THE ANNUAL FOR SWEARING.

Close upon the publication of the delinquent tax payers, comes the notice for tax payers, that they must prepare their property tax lists, and give in their property to be taxed for a new

To the average tax payer, there seems to be an unceasing warfare to get him for taxes, a never ending cry of "your money," from the tax collector.

It is said that tax listing, the valuation a man places upon his property, is the greatest test that can be made upon the moral side of a man's character.

Personal property of every kind shows a great depreciation in value, when it comes to be put down on the tax list.

And yet why should a man forswear himself? Because some other man does, may be the answer. But this does not correct the matter, nor does one man's wrong doing; justify another committing the same act.

Municipal, county, State and national expenditures must be made, and tax payers must bear the burden.

Forswearing and under valuation, with the object of securing a less amount of taxes to pay, does not benefit the tax Public expenses must be met, and under valuations may not raise enough. vet the balance due has to be met in some way, and the tax payer must make good the deficit.

If every citizen would give in his prop erty upon an equitable 'asis of value, without a strain of conscience, and not under value because some one else does, tax raising would prove no such burden as it is today.

There is something radically wrong in our present system of tax listing, for it breeds dishonest listing, and the real burden does not fall equitably upon those who by all right should bear a just proportion of the public expenses, but upon those who pay out of proportion to means and property.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Better not prune at all than to pe

Improperty.

In planting cut grafts only the upper bud should be left above ground. The very best time to graft is just when the buds are beginning to swell. The chief value of dwarf pears con-sists in their early bearing, due to defective circulation of the sap.

A good way to plant young trees is to make a large hole, set the tree in the center, spread out the roots and fill in with good soil.

In setting out strawberries the abould be rich and mellow, so that the roots can be spread out fan shaped. Fill the soil well in among the roots. Never permit a tree or vine to over bear. A tree or vine that is almos breaking with its load of fruit may look pretty, but it is rerely a profitable one. Quality is of more importance than quantity.

How Victor Hugo Worked. Victor Hugo always wrote standing at a high desk especially constructed for him, throwing off sheet after sheet as fast as he filled it till he would be quite snowed up in leaves of foolscap He often rose in the middle of the night to note down an idea or a verse. He got up for the day usually at (o'clock and would devote from six to eight hours per diem to his work. He made but few corrections, his poems being thought out complete in his brain before he put pen to paper. It is a well known fact that he indulged in the ar duous task of composition while trav ersing the streets of Paris on the top of an omnibus. When working out some great conception, he would spend ours in this way.
