NEW BERN, N. C., Nov. 8, 1904

IT IS WORTH THE EFFORT.

This month will see most of the im portant railroad offices of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad Company removed from this city to Goldsboro.

This is not merely a business loss to New Bern, but it removes those who have the conduct and the supposed interests of this railroad property, from the center of the system, to one end of the line, so that whatever may be the good intentions of the railroad management, their attention is certain to be more directed to the place where their offices are, than to other points along the line. This is the new Lessee's bust ness, and the Journal is not saying a word as to what Mr Howland may wish to do, so that he can make good his bargain under his contract with North Carolins, in the lease matter.

But on the other hand what concern and affects the business interests of New Bern is important, not only to the Journal, but to every resident, business man, merchant, and property holder. The removal of any real business interest, or people who are workers, is of commercial importance to this city. It touches every business interest, It means a loss or-profit to every person doing business. It affects the banks, the merchants, and touching so closely every citizen's interests, it demands the attention of every one who is interested in the present and future prosperity of

New Bern. Every effort which means the strength ening of this city's resources and financial ability, means something added to its growth and prosperity. And every thing which goes from here means its proportional loss in the assets of this

The Howland Improvement Co, has removed its railroad offices from this city. What a contunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering for how polyment would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming giver, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance was doomed forever. Nature always sparse the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her sid. SOUTH AMERICAN ANTS.

What are the most dangerous and troublesome beasts you ever encoun-tered?' a famous big game hunter was asked, after he had finished telling a string of yarms about his ad-rentures in South America. "Ants," he replied. "They are far worse than bears, jaguars, alligators or any other beasts about whom hair raising stories are told. They give the hunter in tropical and subtropical countries more trouble than anything

"Once I rested my gun against tree to take aim at a deer. There was an ants' nest in that tree. As soon as I fired the ants tumbled out in swarms and fell all over my guide and myself. "We were nearly stung to death and had to tear our clothes off and wallow up to our necks in the mud of a nearby swamp before we could get any relief. "Another time I climbed a tree to wait for mountain lions. I did not the trunk, for the ants were all indoors when I climbed up. I shot a mountain lion and started to climb down, but the ants had been disturbed by the firing and they swarmed all around that tree trunk by millions. I had to slide over them. and I didn't forget it for a week."

ACADEMY OF BRAN.

Celebrated Italian Literary Insti-The Academy of Bran was the most relebrated of Italian literary academles, and its title was borrowed from a previous literary society at Perugia, the Accademia degit Scossi, or the device of the earlier society was a deve, and its motto "Il plu bel flor ne coglie" (It collects the finest flour). The principal object of the Brau society, the Accademia della Crusca, was the purification of the Italian language, in order to effect which, in the spirit of pedantry common to the age, it reintroduced many obsolete words which had been replaced by more effective derivative forms or foreign adaptations. Its greatest work was the Vocabularlo della Crusca, the Vocabulary of the Bran, published in 1613. The whole tone of this work was archaic. It affected to regard the fourteenth century as the Augustan age of Italian literature and endeavored to make the standard of that period a standard for all time. The Accademia della Crusca is now incorporated with two older societies, the Apatici, or Imartials, and the Florentine academy.

ANIMAL TAILS.

ome That Are Quite Useful as Well as Ornamental.

The tail, or, more strictly speaking. the caudal fin, of a fish is, says Professor Seeley, "the great organ of motion." and among the mammalla we find several useful tails. The most remarkable is, perhaps that common to most American mon owing to its prehensile powers. The yellow tailed howler, if it is shot when hanging by the tail, will remain suspended for some hours, so tight is the grip. Humboldt noted in South America how spider monkeys form themselves into clusters by means of their limbs and tails, the whole group being suspended from a bough by the tail of the strongest. The long, thick tail of the kangaroo, heavy hind quarters, especially when the animal leans forward to browse and also aids in supporting it when in its characteristic upright position, is also a most valuable appendage.

A Grewsome Exhibit. An agent of a cinematograph company, it is reported, has come to an arrangement with the governor of Canton, China, by which all executions are to be saved up for one mouth. The exact number of dollars required to in sult the poob-bah of Canton sufficient ly to lead bim to make such an ar rangement is not stated, but the idea is that by postponing the daily execu tions till the end of the month there will then be the respectable number of 200 to be polished off, and the moving picture man hopes thus to secure i charming and delightful film for the enefit of his patrons.
