Along the borders of Greven, Jones, and Carterest counties, where these counties join is a very large Posseta in which lie dive lakes, one or more of considerable size. Game of all kinds native to the climate abound in them and the lakes are filled with fish In fact it is a lakes are filled with fish In fact it is a perfect paradise for sportsmen.

Years ago the border of this Pocosia was dotted with the cabins of a primitive people who practically got their living out of the woods. True they all had their little clearings on which were raised vegetables and everybody kept a bunch of ranor-back hogs, but their main subsistance came from the hunt.

These people were rough in their way and uncultured, to be sure, but they had warm hearts and noble dispositions and hospitality was the basis of their religion if they had any.

Poor and lowly his appearance, though he was the stranger always met a hearty welcome among them, and was fersted on viands, the memory of which-makes an old man's mouth water, as long as he chose to tarry.

These people were all hunters, not pot hunters, but teue sportsmen. Each litt'e set lement had it; pack of deer hounds another of bear dogs, besides those trained to tree coons and other game. Every dog was carefully trained and would on ly hunt the particular game for which it was trained.

Hunts were of frequent occurrence in these settlements every male settler that as old and active enough taking part. Sometimes it was for bear but more often for deer. But whatever the chase it was always successful. The writer recellects some old hunts in which he tox part, three of four fine deer were killed in one forenoon.

After dressit g the game came the division, which would be interesting to the younger generation. The carcass was cut into as many parts as there were hunters. The first and second choice pieces going respectively to the one who killed the game and to the owner of the dogs who "jumped" it. A man with his back turned to the meat would designate to whom each other piece belonged, as another hunter pointed to it. Those hunts are now only a memory.

The old hunters with their dogs are dead and gone. Their cabins have fallen to decay, their settlements are deserted for their offspring have gone to other places where money is more valued than contentment or happiness.

The game remains plentiful enough, infact bears are getting too I lentiful, but it is but little hunted. The lands have been bought up by large holders, who keep them posted and prohibit hunting

Now and then permission is obtained from a landlord for a hunt or trap a bear if one becomes troublesome, and the Journal prints an account of a recent bear hunt near Greaten giving the story in the parrater's own language and style as written by him which will no doubt be enjoyed by those readers who cherish pleasant memories of these old time hunts.

Croatan, N C, Sth, 1904. On Friday eve April 29th, I lost one of my best brude sows, by a large bear, within a quarter of a mile of my house or it was so near I heard the squeeling of the hog as she was being driven by the bear to the thick pocoson nearby, so I and others procured dogs of Mr J D Pittman and west to hunt for the bruin but he had killed the hog which gestion, weakness and emaciation. we found but his trail was too cold to further, so I move the traps and hung a late proper physical condition. part of the hog up a tree at set the traps at the root of tree. My nephew was in the lead until the saw the bear arise from ground and look back, so he called out for me to get ahead which I did and by that time we was so near to hear until he turned to come to us with mouth open and blood in his eye. We shot him five times before he would give up and after being dressed he tipped the scales at 500 pounds. I think it was the largest bear ever killed in this neighborhood.

LIVELY SCRAP

en Britton of Rews-Observer and W H Day, Conference of A & N C Matters.

deign, May 5-There was a fight in the Yarboro House office this afternoon between E E Britton of the News and Observer, and W H Day.

Briston received several blows with a eaue on his arm and hand, and Day got a ight blow on the face. Only four persons were in the office, but the men were quickly separat d. Ex-Governor Jarvis arrived this afternoon, and he and James H Pon are in conference with Attorney General Gilmer about Atlantic and North Carolina Receivership.

WILL BE BIG CONTEST.

Oa New Receivership Question Over A lan ic & North Carolina Road On May 21st.

Raleigh N C May 6th-Both the State and Cayler are making preparations for a big fight here before Judge Purnell on the 21st inst. regarding the desired receivership of the Atlantic & North Carolina Rallway. Both sides are introducing new evidence and new witnesser. The Cuyler people, whoever they are, are said to be working like beavers to make a showing. The State will have to sh wcaree to show why a receiver should not be appointed. Of course nothing can be done with the road until udge Purnell disposes of this matter. If the way is clear a lease is practically certain to be made. Governor Aycock says that both the Atlantic Railway and the Philadelphia syndidate propositions to lease are good and there does not seem to be such difference between them. A Federal question, or rather a question of State's rights seems to be involved, mainly as to whether a Federal Judge cau appoint a receiver of State property The special investigating committee is now waiting for the report on the books of the Atlantic & North Carolina railway and today R. T. Gray, of the committee went to New Bern to get this report, on which expert Thomas D. Meares has been at work for some time.
