disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumstism is caused by an acid cour condition of the blood. It is filled with scrid, irritating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liminents and oils nor nothing else applied externally can disadge these gritty, corroding particles. They were deposited there by the blood and can be seached only through the blood.
Rubbing with liminent sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and waster out all foreign materials, and the sufferes obtains happy relief from the torturing pains.
