see light, and the very uncertainty whether she shall see a sweet girl face or a brave boy face battle her on the pillow, adds zest to her expectancy. Then, if ever, she should take care of her physical, mental and moral health. MOTHER'S FRIEND applied externally throughout pregnancy will relieve the pain of parturition, and no mother or child can fail to be healthy, hearty, strong, clear complexioned, pure blooded, calm nerved and cheerful in disposition, who are mutually influenced for months by the continued use of Mother's Friend.
