WEATHER BUREAU REPORT

Climate and Crop Conditions For October.

Dry and Cold Very Unusual Increase in State Banks. Two Important Supreme Court Decisions. Daughters Confederacy Visit Soldiers Home.

Raleigh, Nov. 16.—The climate and crop report of the weather bureau for North Carolina for the month of October was issued today. The feature of the month was the drought, which was very remarkable. At Lynville there was no rainfall from September 5th to October 8th, a period of 57 days. The condition was much as is associated only with the Arid regions of the west. The weather was colder than the average, with frequent frosts, some killing. The weather was very favorable for harvesting, but the severe drought injured all fall crops and almost entirely prevented plowing for winter wheat which was very backward. Cotton was practically all picked by the end of October and most of the corn was gathered. The minor crops yielded fairly well. Pastures and clover were injured by drought. The monthly mean temperature was 57.7 degrees, which is 2 degrees below normal. The highest being at Hatteras, and the lowest at Lynville. The highest absolute temperature was 98 degrees on the 11th at Southern Pines and the lowest was 14 degrees at Lynville on the 24th, the monthly range being 79 degrees. The greatest daily range was 55 degrees on the 15th, at Mount Airy. The average rainfall was 1.36, which was 2.23 inches below normal. The average number of clear days was 22.

Governor Aycock will deliver an address before the teachers and pupils of the graded schools at Statesville Friday evening.

This afternoon the local chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy made a visit to the Soldiers Home. These visits are to be made monthly features.

There are now 193 State, private and savings banks in North Carolina, this number showing the most remarkable increase over that of a year ago.

The Supreme court decides that if a man is acquitted of murder on the plea of insanity and is committed to the criminal insane department at the penitentiary he shall remain there, even if he regains his right mind, until a special act of the legislature shall restore him to liberty, is unconstitutional. This law was enacted in 1899. The Supreme court remands to a jury trial, the case of Reid vs the Edna Cotton Mill, this being the case in which a steam whistle was complained of as a nuisance.

GIVES RELIEF QUICKLY

Regular Use of Hyomet Cures Most Stubborn Case of Catarrh.

No other medicine gives such prompt relief as Hyomet in the treatment of catarrh.

The first breath of this remedy soothes and heals the irritated and smarting air passages, and the regular use for a few days or weeks will cure the most stubborn case. Some of the reports of those who have been cured of catarrh by Hyomet read like miracles.

John S Gray of Redmond Hill, Pa, writes:

"I am 52 years old and have been a sufferer of catarrh in the head for 20 or 30 years. I have doctored with many specialists and they all told me that the disease was incurable on account of my age. After using Hyomet a short time I was greatly benefited and can now say that I am entirely cured. It has been six months since I stopped using the remedy and I still remain cured."

The complete Hyomet outfit costs but $1, consisting of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomet to last several weeks. This will effect a cure in ordinary cases, but for chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh, longer use may be necessary, and then extra bottles of Hyomet can be obtained for 50c. Probably the strongest evidence that can be offered as to the powers of Hyomet to cure catarrh is the fact that F S Duffy will agree to refund the money if you say that Hyomet has not helped you.

A truthful farmer relates that he put a porcelain egg in the nest of a hen and found that the egg she laid were of increased size. Then he put a goose egg in the nest. The hen laid an egg just as large. He was so pleased with the scheme that he put a whitewashed football in the nest. When he went the next time to search for eggs he found one as big as a football, but he had no sight. Securing the egg, he saw engraved on it by her photography these words, "I'm no straggler, but I've done my best." Later he found the hen to be the egg.

Rich merchants is caused by a deep, deep condition of the stomach and is just as sure as death. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is the only cure.

PUSHED UNDER TRAIN.

Frank Abbott Loses His Left Arm by the Cruel Act of a Negro.

A dastardly trick was done last night the result of which a young white boy, lost his left arm and the question of his recovery is a matter of doubt.

Last night Frank Abbott was pushed under the Atlantic Coast Line passenger train by a negro. He had his bicycle at the time and was close to the track near the cemetery. The negro was on foot and was supposed to be standing near the entrance, when the train had reached this point the negro got off the train, and the boy was in the act of getting on his wheel the negro took hold of the boy saying, "Get out the way you white under the train" and with that the boy fell, going between the cars, the wheels passed over Abbott's left arm severing it at the shoulder.

He was picked up and carried into Prof W G Avanti's house where every attention was given him until the railway company's physician, Dr Duffy arrived. After an examination of the wound by Drs. Francis Duffy and Duguid, the boy was removed to the latter's office where it was dressed. The arm was cut off by the wheel almost as clean as if a knife had been used and there was but few threads of skin hanging from the shoulder joint.

At eight o'clock the doctors thought the chances for the boy's recovery were favorable, he was then under the influence of chloroform and they hoped that the reaction would result well.

Frank Abbott is the son of Mrs Elizabeth Abbott living at No. 37 Avenue A, Dunn's Field. He is a bright, intelligent boy of about 17 years of age and is employed by the Blades Lumber Co., as tallyer.

John Gillette, a colored boy, was arrested by officers Lupton and Bryan at 8 o'clock last night and witnesses have been found who saw him push Frank under the train. Officer Bryan got a description of the man at the depot and with Mr Lupton went along Queen street nearly to Five Points where they saw a crowd of negroes and found the boy. He is a well known character in the police court and learning his name they had no trouble in locating him. Gillette was half drunk and unable to give a satisfactory account of himself. He is an ugly looking negro and has a bad reputation. He limps as he walks and has mean unfavorable features. He was put into a cell at the county jail for fearing that the city jail was not strong enough. His preliminary trial will be heard by Mayor Ellis at next police court.

A MATTER OF HEALTH

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure HAS NO SUBSTITUTE

ROMANCE WITH LOCAL FLAVOR

Union Doctor Weds The Southern Woman Who Rejected Him Years Ago.

The following interesting story was taken from the Baltimore American of November 14th. It is one of few pretty romances of the war which has the advantage of being true.

New York, November 13.—The announcement of the marriage of Dr Cleve Iasid Willis Goff of this city, to Mrs Jane Lawson Ulmer, of Savannah Ga, will come as a surprise to the friends of the elderly physician, who was believed to be a hopeless bachelor. Few will know that it also marks the "good-story book" ending of a wartime romance, beginning in Newbern N C, in 1862. It does not lose its interest because Mrs Goff, herself, white-haired, told it last night.

Dr Goff, whose office is at 11 East Sixteenth street, was a young physician in Rochester when the call to arms came in 1861. He enlisted in the Third New York Cavalry, known as the Van Allen Cavalry, serving first as quartermaster, then rising to the rank of captain, and later doing duty as a surgeon.

Dr Goff was with the army that occupied Newbern N C, in 1862. There he met Miss Jane Lawson, daughter of a local merchant, and unless to say, at very ardent sympathizer of the Southern cause. The young surgeon fell in love with her.

"I am sure that my treatment of Dr Goff was not the kindest," said his wife last night. "In those days, of course, we could see nothing good in the Yankees. But he was persistent."

There was a young Confederate officer in the case at that time. He was James Ulmer, and he was also in love with Miss Lawson. That made Dr Goff's suit impossible, and he was told so plainly. What he said when he learned this was not revealed last night, but he continued to urge his suit, even after the war closed. That was all ended when a few years after the war, Miss Lawson became Mrs Ulmer and moved to Savannah, where her husband went into business.

Dr Goff returned to New York and began the practice of medicine. He had many patients, amassed a comfortable fortune, travelled extensively and in the opinion of his friends was a man whose heart had never been affected by any woman.

It is likely that the story would have ended here had not Mrs Ulmer paid a visit to this city in October. Mr Ulmer had died three years before. There were no children. She was comfortably well off and liked to travel. She did not know exactly how it happened, but one day at her hotel she thought of Dr Goff and wondered if he were still living. A directory gave his address and she called there.

Mrs Goff laughed last night when she came to this part of the story. "It was the doctor," she said. "Of course he had changed. For the matter both of us were well, a little older, but we were soon chatting about old times during the war. Then," Mrs Goff hesitated and a chuckle came from her husband.
