SENATOR SIMMONS AND WATT'S BILL.

The report as published in the Raleigh papers of Senator Simmons' address to the State Democratic Executive Committee, after Mr Simmons had been elected State Chairman of the Democratic party, created an enormous idea in many minds, as it credited Chairman Simmons with claiming the Watts bill as being the most prominent issue in this State, upon which ele party was to do its chief fighting.

In an interview afterwards, Chairman Simmons is reported as follows:

"My remarks before the State committee were not correctly quoted in all respects in the Raleigh morning papers. I did not say that the Watts bill would be the paramount issue in this campaign or that there would be any paramount issue, nor do I believe it. The Republican party, by taking the side of liquor and assailing Democratic temperance legislation has made the Watts bill an issue, and the Democratic party will defend and support that legislation. But neither the Watts bill nor any other question will be paramount. We are not in the paramount business. There will be many issues upon which the Democratic party will go to the people of this State and ask for continuance of their confidence."

Just why the Watts law should be an all important issue, the Journal is unable to say, unless it should be said of it that it was the weak point in Democratic legislation, hence demanded the greatest support of the party.

If the Watts law is legislation inimical to the State's welfare, it will be the Democratic party's business to see to its repeal, because it is such a bad law, and not wait for its political enemies to force its repeal, through a fear of party defeat. The Watts law is no more than any other party legislation, for which the party must contend if it believes it a good law, and if unwise, then it should seek its repeal at the first opportunity and of its own accord, not by any political party fear, or because of political expediency.

When a political party begins seeking the expediency route, it is getting into shoal political waters, and will soon be hard aground, but these is nothing as yet to indicate that the North Carolina Democracy, is in such waters.

O'Connell's Wonderful Oratory.

Daniel O'Connell, the Irish orator, spoke in Covent Garden, London, many years ago, and John Coleman, an old English actor, pictured him as follows: "The audience hung spellbound on the words of the great orator. His resonant and magnificent voice, flavored with its rich Hibernian accent, held both soul and sense captive. As for me, my Celtic blood took fire, my heart throbbed with passionate indignation or melted into tears as he dwelt upon the wrongs of my beloved country. Surely, surely, was such a born orator! there ever before? cried one moment and laughed the next. Strange to say, they never laughed in the wrong place, though once at least he afforded them a unique opportunity. As he approached the end of his oration, carried away by his theme, he took his wig off (a practice I put it in his hat and mopped his beautiful bald brow with a gaily flashing crimson bandanna. The effect appeared so natural and appropriate that no one seemed to think it strange or even incongruous."

Medical Use of Whisky.

Whisky as an alternative to wine may undoubtedly be employed medicinally with advantage in certain cases, both for men and for women. But this is very different from the constant recommendation which is suggested, as if, indeed, doctors regard whisky as a sort of panacea for every disease under the sun, and take a perfect delight in urging its consumption upon their patients. As a matter of fact, there never was a time when medical men were more slow to prescribe the use of alcohol in any form than they are in the present day, nor a time when so many refrained from advising its use at all.—Hospital.

Burrus & Co's Cotton Letter.

New Bern Aug. 1st

There being no Liverpool market the cotton market here was without influence from that quarter. With the exception of August which opened 7 points lower, the early market was quite steady with prices generally higher than Saturday closing level. In addition to more or less farther support by the old bull crowd, prices reflected good buying by room traders based on the idea that the weather conditions throughout the South were not altogether favorable because of the excessive rains in some sections. The New Orleans Times-Democrat said that the condition of the crop was not wholly satisfactory, and also referred to the scarcity of labor and the boll weevil as additional factors operating against the crop prospects. This report was one of the early bull influences. Phila. spot houses bought moderately of October and under this influence the whole list strengthen and showed a disposition to advance further We think that owing to the present large short interests and to the fact that the weather in the cotton belt is so unsettled and damage claims may be reported from there any moment. We are inclined to lean toward the bull side of the market as the most profitable one for the present.

Not Neglected.

"The art of letter writing is sadly neglected nowadays," said the man of literary taste.

"That remark," said his more practical friend, "shows that you haven't a son at college who is applying himself to showing you why his allowance ought to be increased."—Washington Star.

Family of Rats End Life Together.

In the yard of a local residence, a pathetic sight was seen the other morning. Near the water faucet was a family of dead rats. They had eaten Stearns' Electric Rat and Roach Paste and rushed out of the house to the nearest point where there was water, and gave up life together. Stearns' Electric Rat and Roach Paste is sure death. It is easy to use and absolutely guaranteed to kill cockroaches, water bugs, rats, mice, etc., driving them out of the house to die. Druggists generally have the Paste for sale, or package will be sent, express prepaid on receipt of price by the Stearns Electric Paste Co., Tribune Building, Chicago, Ill. Small size, 25c. HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Startling.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew Veeder, after boarding for years at a hotel near Jackson park, held a consultation one evening last week and decided to rent a flat and go to housekeeping.

The next day they secured the flat.

Then Mrs. Veeder went to a large establishment downtown and bought a complete outfit of furniture and housekeeping supplies, ordering its delivery two days thereafter.

Punctually at the appointed time the outfit came in two large wagons.

The men unloaded the things, carried them into the house and at Mrs. Veeder's request took off the wrappings.

She checked off the articles one by one and inspected them carefully.

Not a thing was missing.

Nothing was broken.

There was not a scratch on any article of furniture.

This was so obviously impossible that Mrs. Veeder could not believe her eyes. She was convinced that she must be going crazy.

In alarm she ran out into the hallway, called loudly to her husband—and awoke.

It was all a dream.—Chicago Tribune.

A Blasted Hope.

"I cannot help telling you again that I love you," said Mr. De Trop. "Can you not hold out any hope?"

"I did hold out one hope," replied Miss Pechis, wearily, "but that's gone now."

"What was it? I"—

"I had hoped you wouldn't mention this subject again." — Philadelphia Press.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. Its the best salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when burns, sores, ulcers and piles threaten. Only 25, at C D Bradham's drug store.

"Maarifah" River.

Maxwell Sommerville of the University of Pennsylvania spent nearly forty years of his life in oriental travel and study.

Professor Sommerville used sometimes to narrate the strange error that was once made by a French explorer he had known. This explorer had made a journey to Kairwan and had drawn a map of the country he passed through. The singular thing about this map was that the name "Maarifah" appeared so many times on it. A river would be the Maarifah river; a mountain would be Mount Maarifah; a village, a lake, a valley, each would be called Maarifah.

When Professor Sommerville saw this map he laughed.

"Don't you know," he said to the traveler, "what 'maarifah' means in Arabic?"

"No," said the other. "What does it mean?"

"It means 'Don't know.'"

A Jealous Ape.

Sir Harry Johnston, the English explorer, once traveled on a ship with a pet ape. It was a great favorite with all the passengers until there came aboard at Madeira a lady with an infant. The latter received a good deal of attention and the ape in consequence became neglected and jealous. Sir Harry Johnston followed it on deck one day just in time to prevent a tragedy. The child had been left unguarded for a moment in its cradle. The ape had made for it, pulled it from the cradle and was in the act of throwing it overboard when the traveler pounced upon it. Says Sir Harry, "It would certainly have hurled it into the sea had not my arrival caused the guilty ape to drop the child on the deck and scramble away." The ape was relegated to a strong iron cage for the rest of that voyage.

Kitchen Helps.

If borax is added to the water dishcloths are washed in, it will help to keep them a nice color.

Don't keep the drafts open when you are not using the fire. It not only burns away coal, but ruins the fire brick as well.

Cement the seams and edges of the kitchen linoleum if durability is wanted. The cement fills the cracks and prevents water from running under it. Cracks in a cooking stove can be satisfactorily filled by paste made of six parts of common wood ashes to one part of table salt mixed with cold water. Properly mixed it will prove lasting and will take blacking.

A Pretty Novelty.

A pretty novelty is the work table, which could easily be made at home by a clever girl. This consists of a table somewhat similar in shape to the eighteenth century coffee tables, the height up to that of one's elbow when sitting on an ordinary chair. The table has spindle legs, and the top should measure about fourteen inches square. It is inclosed round with pieces of thin wood measuring about six or seven inches deep. The inside must be lined with quilted satin which has had various little pockets and pincushions sewed on it. The outside can be stained or enameled, and imitation marquetry looks especially well on it, as the sides afford exceptional opportunities for the display of those fascinating wreaths and ribbons dear to the heart of the old marquetry workers. Poker and nail work is also effective, and it should be borne in mind that this table is intended for ornament as well as use and its decoration carefully studied. The contents can be protected from dust by a loose satin cover elaborately embroidered in silks, ribbon work or applique.

The modern mutton sheep must also be a wool producer, says the Farm and Stock Journal. Time was when the fleece was regarded as of more importance than the carcass, and the sheep then kept on American farms were of a character to meet the requirement of heavy fleeces to a relatively light carcass. But this condition has changed from various causes, the principal one being the steady increase in the demand for mutton, which made it the more profitable end of the sheep. The American Merino has been replaced by the Down and long wool English breeds, whose mutton qualities have been carefully developed for years, not much attention being paid to the fleece. So now it is mutton and wool, instead of wool and mutton, as it was twenty years ago.

Guinea Hens on the Farm.

Guinea hens, both as useful and ornamental birds, should have a place on every farm. The only objection usually made against them is on account of their noisy outcries. One soon becomes accustomed to their peculiar music and hardly notices it or disregards it on account of their many desirable qualities. They are attractive to the sight, amusing in their habits and actions, and by many their flesh and eggs are considered superior articles of diet.—Orange Judd Farmer.

What the Trap Nest Shows.

If poultrymen could be persuaded to use trap nests they would be surprised to discover what differences in egg production exists between hens from the same flock. In the Maine experiment station test one White Wyandotte hen laid 219 eggs in a year and another not one. Of four Plymouth Rocks one laid six eggs and the other three 237, 240 and 251 respectively. The general use of the trap nest would double the profits of poultry keeping within five years.—Poultry Herald.

Don't Set Trees Too Deep.

Experiments in planting trees of different depths have been tested at a German experiment station with characteristic thoroughness. A number of trees were set at the usual depth and others at various depths, all lower than the nominal, to see what effect this would have upon the roots of the trees. In every case the tree, both in top and roots, grew more slowly with every increase in depth in planting beyond the usual depth.

Split Up the Flocks.

One of the chief reasons why poultry does not do well on some farms is because they are generally kept in too large flock, from 50 to 150 being frequently. If the flock was divided up and not more than twenty-five kept together the result would be a generally improvement in health and productiveness.

A new defense was sprung lately in an English criminal trial. It was pleaded on behalf of the defendant that he had once received an electrical shock of 2,000 volts and that it had impaired his mind.

Widening London bridge from fifty-three feet five inches to sixty-five feet has cost $3,500 a running inch. But its roadway, thirty-five feet wide, and its footwalks of fifteen feet width on either side are worth $500,000 more in increased facility for its enormous traffic.

Linens in checked patterns are the latest weave.

Sea green is one of the prettiest of the season's colors in lawns.

Messaline, taffeta mousseline and louisine are the silks generally employed for the frilly gowns of the day.

White, green and yellow, the last shading to orange, are the colors that take precedence for trimming purposes.

A pleasing effect of color is introduced by using a slip of organdie in floral pattern under gowns of white net.

Plenus of embroidered lawn or soft muslin are frequently seen on the bodices in preference to the more stiff draperies of silk.

Blouses of tucsan and fish net in white and ecru shades are exceedingly popular. They are worn over self color or contrasting linings.—Brooklyn Eagle.

RHEUMATISM

JOINTS AND MUSCLES SWOLLEN AND STIFF

A disease so painful and far-reaching in its effects upon the human system as Rheumatism, must have a deep and well-laid foundation. It originates and develops in the blood, and, like other diseases of the blood, is frequently inherited. The poisonous acids with which the blood is charged circulate through the system, breaking down the health, irritating the nerves, settling in joints and muscles, and causing the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to Rheumatism. Unless the blood is purified, joints and muscles become coated with the acrid matter and are rendered stiff and sore, and the nerves completely wrecked.

Columbus, O., May 30, 1903.
I had a severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism. I was laid up in bed for six months, and the doctors I had did me no good. They changed medicine every week, and nothing they prescribed seemed to help me. Finally I left off their medicine and began the use of S. S. S. My knees and elbow joints were so swollen and painful that I could not close them when opened. I was getting discouraged when I began S. S. S., but as I saw it was helping me, continued, and to-day am a sound, well man.
1355 Mt. Vernon Ave. R. H. CHAPMAN.

SSS Rheumatism, being a constitutional blood disease, requires internal treatment. Liniments, plasters and such things as are applied outwardly, give only temporary relief. S. S. S. is the recognized greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, and in no disease does it act so promptly and beneficially as Rheumatism, neutralizing the acids and restoring the blood to a pure, healthy condition and invigorating and toning up the nerves and all parts of the system. It is guaranteed strictly vegetable. Write us should you desire medical advice, which will cost you nothing.
