EXACTIONS OF THE POLITICIANS.

| Already by mall and through persons solicitation, this office is being beseige by the office seeker and his friends, for newspaper favors.

It may not be so regarded by many, but it is true, that politics is just as much a business and profession, as is the conduct of a newspaper. This being so, to seek free notice from a newspaper, by the politician, de an exaction, that is unfair and unfait. especially where the newspaper people are neither. in politics, nor seeking favors to offset what is given the politiclans through the newspaper's columns

For its return, no business in North Carolina is so expensive as the publication of a newspaper, and yet if the record could be made known, the press has been and is today, contributing more towards good government, than all the politicians, and all other sources taken together.

This contribution is given freely and gladly, as is the effort, whenever a newspaper is published, to promote local betterments of every kind.

There is much that can be classed a "news" in politics, which receives free insertion, as well that space which may be given as a contribution by the newspaper for its own political party, should the publisher so deaire.

But there is matter which is sent to every newspaper, that is only for the individual benefit of the person, or his friends seeking its publication, and to press upon its free insertion, with the claim that it is the "duty" of the newspaper to "stick by its political friends," is nothing more or less than political exection.

The newspaper at the most liberal estimate gets little when the office seeker does pay, and yet the average politician paying a dollar to a newspaper is more exacting in his demands, than is the merchant paying five times as moth. for really doing the same thing, namely, advestiging what he has to offer to the public.

And it is not alone in giving free

Killing a Baby.

When Frank B. Stockton had plan ned out his book of Pomona's travel and was about ready to write it, he re sided in Philadelphia. He had a build ness appointment with his dentist, an old friend, one day, when the ing incident, told by himself, our ad one day, when the follow "While in the chair I got to talking

We talked over the advisability of doing this, and, while he was not guits convinced, he in the main agreed with me. I had been finished with and clasping his hand, went into the wait ing room on my way out. This waiting room was filled with women.

"As I passed through the door I heard him call, "Then you have post tively decided to kill that baby?" "Post lively," I replied. "You should have seen the w stare. It was not until I got well out in the hallway that I realised what they must of course liave been thinking."

Milnes' Hospitable Menagerie. W. Gordon McCabe says that when Monchton Milnes, the poet, aspired to grasp the social literary scepter falling from the withered hands of Rogers he gathered around his breakfast table in Pall Mall men of the most diverse per sonalities, creeds and tastes. In fact the chief requirement for securing an invitation to these breakfasts, which soon became the talk of London, seems to have been that the guest must be a lion of some sort. Men of such pro nounced differences as Count d'Ormy, the elegant dandy; the rugged Thomas Cartyle, Sydney Smith, the brilliant wit, and Connop Thiriwall, the grave rian, sat there side by side, and tion of the god.

had Buffalo Bill burst upon the town in those days Mr. McCabe thinks he too, would undoubtedly have rubbed elbows in Milnes' hospitable menageri with Tom Macaulay and Aubrey de

What a Widow Is.

It was a Sunday school class, and the teacher believed in asking questions to see how clearly the scholars under-stand their lessons. The widow of Ham was the subject, and the teacher thought she would be quickly answered when she asked, "What is a widaw?" There was a allence until she nodded to the small boy at her left and nodd, "You know what a widow is, for the she how the boy's

They as we are born, it of internate is ophemeral; they come and go, are repleniabed and decay. They are the dying pairs of that system of life which must last a little while, but which must eventually yield to the in-exorable law of nature. The nulls, the hift, etc., are observable as an instance of this decay. The same rule applies to every other organ and tissue of the hody, though it is not paipable to the unhed eys. How Birds Migrate Many of the smiller and weaker birds, like the fly extchers, vireos, wrens, kinglets and bloebirds, in order to avoid their examins, the hawks, make their long flights by night, stopping for rest and food in the daytime. The larger and bolder ones, like the hawks and crows, and those of ex-tremely rapid flight, like the swallows ng birds, migrate fearles and he by day, and there are some, like the Canada goese, which travel just when they choose, by day or night. Migrating birds usually fly at a height of from one to three miles, and this embles them to see the rivers, the moun-tain ranges and the coast line. By these they direct their course, the old birds nbering the way they can before and the young ones following.-Woman's Home Companion.

Parinitian Wahls Costs In a book entitled "Domestic Manners of the Middle Ages" we are told that in those days dinner tables were covered by a "nappe," or tablecloth. Upon it were placed a large saltcellar, bread and cups for wine, but no knives or plates. The reason for the absence of the knives arose from the com practice in vogue of people carrying to their girdle. In an early work, written by Lydgate-"Rules For Behavior at Table"the guests are told to bring no knives unscoured to the table, which can only mean that each one was to keep his own knife-that is, the one he carried with him-clean.

Notifying the God.

One of the odd things the visitor to Burma will notice is the large number of bells about the pagodes. These bells are usually hung on sacred posts a few feet above the ground. They are sweet toned, as all Burmes ils are, but they are not furnished with tongues. The worshiper who comes to pray before, the pagoda strikes one of these bells with a wood en mallet. This is to attract the atten

Burns, cuts and other wounds often fail o heal properly if neglected and become troublesome sores. DeWill's Witch hazel Salve prevents such consequences. Even where delay has aggravated the injury De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve effects a cure. "I had a running sore; on my leg thirty years," says H. C. Hartly, Yankeetown, Ind. #### The Luxury of Doing Good.

A magazine article on "The Luxury of Doing Good" quotes one or more writers to the effect that the impulse of benevolence is, in fact, a selfish one, because people please themselves by exercising the power of doing good. This kind of dissection of motive seems rather ungracious and unprofitable, as, although logic of course could very easily reason out the matter to the same conclusion, in actual life to take delight in benefiting others is not, as a rule, characteristic of selfish natures If we have the means of doing good at little or no cost of sacrifice to ourselves, whether in money, influence or any other form of helpfulness, it may perhaps be truly said that we derive pleasure at a very cheap rate. But the vast majority of people can only de good at the cost of some little self denial, and in those cases we can only ascribe their actions to the simple qual ities of kindness and good feeling .-Philadelphia Ledger.

Holds up a Congressman.

"At the end of the campaign," writer Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant congressman, "from overwork, nervous tension, loss of sleep and constant speak ing I had about utterly collapsed. The liniment bottle and flannel strip are familiar objects in nearly every household. They are the weapons that have been used for generations to fight old Rheumatism, and are about as effective in the battle with this giant disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid, sour. condition of the blood. It is filled with acrid, initiating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liniments and oils nor nothing else applied externally can dislodge these gritty, corroding particles. They were deposited there by the blood and can be reached only through the blood. Rubbing with liniments sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and pains, but these are only symptoms which are liable to return with every change of the weather ; the real disease lies deeper, the blood and system are infected. Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly and promptly as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and washes out all foreign materials, and the sufferer obtains happy relief from the torturing pains. S. S. Contains no potash or other mineral, but is a perfect vegetable blood purifier and most exhilarating tonic. Our physicians will advise, without charge, all who write about their case, and we will send free our special book on Rheumatism and its treatment. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.
