MUST THE CONSUMER PAY THE STRIKE COSTS?

The fact that the Pennsylvania popul strike has been in force twelve weeks, and that the soft coal miners while amount work, have agreed to pay two million dollars a month to support the hard coal men, who are holding out for botter wages, shows the continued gravity of the coal situation.

There is no immediate prospect that the strike will end, for the operators on their side say, "there is nothing to arbi-神でいる

What is to be the result of all this trouble? The operators may not be much ing any thing on their side, by no work in their mines, but is not their position the only strong one in the end, from a financial standpoint?

The miners may be getting a fiving by money from the fund contributed by the soft coal miners, but nothing more.

The operators, temporarily out of business are receiving no returns from their product, and their property may be depreciating through non-usage.

But the time is coming when hard coal will be again mined, what then?

Simply the shortage in the coal supply will cause the operators to advance the price with the claim of "demand."

The demand plea will be true in sense, but the consumer will have to pay the increased price two or four dollars per ton over-last year, and this will not go to the miners, but to the operator and it does not take much figuring to show that the real cost of the strike must be paid in the end by the coal con-
