No Russian Sympathizer.

An incident happened on the steamer Wessex which aptly illustrates the feeling of many Americans in this country toward their native land. A Russian who is employed as a commercial traveler was a passenger on the boat a few days ago and a fellow passenger asked him if he would fight in the war against the Japanese.

The man was very emphatic in his reply and said that if it were possible he would disguise himself and join the Japanese army and fight his native land with his utmost strength and ability. He said that all love for his native country had long since died. He is said to have been a high officer in the Russian army at one time but had been expropriated by order of the czar and had escaped punishment by running away. There are many of his country men in the United States who are of the same mind; they have no use for Russia.

How to Raise the Wind

There are more ways than one to raise the wind. Perhaps an unique method as few was told the Journal reporter a few days since.

A practical experiment with it proves its efficiency, so the Journal gives those interested a tip and should any one have need to try the suggestion they are welcome to do so.

A party was out sailing a few nights ago and they were caught in a dead calm. The boat could only drift. One of the party, a resourceful young man, went to the fore and stuck his knife in the mast, sharp edge uppermost as high as he could reach. Before he could return to his place in the stern of the boat a stiff breeze came up and the boat out the waves beautifully.

The narrator tells us that this is not a mere chance for he has tried it several times and it has proved satisfactory every time and while he is unable to explain the philosophy of it he knows the plan will work.

Jefferson Davis On Prohibition.

(ADV.)

The following statement like and far-reaching letter from the pen of ex-President Jefferson Davis upon the subject of prohibition commends itself to consideration.

BRAYVOIR, MISS., July 20, 1887.

COLONEL R. E. LUSKOCK.

My Dear Friend--Yours of the 12th instant with its enclosure has been received.

I have heretofore declined to answer any of the inquiries made for my opinion on the constitutional amendment now pending in Texas.

Read in the creed of Democracy, my faith in its tenets has grown with its growth, and I adhere to the maxim that "The world is governed too much."

"When our fathers achieved their independence the corner-stone of the government they constructed was individual liberty, and the social organizations they established were not for the surrender, but for the protection, of natural rights. For this, governments were established deriving their just power from the consent of the governed. This was not to subject themselves to the will of the majority, as appears from the fact that each community inserted in its fundamental law a bill of rights to guard the inalienable privileges of the individual.

There was then a two-fold purpose in government--protection and prevention against trespass by the strong upon the weak, the many on the few.

The world had long suffered from the oppressions of government under the pretext of ruling by divine right, and extending the invasion into private and domestic affairs on the plea of paternal care for the morals and good order of the people.

Our sires rejected all such pretensions, their system being: Government by the people for the people, resting on the basis of natural, inalienable rights. Upon the basis of these general propositions, I will briefly answer the inquiry in regard to the prohibition amendment at issue.

"Be ye temperate in all things," was a wise injunction, and would apply to intemperance as well as to drunkenness. That the intemperate use of intoxicating liquors is an evil; few, if any, would deny.

That it is the root of many social disorders is conceded; but then the question arises, what is the appropriate remedy, and what the present necessity? To destroy individual liberty and moral responsibility would be to eradicate one evil by the substitution of another, which, it is submitted, was offered as a remedy. The abuse and not the use of stimulants, it must be confessed, is the evil to be remedied. Then it clearly follows that action should clearly be directed against the abuse rather than the use. If drunkenness be the cause of disorder and crime, why not pronounce drunkenness itself to be a crime and attack to it proper and adequate penalties? If it be objected that the penalties could not be enforced, that is an admission that popular opinion would be opposed to the law; but it is true that justice could not be impartial, who would consider so degraded a criminal as a drunkard, it necessarily follows that a statutory prohibition against the sale and use of intoxicants must be a dead letter.

I might appeal to men not so old as myself to maintain the assertion that the convivial use of intoxicants had become less frequent within the last twenty years than it was before. The refining influences of education and Christianity may be credited with the result. Why not allow these blessed handmaidens of virtue and morality to continue unembarrassed their civilizing work?

You have already provision for local prohibition. If it has proved the wooden horse in which a disguised enemy to State sovereignty as the guardian of individual liberty was introduced, let it be a warning that the progressive march would probably be from village to State and from State to United States, and result in a governmental supervision and paternalism instead of the liberty of the heroes of 1776 left as a legacy to their posterity, impelled by the affection and gratitude I feel for the people of Texas, and the belief that a great question of American policy is involved in the issue you have before you, the silence I had hoped to observe has been broken. If the utterance shall avail anything for good, it will compensate me for the objections with which I shall doubtless be pursued by the followers of the popularity of the day.

Faithfully yours,
JEFFERSON DAVIS.

WONDERFUL CURE OF SORE HANDS

By Cuticura After the Most Awful Suffering Ever Experienced.

EIGHT DOCTORS

And Many Remedies Failed to do a Cent's Worth of Good.

"About five years ago I was troubled with sore hands, so sore that when I would put them in water the pain would very nearly set me crazy, the skin would peel off and the flesh would get hard and break. There would be blood flowing from at least fifty places on each hand. Words could never tell the suffering I endured for three years. I tried everything that I was told to use for fully three years, but could get no relief. I tried at least eight different doctors, but none of them seemed to do me any good, as my hands were as bad when I got through doctoring as when I first began. I also tried many remedies, but none of them ever did me one cent's worth of good. I was discouraged and heart-sore. I would feel so bad mornings when I got up, to think I had to go to work and stand the pain for ten hours, and I often felt like giving up my position. Before I started to work mornings I would have to wrap every finger up separately, so as to try and keep them soft and then wear gloves over the rags to keep the grease from getting on my work. At night I would have to wear gloves in bed. In fact, I had to wear gloves all the time. But thanks to Cuticura, the greatest of all great skin cures. After doctoring for three years, and spending much money, a 50c. box of Cuticura Ointment ended all my sufferings. It's been two years since I used any and I don't know what sore hands are now, and never look a day's work while using Cuticura Ointment."

McSORLEY'S.

BARLEY is one of the oldest cereals known in history. But the barley grown today is the product of centuries of cultivation. Although it is a hardy cereal, and can be grown in any temperate climate, it is best cultivated in our Northern States, where the soil is peculiarly adapted to produce the most nutritious species.

Milwaukee, the home of the Pabst Brewing Company, is located on the edge of a vast barley district, where the best barley in America is grown. Pabst has his own buyers, who have had years experience in selecting barley, and whose exclusive employment is to purchase the two million bushels of this grain needed every year.

Every bushel of barley used by the Pabst Brewing Company is the best and of possible nutrition in the malt from which Pabst beer is made. The hops likewise are obtained by special employes whose office it is to inspect the crops of this flower each year, and their purchase is governed by their practical knowledge of the best localities of growth, and also the quality which possesses the correct amount of aroma and "hop principle" necessary to produce good beer. Pabst Beer is always pure because it is brewed from only the choicest materials.

Before any vat, brew-kettle, keg or bottle is used a second time, vast corps of men and women wash, cleanse and scour these receptacles until they are sweet and clean and free from all contamination.

System, the best labor and the latest scientific machinery are used throughout the great Pabst plant. Cleanliness and quality are above all else observed to the extreme.

The doors of the Pabst plant are always open to visitors, who may inspect for themselves the superior methods employed in the manufacture of Pabst Beer which could not be made better if double its price were offered.
