"I am pleased to give my experience with Wine of Cardui as I am very grateful for the help. After my first baby was born I could not seem to regain my strength, although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband came home one evening with some Wine of Cardui and insisted that I take it for a week and see what it would do for me. As he seemed to have so much faith in it I did take the medicine and was very grateful to find my strength slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

MOTHERHOOD is the noblest duty and highest privilege woman can achieve or aspire to. Without this privilege woman does not get all the joy and happiness that comes through the world's disappointments wrapped up in their own selfish cares and troubles. How different is the happy mother, watching her children grow into manhood and womanhood. A mother lives as many lives as she has children—their joys and sorrows are hers, as are their ambitions, triumphs and defeats. Healthy women are not and for miscarriage nor does a woman who is healthy suffer tortures at childbirth. It is the woman who is sickly—who has female weakness—who fears the ordeal of becoming a mother. Wine of Cardui builds up the womanly in a woman. It stops all unnatural drains and strains—irregularities which are responsible for barrenness and miscarriage. It makes a woman strong and healthy and able to pass through pregnancy and childbirth with little suffering. After the ordeal is passed the Wine prepares a woman for a speedy recovery to health and activity.

Wine of Cardui, in re-inforcing the organs of generation, has made mothers of women who had given up hope of ever becoming mothers. Wine of Cardui will cure almost any case of female weakness, except cases of organic trouble. How can you refuse to take such a remedy that promises such relief from suffering? Wine of Cardui simply makes you a strong woman, and strong, healthy women do not suffer. They look forward to motherhood with joy.

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

The Farmers & Merchants BANK.
Capital, Surplus and Profits $48,850.00
APRIL 30th, 1901.

What We Have Done, Do, and Will Continue to Do.

This Bank conducts its business upon "no-to-no" methods. It is not prepared to deal justly and liberally with all.

We carefully safeguard the interests of our customers. Moreover, we frequently do it unknown to them as our portfolios often come to us in confidential ways, and your confidence is our greatest consideration.

We are not disposed to overlook the fact that the interests of the Bank and those of the people are always bound together, and cannot by any means be separated.

This Bank acts as a repository for wills, and safely keeps them till the proper time of surrender. Will also act as the custodian of money or papers left with us in escrow. No charge for these services.

We procure Letters of Credit for traveling travelers.

We aim to be prompt, progressive and liberal.

In the matter of accommodations this Bank meets every requirement within the limits of prudent banking.

If you have never been identified with us as a patron, we ask you to consider the advisability of becoming one.

In the early future, we propose adding a novel yet substantial Savings Bank feature to our already progressive institution.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Dr. P. W. Smith

It was evident that the handsome woman's pretty daughter meant business when she entered the office of the old bachelor. She walked straight up to his desk and said in a business-like way that she wanted a few minutes' private conversation with him.

"With pleasure," he replied, getting up, closing the door and offering her a chair. "What is the nature of your business?"

"Well," she returned, with the businesslike air that the girl of today seems to acquire with the rest of her education, "to come right down to facts, I've noticed you hanging round the house a good deal lately."

The old bachelor was startled.

"I—why, I—" he began.

"Oh, I suppose you think it's none of my business," she interrupted, "but that's where you make your mistake. I didn't spend three years in a boarding school for nothing. I know what I'm about, and I know that if I am going to get married now is the haymaking time, as one might say."

"But I never had any thought of—" "Getting me?" put in the pretty daughter, putting the finish to his proposition in the form of an inquiry. "Well, I should hope not. If I couldn't do better than that at my age, I wouldn't be trying to hurry things along. I know who you're after. You're after my mother—that is, you're after her in an easy-going, half-hearted sort of way, but you seem to forget that by hanging off this way you are hurting my chances."

"Why, I don't see—" "That's because you're a bachelor and never had a woman to sharpen up your wits. She's just young enough and handsome enough, as widows go, so that she won't give me any kind of a chance so long as she's in the field. She appreciates everybody to herself, and I just have to sit in the background and do nothing while valuable time is slipping away. Now, if you want her go in and get her and take her away, and if you don't say so and stand aside, so that I can run in somebody with more gumption and get her taken care of in that way. It isn't fair to me to the things up this way, and I don't propose to stand it. You can either put on your hat and go up to see her or declare yourself out of the running, for I'm going to make a chance for myself in the matrimonial market, even if I have to kidnap her and marry her to some one by force to do it."

Without a word the bachelor put on his hat and went out. If he could do a good turn for the widow, the daughter and himself all at one time he felt that he ought not to delay action. And he didn't—Chicago Post.
