HINTS FOR FARMERS

The Source of Best Clover Seed.
In cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station has during the past season conducted a comparative study of red clover obtained from different parts of the world. The object of this study is to determine, if possible, the best source from which to obtain seed for general farm purposes. To this end the questions considered were: Rate and per cent of germination, date of blooming and consequent earliness of crop, date of cutting, yield per acre and general condition of the stand.

Some striking differences were noted, but of course no general conclusions can be drawn from one season's work. Seed was sown May 19 on fifty-eight plots of two square rods each. The first bloom was noted Aug. 2, on plots with the seed from England, Russia, Nebraska, Tennessee, Iowa and Missouri. The first plots ready for harvest (cut just in bloom) were those from Indiana and one lot from Bohemia. The largest yields were obtained in the order given, from plots with seed from Bohemia, Indiana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Kentucky and Ohio. Plants from American seed were invariably very hairy, while those from European seed were almost as invariably smooth. The experiment will be continued through another growing season, and the results will be given in detail in a station bulletin.

A Round Type of Seckel Pear.

A peculiar type of Seckel pear has been brought to the office of the American Agriculturist by Fruit Grower C. L. Allen of Long Island. The pear is nearly round and in general shape resembles that of an apple or sand pear. In color, quality and other characteristics it is a typical Seckel. It was grown in the orchard of William F. Stearns, Cayuga county, N. Y. Mr. Allen says that Mr. Stearns has grown Seckels successfully for many years and has just noted this peculiar type on one limb of each of two trees. The pears on the other trees in the orchard are of the normal type. This peculiar variation is about the average size of the ordinary Seckel and possesses in a very marked degree all the characteristics of the true type, with the exception of its general form and shape. The skin is a brownish green, later turning to a rich yellowish brown, with a deep red cheek. The stem is rather short, while the calyx end is quite distinctly marked. The flesh is fine grained, sweet, juicy and very agreeable to the taste.

Beauty Triumphs.

"It's a Priceless Treasure."
No woman objects to being beautiful. Beauty is a priceless treasure. It is the one thing that the world has always prized and adored. It is the one thing that makes a woman's life a joy to those who love her. It is the one thing that makes a woman's life a joy to herself. It is the one thing that makes a woman's life a joy to the world. It is the one thing that makes a woman's life a joy to all.

Poultry For the Farmer.

None is so well situated for growing poultry profitably as the farmer. He who buys his feed and spends many weary hours in labor to properly care for a flock of confined birds must calculate to a nicety all the elements of cost, as well as receipts. The poultry products sold by the farmer are practically all profit, for his fowls fatten on what would otherwise be wasted, and their wide range insures health and productivity. The grain thrown to the fowls amounts to little, for at night their crops are already well filled with seeds and insects, and but little addition is needed. The farms are and always will be the chief source of the market supply of poultry products.

Valuable Hints.

A number of experiment stations are charged with enforcing the laws relating to the sale of concentrated stock feeds. Once a year they publish a report giving the composition of all the feeds on the market. For the man who buys feed this is the most important bulletin of the year, although its columns of figures may appear dry. The real character of the feeds is apparent, and by a careful study of the analyses it is easily possible to compound the most economical ration. Preserve these reports and use them.—American Agriculturist.

Take Care of the Fertility.

If in time farmers were giving more attention to the preservation of the fertility of their fields. Steady cropping in the old method will surely exhaust them sooner or later. This bad end is soon reached on sandy uplands, but should not be reached on any. By green manuring and other fertilizing the soil may be steadily improved. This requires work, but it is work that pays, and pays in what most people work for. Some work for pay they never get. Farmers who impoverish their soils by bad farming are losers in the end.

Heavy "Trunk" Production.

A million bushels of lettuce per year are grown under glass by W. W. Raywood, the Ut Massachusetts market gardener. Cucumbers are grown at a cost of a cent each—that is, it costs about 50,000 a year to run the cucumber houses, and 500,000 "bushels" are produced each year. About 2,000 per day are grown in March, 4,000 in April, 10,000 in May and 15,000 in June. His largest day's picking was 50,000 "bushels."

Notice.

Application will be made to the next session of the General Assembly of North Carolina to amend chapter 947 laws of 1895 establishing graded schools in the City of New Bern, to increase the rate of taxation for the support of said schools.

Weather Predictions at Your Door.
New developments are taking place in the free mail delivery service. The latest suggestion is to convey the weather predictions through some kind of weather signals taken up by the carriers. Where the plan has been tried it has been welcomed by farmers along the route. The difficulty is in getting the predictions early enough to go out with the carriers. Of 3,000 rural delivery offices it has been found that only about 750 can be conveniently arranged to deliver forecasts. Averaging two carriers to an office means 1,500 carriers who could deliver forecast cards to 150,000 farmers' families. This would make a fair start, and it would doubtless be found that other places can make arrangements to improve the service in this direction.—American Cultivator.
