SOLDIERS KILLED

Riding on Top of Cars Struck By Bridge

On A. A. N. C. Road Near Goldsboro. Had Refused To Come Down. Railroad Not To Blame.

Special to Journal.

Goldsboro, Aug. 19.—As a second section of troop train moving the State Guard from Morehead stopped at La Grange for a few minutes this afternoon, four soldiers got off and climbed themselves with something to drink and climbed up on the top of the coaches.

When two miles from Goldsboro, at Stoney Creek bridge, they were struck by the heavy timber of the bridge. They were sitting with their backs to the engine. They were privates Barney Warren, Ben Johnson, S. F. Oates and Will McDade. Warren and Johnson were killed instantly. Their heads being crushed. Oates and McDade received fearful head wounds.

They were all of Company A of Durham. They were not found until train reached Goldsboro and were all found lying on top of the car.

Oates was able to go on to Durham with his company, but McDade is in Goldsboro hospital. He is not expected to live. No fault is attached to railroad, as they were told to come down by Captain White, but refused.

Memories of The Confederacy

One of the most interesting contributions yet made to the literature of the Civil War appears in the September No. of the Confederate magazine. The article is entitled "Memories of the Beginning and End of the Southern Confederacy," being unpublished chapters of history from the reminiscences of Louise Wigfall Wright, daughter of Louis T. Wigfall, senator from Texas to the United States Senate and later to the Confederate Senate and also an officer on the staff of Jefferson Davis. The article consists of a series of letters written at the outbreak and close of the war, which reflect with remarkable accuracy and interest the thought and spirit of the times. They reveal the inside life of the Southern people and reflect all the tragedy of high hope and blue disappointment in their dear lost cause.

The letters are written by members of the Wigfall family and others high in the councils of the confederacy, as speak with authority. A number of interesting contemporary portraits as well as drawings, by W. R. Leigh, illustrate the article.

LANTERN PARADE DRILL

A Beautiful Event Given by the Children. Curious Designs Displayed.

The annual lantern parade occurred last night and the sight was very pretty. About fifty children with variegated designs and shapes of lanterns made the procession. It presented a grotesque and almost a weird sight as it moved slowly through the streets.

The designs were unique, some were anything but pretty, but that was the object desired. One lantern was made in the shape of a house, another had the form of a three masted ship pasted on it, a beautiful design, another had some of the songs of mother Goose illustrated and others had figures of animals. All were ingenious and artistic.

A fine feature was the drill which was given after the parade by about 30 little girls. The evolutions were all pretty made and the lanterns added much to the appearance of the performance.

The Academy green where the drill was held and the ice cream was served was crowded with interested spectators who were immensely pleased with the exhibition. The ladies of the Methodist church realized a handsome profit from the entertainment.

Turkey Gets Bold With Warships

Berlin, August 19.—The Frankfurter Zeitung asserts that the Porte has indulged in sharp practices in its dealings with the United States in the matter of the letter's demands for proper treatment of American schools in Turkey, etc. The American minister, the paper states, after thanking the Porte for a satisfactory settlement, received the reply that he had misunderstood the Turkish note, which did not concede the American demands.

MORE CONVICTS ESCAPE

North Carolinians at St. Louis. More Lease Talk. Melon Wilt Examination. Campaign Literature Sent Out.

Raleigh, N. C., August 19th.—It is said that thus far over 3,000 persons from this State have visited the St. Louis exposition. The exposition has injured the resorts in the State, notably those in the mountains.

State Chairman Simmons is now sending out quantities of campaign literature, mainly speeches made by Democrats in Congress, Claude Kitchen and others. In a few days a pamphlet will be sent out containing the State and national platforms and the speeches made at Greensboro State Convention by Governor Aycock and others.

Two more convicts have escaped from the gang at work on the Raleigh and Pamlico Sound Railway. A few days ago five escaped, three white and two colored. These went to a house, having in some way secured citizens' clothing and upon asking for food were given a bucket full. They have been traced to about the Virginia line.

The Governor as yet has before him only the two bids for the Atlantic and North Carolina lease, that from R. B. Howland and that from the Atlantic Railway Company the latter composed of H. L. Finlayson of Goldsboro and others. It is said that the latter company has a strong financial backing. It meets at Goldsboro tomorrow. There is a current rumor that some persons on the line of the road will form a company and make a bid for the lease but not much stress is put upon this.

William A. Orton of the bureau of plant industry of the U. S. Agricultural department yesterday visited the water-melon fields near Garner in this county where the melon wilt has injured crops so much. This wilt prevails in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida and has not been long in North Carolina, only two seasons, having appeared in Wake Wilson, Johnston and Currituck counties. For ten years it has been established in the other States. The only remedy is by rotation of crops, and not to plant melons in the same land except after intervals of from 7 to 15 years. There is a wilt on cotton in Pitt and Duplin which is due to a fungus quite like that which causes the melon wilt, this having come from the South, being particularly bad in the Gulf States. There is another disease in the cow pea and the cabbage, rotation is the cure for all these troubles.

The tests made by the U. S. Agricultural Department at Garner in this county were with 216 kinds of water-melon seed, planted on 21 acres, to see which had the greatest resisting power. One of the great troubles is that the melon growers do not believe in the experiments.

State Auditor Dixon says that next week the State pension board meets and will begin work on the pension list for this year. As yet all the returns from the county boards have not come in and this causes some trouble.

Is He A Black Sheep?

The Journal office has received a copy of Daily News published at Houston, Texas, containing a story about one John Foy. It seems that the man was apparently "on the hog" but lack of pride seemed to make him more bold and he is alleged to be imposing on the charitable disposed people of Houston by soliciting money for the purpose of getting to his home in North Carolina.

A gentleman named Holmeas, formerly a resident of this State, interested himself in the man's behalf and corresponded with a number of people in Raleigh to ascertain the identity of Foy. His little light was thrown on the case and it appears that he has no connection here.

He is described as being 57 years old, 6 feet tall and weighs 160 pounds. He is badly afflicted being in the incipient stages of consumption and has also other troubles aggravated by indulgence in drink. He has taken advantage of his pitiable condition as a means of getting money to return to North Carolina where he can pass his last days with friends. He has, however, turned the cash thus obtained to other uses and purchased liquor, and when under the influence has the faculty of making himself a general nuisance. The people of Houston, if the paper has not exaggerated the case, have been greatly bothered by the man.

We are informed that Foy belongs to a Kingston family and has long had a disreputable character. It has been a long time since he was in this section, he has the same bad reputation that he had in Houston.
