The Lost Sixteenth of a Second.
If one grain of sand on the shore of the ocean were lost and scientists were to spend years in trying to find it, they would be attempting a task resembling that to which leading astronomers of England and France are now devoting themselves. One-sixteenth of a second is missing, and no one can tell where it has gone. Between the sun's time as recorded at Greenwich and as undated at Paris there is that brief and seemingly unimportant discrepancy. No expense is being spared to trace the missing fraction. A special building has been erected at Paris, costly instruments installed, a corps of mathematicians engaged, and a process that may take years to complete has been commenced. The accuracy is more important than will appear to the lay mind. Longitude is calculated on the basis of Greenwich time. It determines the boundaries of many countries. A slight variation of time may change the nationality of thousands of people. The pursuit of the missing fraction of a second is therefore of world-wide importance. We shall all be much relieved when it has been found, for then not a grain of the sands of time will be missing.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Trife of Eskimos Found.
The remnant of a remarkable and hitherto lost tribe of Eskimos has recently been discovered on Southampton Island, at the extreme north end of Hudson bay. It is said that until recently these people have never had an opportunity of being a white man. Their huts are built of the great jaws of whales, covered with skins. In the middle is an elevation on which is a stone lamp used for lighting, heating, cooking, melting snow and drying clothes. The lamp is only a disk of whale oil, in which is a piece of dry moss. Indeed the whale is the chief means by which these people live, the bones being utilized for making plates, cups and sledges, but they also use sledges of walrus tusks, with deer antlers for crosspieces. The tribe is almost extinct, as only some sixteen are left. They speak a dialect peculiar to themselves and are very daring hunters.

A Tender Hearted Girl.
Softer than swansdown was her heart, more tender than spring tints in the sky.
She could not bear to give pain to any living thing.
As they walked through the woods such was his love that he went first and brushed away the spider webs with his face.
All about them lay the beauties of nature and the habitations of civilization.
"See!" he cried, pointing to a forest giant. "See!"
And on it she saw a graven heart with their names cut inside it.
"Oh, cruel, cruel!" she wept. "Our engagement is broken. I would not marry a monster who thus inflicts pain on—"
"What?" he cried. "What have I done that is so cruel?"
"You have cut a live oak tree!"

Rainmaking Cannons.
Storm cannons are very common in Italy now along the southern slopes of the Alps, where damage from hailstorms during harvest time is always imminent, says the Argonaut. They are the invention of a Padua firm, and they are set, with their wide mouths gaping skyward, beside little houses that look like sentry boxes. When they are fired, they boom like "mure" cannon, but instead of a ball or shell or other similar projectile they emit a ring of smoke which grows larger and larger as it ascends until at last before it breaks it is big enough to surround a ten acre field. Instead of hail only rain falls when the guns are used, and damage to crops is prevented.

Madstreeted Mail.
The postoffice department has prepared a set of statistics, which amount to an indictment against every fourth person in the country for misdirecting mail. The department handled 10,056,437 pieces of mail last year which were wrongly or imperfectly directed. Nearly 10,000,000 of these were either forwarded with correct addresses or returned to the sender. The money taken from the letters that found their way to the dead letter office and for which no owners could be found, together with the amount realized from the auction sale of unclaimed articles accumulated in the office, aggregated $18,458.83.

"Tapping" the Telephone.
In Stockholm almost every householder is "on the telephone," and practically every kind of business is conducted by means of the instrument. This fact has been turned to account by the police authorities in a curious way. The creditors of a business man who had serious doubts of his integrity employed a detective to obtain information about him. The detective "tapped" the telephone wire from a house at which the suspect was staying and overheard many private conversations. The action of the detective, however, aroused considerable indignation among the community.

The Costermonger.
The costermonger has found an apologist in the London aspect. It is his business to watch the markets and to buy extensively when there is a glut and to distribute the purchases as quickly as possible. He then prescribes the wholesale destruction of perishable goods, and he also discourages the inclination of small shopkeepers to make extortionate charges.

Unconscious From Croup.
During a sudden and terrible attack of croup our little girl was unconscious from strangulation, says A. J. Spafford, postmaster, Chester, Mich., and a dose of One Minute Cough Cure was administered and repeated often. It reduced the swelling and inflammation, cut the spasms and shortly the child was resting easy and happily recovered. It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, All Throat and Lung troubles. One Minute Cough Cure is given in the throat and chest and enables the lungs to contribute pure, health-giving oxygen to the blood. P. B. Daily.

MISS ROSE OWENS,

No. 720 Seventeenth St., WASHINGTON, D. C.

"If every suffering woman has the same experience with Wine of Cardui that I had, your medicine will be most popular. About a year ago I began to have a worn out feeling with lassitude, pains in the back and head which kept increasing every month. I felt that I needed something, but to get the right medicine was the trouble. I finally decided on your Wine of Cardui and only needed to take three bottles when I was fully recovered."

WHEN Miss Rose Owens, who has a responsible position in the Government service at Washington, D. C., decided to try Wine of Cardui, she made a wise choice. Over a million women have been relieved of female weakness by this same Wine of Cardui. It is not a strong medicine but may be taken every day in the year by any woman with benefit. It does not force results, but corrects derangements of the menstrual organs. It strengthens the nervous system, gives tone to the bodily functions, acts directly on the genital organs, and is the finest tonic for women known to the science of medicine.

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

Beauty Triumphs,

No a Priceless Treasure.

No woman objects to being beautiful. Beauty is woman's charm, joy, pride and crown. It is the life of her existence and the life of her world. A pretty woman does not only attract the eyes of men, but she also attracts the eyes of heaven. She is the one who is loved and respected by all. She is the one who is the life of her world. She is the one who is the life of her world. She is the one who is the life of her world.

Mother's Friend

It is the only medicine which is available to every mother. It will do away with all the troubles of a mother. It will do away with all the troubles of a mother. It will do away with all the troubles of a mother.
