UNREST OF V. C. C. MINORITY STOCKHOLDER.

The meeting in Jersey City of the stockholders of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company on July 10th, is in-Ascesting in its proceedings, in showing how absolutely helpless the minority stockholder in this company is, and also In the reports read, limited in number, but which reveal some strange features and mystifying figures.

The unrest of the minority stockholder in the V C C Company is not unnatural. He has in the past received comfortable dividends upon his stock. and has seen an active market demand for his stock, while today there is no dividend and the stock drags in price at about one third of its previous market quotation, and this upon apparent reassuring reports, of a practical control of the market for fertilizers, with higher prices being paid for the fertilizer

At this last meeting resolutions were offered by the minority stockholders, who sought statements of the true inside workings of the company, these res olutions being turned down.

The reason for the minority resolu tions seem to have abundant warrant, when the last two statements of the sompany are looked at, besides other things. The company's statement issuel on Jane 15, 1993, showed an approximate surplus at that time of$4,665, 000, while on June 15,1904, the state ment gave a surplus of $8,140,000, discrepancy of over one million and half dollars, and a furthus investigation of these surplus statements made it apparent that the common stock dividend of that year, June 15, 1903, was paid from the surplus account and not from the not earnings.;

These statements, and the continued spanes of stock, with the bonus and interest paid to those negotiating their sale, was another thing which the minor ity stockholder wanted to know about On the $5,500,000 loan made last August, the company paid $1,060,000 and 6 per cent interest, while of the $6,000,000 preferred loan, a financial company took $5,100,000 at 95 per cent of its face value, the stockholders being kindly let in at par on $900,000 worth of this stock. If there are beneficiaries to whom these loans are made at such good advantage, the minority stockhold-or wants to know them, but at the presnt time is unable to find out, andwill not until those who control the company are willing that the inside practical And if these are known, what advanthy he a majority stockholder, unless there he special advantage in it?

Burrus & Co's Cotton Letter.

New Bern July 21th.

The cotton market opened slightly ower, owing to the some what easier Liverpool cables, but almost immediatey began to advance on the renewed overing of shorts which was in evidence yesterday afternoon. The outlook for a eaceful adjustment of the Red Sea incient, helped the market. Traders ignoring the pessimistic reports from Fall River regarding a big strike among the textile workers, and the favorable weather news. Short Houses were noderate buyers and Wall street interests and New Orleans shorts belging the advance. The over-sold condition of the market is alone responsible for the advance, as it is difficult to see on what other grounds an advance could be based at the present time, when the crop outlook is so encouraging, and weather news favorable, together with the poor spinning demand. Spinners are still pursuing their hand to mouth policy and will continue to do so as long as the demand for cotton goods continue as it is. As long as the crop outlook continues good we cannot see anything but lower prices for the staple.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Forty million bottles of August Flow er sold in the United States alone since its introduction ! And the demand for it is still growing. Isn't that a fine showing of success? Don't it prove that August Flower has had unfailing success in the cure of indigestion and dyspepsia-the two greatest enemies of health and happiness? Does it not afford the evidence that August Flower is a sure specific for all stomach and intestinal disorders ?-that it has proved itself the best of all liver regulators? August Flower has a matchless record of over thirty-five years in curing the alling millions of these distressing complaints-a success that is becoming wider in its scope every day, at home and abroad, as the fame of August Flower spreads. Brains of Men and Apes. According to the examinations of the brains of Europeans that have been made by anatomists, one of the mos important physical differences between men and apes and monkeys has been the absence of the so called simian fold in the human brain. This simian fold, or sulcus, which occurs on the posterior portion of the main hemispheres, has recently been discovered by Professor G. Elliot Smith of the Egyptian government School of Medicine in the course of an examination of a number of brains of Egyptians and Sudanese. He has found that in certain examples of brains in his col lection the characteristic folds found in anthropoid apes are so closely reproduced that he is able to trace and clear ly establish the identity of every sulcus, or fissure. Professor Smith has also succeeded in finding human brains where the occipital pattern corresponds closely with the brain of the gorilla. As these points of identity between man and his nearest relations have not previously been encountered by European scientists in their brain studies their importance can be realised, as they do away with one of the suppose and hitherto recognized structural distinctions.-Harper's Weekly.

Telephonitie. The man with telephonitis is one the features of New York restaurant life, and there are many of him. As soon as his party is seated and the supper is ordered he rises, thrusts both hands in his pockets and strolls up to the cashier's desk—to use the tele-phone. And of course every man and woman in the restaurant watches him, and all try their level best to bear what he says. He shields his lips with his hand, which adds to the effect of mys-tery, and for some minutes he holds the center of the stage, which is exactly what he wants. Then back go his hands in his pockets, and he returns to the table. The cashler in one popular cafe says that some of the conversations are pos-tilvely absurd. He overheard this im-portant message:

"Hello, Jim) Is that you? Ob, nothing. Just dropped into B/s for supper Yes, they're all here. Know anythis new? All right. See you to So long."

British Baroneteles. The first baronets were created by James I., and any one might obtain the hereditary title by the payment of 6500. Since then I have rarely heard of any baronet being created for his personal merit. Baronetcies are main ly conferred for party services. Any one in the house of commons who is prepared to vote invariably as his party whips tell him can receive a baron etcy if he is sufficiently persistent in pushing his "claim" and does not al low himself to be put off with a knight hood. In some cases he has to con tribute to the party funds, but if he bustles about and shows his teeth occasionally this is not always necessary. -London Truth.

Exclusiveness. Exclusiveness is a brand of nothing, used by nobody who is anybody, to protect somebody from the dangers of nothing. You'll find it everywhere, more in Boston than in New York, more in New York than right here in Hayfield, but Hayfield isn't rid of it. Exclusives are people who don't know enough to go at large. Exclusive society is a rickety, leaky, lopsided association of idiots, fools, tailors' dummies, languiders and hangers on, so substantial-less that you have to feed a couple of dozen of 'em into a hopper to grind out a dwarf.—Hayfield Mower.

Whistler's Refined Revenges. In "Whistler as I Knew Him," Morlimer Menpes, the author, has a good deal to say about Whistler the fighter and his quickness in resenting an affront. He is careful to add that Whis ier was always refined in his methods Still, he was not actually brutal. He never treated his enemies in a coarse way. Any man who had offended him Whistier would rap sharply over the thoulders with his cane, and then, by the time the sufferer had recovered, the master would be in the next root explaining to every one how he had just felled his enemy. Once he caught a man, with whom he was for the moment enraged, washing his face, Without a moment's besitation Whistler dushed the unfortunate head straight into the basin of water, and while the foe was endenvoring to clear the soap from his eyes to see the cause of this udden immersion Whistler was in the amoking room setting the men there in a roar with the account of his advenures. When I first met Whistler he was in the act of searching for a man who had dared to criticise his Venetian etchings. "If you want to see some un, Menpes," he said, "come with me." mately the man had been warned and was nowhere to be found.

FRENCH MAY QUEENS.

Protty Custom Which Is Still In ins in many villages in the south of ce is a pretty variation of the sing of the May queen with which Mar. The mayor an six of his political officers choose from tiful girl. As soon as the choice sie known the queen, dressed in dte, even to a long white veil and wreath of white roses, assemble with her parents and all the villagers in front of the mayor's house. Here he and six friends, dressed in frock coats and top hats, form in procession

the mayor and queen leading, and march to the church, where there is a short ceremony. They then march back to the may or's house, where a favored few are entertained at luncheon. When he proposes her health he enumerates her rirtues, kisses her on both cheeks and ands her an envelope which contains the prize, $200 in money. But the cere mony does not end here. They form in sion, the band leading this time and in a sort of "follow my leader" game walk through the village, up anes and over hills for three hours. That evening a ball is given at the inn, where the queen dances first with the mayor and his six friends and afterward with the lads of the village, and the celebration ends. What the Pikes In Tipperary Water Like Most as Food.

There is a professional fisherman o my acquaintance in Tipperary who kills many pike during the winter months, for which he finds ready said in the town. He told me of one customer of his who was in the habit of so beating him down in price that he felt justified in resorting to somewhat estionable means to increase the veight of his fish. In the manner of the winner of the stakes in the cele brated "Jomping Frog" sporting event he would introduce some weighty substance into their interior, stones, bits of iron railing, etc. Once he went so far as to stuff tw old handless flatirons he had picked from a refuse heap down the gullet of one before taking it to his customer, who, having weighed it carefully and after much haggling, paid him a fraction less per pound for it than he might have perhaps obtained elsewhere. Meeting him next day, he was instantly aware there was trouble in the wind by the opening remark, "What do pike feed on, Paddy?" "Och and include your honor, but there's mighty little hat comes amiss to thim lads," he an swered. "Frogs and fish, sticks and shtones they like well, but they would give their two eyes for flatirons."-English Country Gentleman.

Who can estimate the value of a sunny soul who scatters gladness and good cheer wherever he goes instead of gloom and sadness? Everybody is attracted to these cheerful faces and sunny lives and repelled by the gloomy. the morose and the sad. We envy people who radiate cheer wherever they go and fling out gladness from every pore, Money, houses and lands look contemptible beside such a disposition. The ability to radiate sunshine is a greater power than beauty or than mere mental accomplishments. - Suc

The Best Qualified Graduate. It is the custom of the graduating class of the medical department of Queen's university of Kingston, Canada, to designate by ballot the fellow student who they believe could be expected "to do the right thing under all circumstances." The successful student is honored with a special prize by the faculty. We believe that such a man is really the most capable of his class and if not identical with the gold medalist is probably his superior in all that goes to make up the scientific and successful practitioner. New York Medical Journal.

The most valuable aloes come from the island of Bokotra, which lies just off the east African coast from Cape Guardafui. The drug itself is the bit-ter resinous juice of the leaves of the aloe plant that has been hardened in the sun. These leaves are of a fibrous, feshy nature, and, in addition to the juice, the natives make this fiber into rope, many insisting that it makes better rope than hemp.

Jokat's Joke. At a banquet held in his honor in the town of Torda, Maurus Jokal, the Hungarian writer, was called upon to propose the toast of "The Ladies." made an excellent speech, during which he continually toyed with the brown curls upon his forehead. Finally he said: "I raise my glass in honor of the gracious ladies of Torda. May they all live until my hair grows gray." audience drank to the toast, but it was easy to see by the faces of the ladies present that they did not think much of the compliment. Jokai rose again from his seat and took from his head a magnificent brown wig, showing an entirely bald bead beneath it. hair." he added, "will never grow gray." And the ladies, who had not known of his baldness, were more than pacified.

Two Headed Symbols.

Both Russia and Germany display two headed eagles on their standards Yet this symbol is considered by some heralds to be merely the result of the heraldic practice of "dimidiation." This was simply a child's way of impaling two coats of arms on the same shield by the primitive method of cutting each in half and taking the dexter half of one and the sinister half of the other and placing them back to back, as it were. Strange two headed beasts nat urally resulted, as, for instance, when a lion and an eagle were halved and joined together. The griffin is supposed to have been evolved from two ions rampant by dimidiation. It robs the two headed eagle of half its terrors to know that it owes its origin to this sort of child's play.

Childish Curiosity. Little Florence, aged six, had been spending the afternoon with a neighbor who had just lost a near relative, and who was working very hard to get some mourning gowns made. Florence had been very good and asked no questions, but when she returned home her inquisitiveness asserted itself. Her mother explained as clearly as she could, and for a few moments Florence sat in deep silence. Then: "Are all her gowns going to be black, mother?" "Yes, dear." "And is she going to wear black nightgowns?" "No, dear." Well, doesn't she feel just as bad in the night as she does in the day?" -Brooklyn Life.

"Sacred Ladybirds."

Among the insects that can be claimed as friends of the market grower probably none are more useful than the ladybirds. It is said that in mediaeval times this insect was sacred to the virgin, hence its popular name. "Although in these prosnic times we may." says the Fruitgrower, "have got over the superstition regarding the insect's sacredness so far as the virgin is concerned, for the good they do they should be sacred to every market grower. An Accommodation Train.

In the lake district of England there a tiny railway which has only one train run by two officials, one of whom is managing director, ticket collector, guard and porter and the other chief engineer, engine driver and stoker. The train stops anywhere. It frequently goes off the line, but crowbars are carried, with which the train is persuaded to return to its proper position. When a friend of either official is observed the train is brought to a standstill. At one time, when the managing director was courting the daughter of a former through whose lands the line ran, the young lady would take her stand at a certain gate every evening, the train would be stopped, and the young man would kiss her good night.
