THE KICKER.

Craven County.

Moses was a kicker, so were many of the later prophets. Demosthenes in less remote times and Cicero still later were vigorous kickers. The whole history of the Anglo-Saxon race is a story of kicks and a chronicle of the triumphs of vigor ous kickers, No more formidabte body of kickers than the Continental Congress and the signers of the Declaration of Independence has the world ever seen. George 11 had no love for these American kickers. He had some kickers at home in Britain, such for instance, as Charles James Fox, Richard Brinsley Sheridan and Edmund Burke, but they were moderation itself and meekness compared with the George Washingtons the Benjamin Franklins, the Patrick Henrys and the Thomas Jeffersons, energetic kickers of a vigorous young continent. They never stopped kicking till the throne of George in America toppled over into the Atlantic. The republic has had the kicker with it ever since He has been often denounced and vituperated, but time has usually vindicated the justice of his position. Francis of Assissi, Savonarola and Luther were all, in their way, kickers, They were sneered at, threatened, punished, but the Society needs the kicker; also does every self-governing community and every deliberate body. He may be wrong at times, his views may embrace and consider only part of a subject, but if he be honest and persistent he awakens discussions, he draws out facts, and so in the long run illuminates public problems In a way that is helpful. There is a very marked difference between the kicker and the crank. The latter is simply misfit of negative use only to society. But the usefulness of the genuine kicker is positive. Who is it that keeps taxes from soaring too high? The kicker. Whom do extravagant municipal governments most fear? The kicker. Whom does the boodler and the grafter dread? The kicker. - Springfield Rebublican.

No Love Lost Between the Arnolds. John Denison Champlin told an amusing story of Matthews Arnold and Sir Edwin Arnold, "Some years ago," he paid, "when walking with Matthew Arnold on the banks of the little river Test, near Romsey abbey, conversation turned on Bir Edwin Arnold and "The Light of Asia, published four or five years previously. It is not necessary to enter into Mr. Arnold's opinion of the poem. During the conversation I took occasion to ask him if he were related to Sir Edwin. He paused a moment, as if shocked at the augretion, and then said: 'No, we are not of kin. Indeed, I doubt if he had any right to the name of Arnold. I have been told that he is of Jewish descent.' been told that he is of Jewish descent. A few weeks later I happened to most lie Edwin at a diamer in London and, prompted by, I hope, a not imparisonable curiosity, propounded a similar query to him 'No,' he replied quickly, with what neemed a shade of aspertly in his tone. Burrus & Co's Cotton Letter.

New Bern, Aug, 8rd

The cotton market opened quiet and lower. In response to lower cables from Liverpool favorable weather in the cotton belt, and the expectation of a favorable monthly government report at noon today. Traders awaited the report with much anxiety and were indisposed to take any definite stand pending the publica ion of same. The report was more favorable than had been anticipated, as a condition of about 90 was what the trade looked for. While the present condition are favorable to the rop, they must remain perfect to insure the big yield as predicted and as this is a trying period, any unfavorable weather their merit and the value of their teachwould bring enormous damage to the plant. We are inclined to favor the long side for the present.

RAILWAY HUMBLED.

Wages paid street car men in the United States annually amount more than $88,000,000. The maximum load on the Transsi berian railroad is only 500 tons. In America 2,500 tons comprise the aver age load.

Japan has only half as many miles of railroad as New York state, although it is three times as large and has six times its population.

The Wilmington and Weldon railroad, now a part of the Atlantic Coast line system, boasts of an unusual his tory. It is seventy-one years old and has never killed a passenger. It is 162 miles long and at the time of its construction was the longest railroad in the world.

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. Hair preparations and dandruff cures as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. There is a pretty prevalent belief that blotting paper is a modern invention; that a hundred years ago it was un-known, white sand being used in its

was a recognized convenience of the writing desk as far back as 1675. In that year there was issued a book called "Townsend's Preparative to Pleading," a copy of which is in the possession of a Chicago antiquary, and this volume contains on page 8 the following para-

"Let the dusting or sanding in books be avoided, rather using fine brown paper to prevent blotting if time of the link's drying cannot be allowed, for sand takes away the good color of the ink, and, getting into the backs of books, makes them break their bind-

The sand that was used for blotting in the past was, the Chicago antiquary says, very clean and white and fine, and it was called silver sand. It was kept in a cruet with a perforated lid, like a salt cruet, and thence it was sifted over the wet writing. An odd thing about it was that the ink never seemed to stain it. It could be used over and over and it remained to the end as white as snow.

BATTLE STANDARDS.

So Ancient That Their Use Is Me tioned in the Bible.

The custom of carrying flags or stand ards in battle dates back at least to 1490 B. C. We find in Numbers ii, 2, that "every man of the children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard with the ensign of his father's house." Each standard of the twelve tribes thus distinguished was supposed to have been of a color to correspond with the stone in Aaron's breastplate which bore the name of that tribe. Under the reneric name banner are included many species, such as standard, ensign, pennon, flag, etc. These have been used from earliest times and in all countries to direct movements of troops.

The earliest Roman standard was bundle of straw fixed to the top of spear. This was succeeded by figures of animals, such as the horse and the boar, which soon gave place to the engle, the chief Roman ensign, afterward assumed by the German and French emperors. By every warlike people the banner has been regarded as an emblem of national honor, in defense of which each soldier was at all times ready to die, while banners and flags taken from the enemy have always been special trophies of victory to which places of honor in public buildings have been assigned.

BOOTS AND SPURS.

Quaint Account of Hungarian Cav-

A contemporary manuscript account of the diet of Ratisbon, held in 1630 by the Emperor Ferdinand II, on the occasion of the landing of Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden in Germany, mentions as a remarkable fact that the Hungarian cavalry who rode through the streets to the ceremonial wore their spurs on their boot soles.

It is difficult to credit that these spurs were fixed on the flat of the boot, for thus shod the horsemen could netther walk nor stand, especially when the large size of the spurs worn at the look for the name De Witt on every box. period is considered. Frederick von Raumer, who quotes this in his "History of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries, Illustrated by Original Documents," passes the matter over without comment. The same manuscript adds that the Hungarian horses had their manes, tails and feet painted red.

Ancient Drinking Guilds. It is gravely said by an authority that the Dutch guilds, the most ancient of workingmen's organizations, had their origin in the drinking guilds, which, although they did not, as in the case of the Greeks and Romans, exalt drink to the rank of a delty, made it a kind of civic dignitary. These drink gullds and drink brethren existed from the earliest times until the latter par of the sixteenth century, when their excesses led to their suppression. It is held that men who worked together drank together and thus formed the primitive club which developed into the guild.-Notes and Queries.

Hose of Olden Time, In the very long ago bose were not stockings as now worn, but made long and were often drawn up even to the waist, and, oddly enough, had pockets in their sides. We read, moreover, that in the time of the Tudors and Stuarts they were of great variety, both of material and color, and for such as could command the luxury were richly trimmed and costly; they were often called "nether stocks."

"Don't be afraid of making me angry by telling me your candid opinion of my verses, old fellow. Criticism doesn't "I know that, my dear boy, but the ifference with your yernes either."

THE SNIPE'S DRUMMING.

It is disputed whether the snipe's frumming—a curleus noise, suggestive of a miniature threshing machine—is ade by the bird with its wings or by its tail or by both wings and tail. ngly to believe that the tall plays, it any rate, the more important part. During the performance the bird flies at a great height round and round in a wide, sweeping circle. At intervals he makes a sudden and rapid descent, holding his wings partly flexed and his tail spread to its full extent. The outermost tail feather on either side points outward at a greater angle than those adjoining it, so that when the bird is watched through a good field glass day light shows between it and the next. and, if I am right in my view, the drumming sound is due to the rush of air against this isolated feather. The snipe's tail feathers seem so puny that it is at first difficult to believe that they can produce so great a result. But if an outer one be taken-it is slightly scimiter shaped, with the outer web much reduced - and swung rapidly through the air the drumming noise may be distinctly heard, though it seems but a very faint echo of the loud, throbbing hum that startles one when it suddenly descends from an ethereal height, and the small bird is descried, hardly more than a speck to the naked eye, circling round in wild career and now and then swooping headlong downward and thrilling the air with his weird music.-London Na-

THE LITERARY DETECTIVE. His Hunt Is One That Adds Spice to

His Reading. There is a certain type of literary man who seems content to take little part in the struggle of letters beyond keeping an eye on his contemporaries and nouncing down on them every now and then to accuse them of having given a meaning to such and such a word which that word should not pos sess. It is strange that the number of these literary detectives is not larger. for there are few more fascinating occupations than this. It lends a spice to one's reading. The dullest book becomes as readable as the most deftly written novel. Certain words have taken to themselves meanings in the course of time which they have no right to possess. "Phenomenon" is a very hardened offender. To use this word as meaning something "strange" instead of something "that appears and is visible" is to insure arrest at the hands of the detective. Lately the word "temper" has been exposed Through long impunity it has come to imply bad temper, whereas, if it had its rights, it should mean just the reverse. We strongly advise every one who desires a never failing source of amusement to read the next novel he takes up with the eye of the detective. Starting with the easier words, like "phenomenon," the novice may go on from strength to strength until before long nothing can escape him. The exercise, moreover, is not only a pleasure, but a duty.-London Globe.

Why Windmills Burned Down. Of the production of fire by the fric tion of wood against wood windmills of the old construction gave on a large scale some disastrous exa the force of the wind increased the miller was obliged to bring each of the sails in succession to the ground in order to unclothe it, but when sudden squalls came on this was impracticable, and the mill in extreme cases ran away-that is, could not be stopped. Everything was now done to increase the grip of the wooden brake round the great wheel on the driving shaft, and water was poured copiously over them. but in spite of all this flames would sometimes burst out from the intense friction and the mill be probably burned down as the result. The beautiful machinery of the modern windmill, by which the miller controls the action of the sails from the interior of the building, has reduced this danger to minimum.-Notes and Queries.

There are 100 different varieties of nemory, and perhaps we cannot altoether choose which we will possess, though every sort, when we have the germs of it, may be cultivated. To learn anything by heart the best plan is to read a sentence and repeat it without a book, then read the next sentence and repeat the two, and so on. Repetition is of great importance, "line upon line." More is learned and remembered by reading through one book twice than by reading two books once, After a thing has been learned It must be recalled and gone over at intervals, or the impression will fade away.
