JULIUS M. ARNOLD,

RALEIGH.

Three Million Dollar Company Granted Charter.

University Medical College Class. Weather More Seasonable. Another Man Hospitalized by Governor. Baccalaureate Sermon at Shaw University.

RALEIGH, Feb. 24.—The State today chartered a great corporation, the Pennsylvania Lumber and Manufacturing Co. of Lenoir, Caldwell county, capital $3,000,000. John H. Danenbower, of Pa. William J. Merrill of Philadelphia and Walter W. Noble of Lenoir being the stockholders. The charter is a broad one, and allows the company to build and operate all kinds of factories, manufacture lumber, wood pulp, wood alcohol, to generate and dispose of electric power, etc. The fee to the State for this charter was $600.

It is said that the class at the State University Medical College, which will open here in September, will have a larger class than has been expected; not only all the University medical students who have taken the two years course there and who will come here to take the additional two years course required but a number of North Carolinians now studying medicine in other States.

Yesterday was the first warm day this year. In the sunshine the temperature was 84 degrees. As a result the snow melted fast. The country is yet white with it however, from Selma here and there as far west as Durham. It is said many small birds have died. Not many partridges are thought to have perished. The snow has not made a great deal of sickness. There is gripe, but not of a bad type. In Moore and Chatham counties, there has been much pneumonia, of a bad type.

Governor Aycock this morning repudiated Andrew Sherman Jackson (white) of Lincolnton until March 20, at the request of the presiding judge. Jackson was under sentence to be hanged Wednesday of this week, for burglary.

President Charles E. Taylor of Wake Forest college will preach the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, the 9th of March, before the graduates in the professional departments at Shaw University (colored) here. The annual address to the graduates will be delivered on the 13th by Rev. Dr. Kligo, president of Trinity college, Durham. The trustees will meet here on that day. It is the first time they have ever met at Raleigh.

The State authorizes the White Furniture Company of Mebane to increase its capital stock from $25,000 to $100,000.

The condition of F. H. Busbee, a well known attorney here, who has been dangerously sick, is much improved.

Salvation Oil the Best Liniment. Price, 15 cts; large bottle 25 cts. Greatest cure on earth for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Soreness, Sprains, Backache, Stiffness, Cuts, Bruises, Wounds, Swellings, Burns and Frost Bites. Salvation Oil kills all pain.

THE ROYAL VISITOR.

Prince Henry of Prussia Safe Arrival. A Nation Welcome.

New York, Feb. 23.—Prince Henry of Prussia reached New York today and was cordially welcomed as a guest of the nation.

The land battery which guards the outer harbor sounded the first greeting in a ponderous salute of 31 guns, the rifles of a special naval squadron assembled in honor to echo the sentiment, and there were verbal greetings from the representatives of President Roosevelt, the army, the navy and the city of New York. A great crowd lined the vantage ground in the city to see the Prince and the German sailors.

Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans officially welcomed the royal visitor in the name of the American people. The Prince landed on the West Thirty-fourth street pier, New York city, at 12:55 o'clock. He passed over the pier and went on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern.

Then came representatives of the President, the army and navy and the German Embassy to pay their respects. At 3 p. m. the Prince entertained some of his notable visitors at luncheon.

Later in the afternoon the Prince visited the United States warships in the harbor.

A DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR.

Ben Tillman, Senator From South Carolina Attacks His Colleague in Open Senate.

Washington Post, Feb. 23rd. Time—yesterday afternoon. Place—the Senate of the United States. Cause—Tillman charged that McLaurin had sold his vote for official patronage, and McLaurin told him that he lied. All eyes were centered upon McLaurin a man of forty-two years, not over medium-height, with a heavy blond mustache and curly hair. The Senate was unusually crowded, and the galleries were thronged with visitors. Tillman, black-haired, one-eyed, his rugged face drawn tautly, sat with his arms crossed on his lap, his favorite attitude. His one eye regarded McLaurin closely. He was like a lion crouched to spring.

"Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege." McLaurin's words, clear out and distinct, cut the silence of the Senate like a knife. Everybody instinctively felt that a crisis was near. Despite the emotion under which McLaurin seemed to be laboring, he was apparently the most composed man in the chamber. He spoke with deliberation, and his enunciation was more than usually distinct. Every word he uttered seemed to be felt, as well as heard, in the remotest parts of the historic hall. Even as he spoke, several Senators, among them Scott, of West Virginia, moved restlessly about in the rear of the desks. They felt as a man might feel who treads the verge of a trembling volcano.

"During my absence a few moments ago," continued Mr. McLaurin, "the gentleman who has just taken his seat—"

Mr. McLaurin paused. He evidently did not recall the word "gentleman" as applied to Mr. Tillman. He changed it to "Senator." The correction was ominous, like the flash of lightning before the storm.

"The Senator who has just taken his seat," Mr. McLaurin went on, emphasizing the omission of the word "gentleman" by not repeating it, "said that improper influences had been used in changing the vote of somebody on the treaty. He then went on to state that his charge applied to the Senator from South Carolina who had been given the patronage of that State. I think now that I have stated the substance of the controversy."

Controlling himself with an effort, but still speaking very calmly and with a carefully modulated tone, Mr. McLaurin continued, "I would not use as strong language as I intend," he said "and I do not, soon after the Senate met, replied to these insinuations and said that they were untrue."

There was an emphasis to the last word that foreboded trouble, but Mr. McLaurin was reserving the sentence which stung. "I now say," he went on dwelling with distinctive emphasis upon every word and half turning toward his colleague, "that that statement is a willful, deliberate, and malicious lie!"

The challenge rang out through the Senate chamber, wherein was silence as of death. McLaurin did not have a chance to say another word.

Mr. Tillman sprang from his seat with the rapidity and almost the ferocity of a tiger.

There were three desks between him and where McLaurin was standing. The first one, usually occupied by Senator Bailey, of Texas, was empty. Tillman, in his mad onslaught, pushed the vacant chair away with his knees. At the next desk, Mr. Teller was sitting. He was swept aside by the angry Tillman. Indeed, the infuriated Senator, placing one hand upon Teller's shoulder and the other upon Teller's desk, literally leaped over him, in his effort to reach McLaurin. Then there was another vacant chair, where Senator Harris sits, and this was almost overturned as Tillman rushed by it. Then the two South Carolina Senators were face to face. The wild charge of Tillman had taken but the fraction of a second, and yet it seemed as if an age had passed.

Even if the noise of scrambling over desks had not been sufficient to attract McLaurin's attention, he had plenty of time to see Tillman madly springing at him. He stood his ground. By the time Tillman was in front of him, he had squared his arms to meet the impending attack. On the floor Senators stood up in their seats, and in the galleries half a hundred people leaped over the railing in their excitement. Tillman rushed upon McLaurin with impetuous force. Being left-handed, he aimed a wild blow at his colleague with his left fist. It landed on McLaurin's forehead, just over the right eye, although its force was partially spent upon McLaurin's arm, which he had raised in an effort to parry the blow. In fact, Tillman's fist passed across McLaurin's arm and fell with a stinging blow upon McLaurin's forehead, and then, with unimpeded momentum, glanced off into the face of Mr. Layton, who was close behind McLaurin, having sprung forward at the first sign of the encounter.

Instantly McLaurin's right arm shot out, the blow landing upon Tillman's face, apparently upon the nose. Again Tillman struck out frantically, this time with his right arm, but the blow fell harmlessly upon McLaurin's shoulder. Then followed a wild scuffle, both Senators clanking each other madly and attempting to rain blows upon each other.

Across the aisle sat Senator Warren of Wyoming, a man of powerful build.

With true Western instinct, he sprang over the intervening space and threw one muscular arm around Tillman's body and the other arm around Tillman's neck. Tillman in no plume, but Senator Warren lifted him as if he were a child and literally carried him back to his desk, Mr. Layton assisting in the performance. In the meanwhile, Senator Patterson and Senator Cockrell's son who happened to be standing by, a feld McLaurin and forced him into his seat. Half a dozen other Senators, like school boys in a fight, crowded around the combatants. The latter made several ineffectual attempts to get at each other even after they had been dragged apart.

The struggle was over

Saved Him From Torture.

There is no more agonizing trouble than piles. The constant itching and burning make life intolerable. No position is comfortable. The torture is unceasing. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures piles at once. For skin diseases, cuts, burns, bruises, all kinds of wounds it is unequalled. J. S. Groll, St. Paul, Ark., says: "From 1895 I suffered with the protruding, bleeding piles and could find nothing to help me until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A few boxes completely cured me." Beware of counterfeits. F. S. Duffy.

Miss Stone Finally Free.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 24.—Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary who, with Madame Telika, was captured by brigands in the district of Salonica, September 3 last, has been released and arrived at Strumitza, Macedonia, at 3 o'clock this morning.

Nobody was at Strumitza to meet Miss Stone, as the brigands had given no indication where they proposed to release the prisoners. Madame Telika and her baby were released at the same time. The missionary, Madame Telika and the child are all well.

Clerk's Wise Suggestion.

"I have lately been much troubled with dyspepsia, belching and sour stomach," writes M. S. Mead, leading pharmacist of Attleboro Mass. "I could eat hardly anything without suffering several hours. My clerk suggested I try Kodo Dyspepsia Cure which I did with most happy results. I have had no more trouble and when one can go to eating mince pie, cheese, candy and nuts after such a time, their digestion must be pretty good. I endorse Kodo Dyspepsia Cure heartily." You don't have to diet. Eat all the good food you want but don't overload the stomach. Kodo Dyspepsia Cure digests your food. F. S. Duffy.
