AN IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

The Annual Lodge of Sorrow Held
By The Elks.

Eloquent And Touching Address Delivered By Fred Harper, Esq.
Large Audience in Attendance.

"To live in thoughts of those we love is not to die."

Rarely has the beautiful virtue of brotherly love been exemplified than it was at the memorial exercises held at the New Masonic Theatre Sunday afternoon by the New Bern Lodge No 761 Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Elaborate and magnificent as the exercises were, however, it was only an incident in the life of the Elks lodge, for the history of that order is replete with good deeds and those good deeds are not always confined to the members but to suffering humanity everywhere.

About five hundred people gathered to pay respect to the deceased members of the local lodge and the services were not only impressive but elevating and inspiring. The mottoes of the order, Charity, Brotherly Love, Fidelity and Justice, were displayed in the room and as the exercises progressed the audience saw how well those mottoes were sustained. The program was carried out as published with but little change. Exalted Ruler, E W Rosenthal presided gracefully. In the Lodge ceremonies the officia's who responded to the questions of the Exalted Ruler were S W Hancock, Esteemed Lecturing Knight, J G Dunn, Esteemed Leading Knight, N C Hughes, Esteemed Loyal Knight, T C Danie's, Secretary, H C Lumsden, Treasurer and John Harget, Inner-Guard.

The music was a feature which was greatly enjoyed. The Riel Italian Orchestra whose selections have so often pleased the people of New Bern lent a charm and solemnity to the occasion. Mr J W Watson sang with very pleasing effect the song entitled "The Great White Throne." Miss Agnes Sadler charmingly sang a solo "Oh, Lord be Merciful"

The memoirs of the deceased members, David Farrow Foy and Ferdinand Ulrich, were consecrated with touching and eloquent eulogies by T C Daniels and S W Hancock.

The oration delivered by Mr Fred Harper, of Lynchburg Va, was the most beautiful and eloquent address that it has been the pleasure of a New Bern audience to listen to for many a year. The speaker carried all through the idea of the strength of the order as well as the observance of their peculiar tenets.

THE CARDINAL PRINCIPLE OF ELKHOOD.

It is related by that great philosopher and moralist, Aesop, that a father once called his son about him and, taking a small bagot of wood in his hand, he broke it with ease; but when he had bound several of the small bagots together though he exerted all his strength he was unable to rend them asunder. He thus illustrated to them that great principle of social economies--in union there is strength.

The well known fable crystallized this great principle in a few words and pointed it with an illustration that has lived for centuries. But Aesop was by no means the first to recognize or understand its force. Ages before his eyes ever opened to the light of day, his far upon the track of time, when the world itself was young, or over the divine Chlo had grasped her pen to make record of the glorious deeds of man, the lesson had been learned; and the prohibitive savages who roamed the forests wild had formed into tribes in obedience to its law.

In union there is strength. And this great country to which we all owe allegiance today, which has fought its way through power and glory from the most humble to the most exalted seat in the council chamber of the nations, whose history has been alike the wonder and admiration of the entire world, able to stand its independence through a knowledge of its truth and an adherence to this doctrine covers us a wondrous future whose glory shall surpass "the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome," and shall be but a fainter reflection of the everlasting stars.

In 1888 a few chosen spirits of the theosophical profession had formed a bond, and little among for purely social purposes. It happened that the members of were very much restricted. But it was not long before their wisdom foresaw the possibility of a great and good work. There was the cup of cold water to be given in charity, there were the sick to be visited, there was want and distress to be relieved; the brotherhood of man to be taught; high aims and aspirations in life to be cultivated. And as these noble founders knew the weakness and futility of individual effort amidst the trials and discouragements of life; that the thought of another's hand gives courage; the glance of a friendly eye renews hope; that a kind word restores vigor and determination; that in union there is strength and that strength ensures the victory; they opened wide their doors to every American citizen, be he Jew or gentile, pagan or christian, actor or artisan, priest or printer, asking only that his character be worthy, that he believe in the existence of a Supreme Being, and that he subscribe himself to the objects of the Order.

What are the objects that these united thousands have obligated themselves to promote? They are expressed in the four cardinal principles of the Order, Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity. And it has occurred to me that it might not be unjust on this occasion to explain briefly just what these cardinal principles mean in their practical relation to the Order of Elks.

And if the discussion, brief as it must be, shall lead to a more serious consideration of the objects of the order on the part of its members, if it shall lead to a more earnest contemplation of its possibilities for good, if it shall serve to eradicate from the public mind some of the erroneous impressions that have unfortunately found lodgment there, then it will indeed have served a most useful purpose beyond which I could not dare to hope.

CHARITY.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks questions no man's religion, nor bars him on account of his creed. It does not seek to teach any doctrine of any sect. It is in no sense a religious order. But it does strive to cultivate and enlarge that noble quality of the human heart which is embraced in the teachings of all religions, charity.

It was Pope who said:
"To faith and hope the world will disagree;
"But All mankind's concern is charity."

And as it is the concern of all mankind, so it is the particular concern of every Elk for it is the very foundation stone upon which the whole Order is erected.

Charity is a word of many meanings and admits of many different interpretations, but in its fullest and freest significance it embraces all the other virtues for charity is love. It spreads its gentle influence abroad in the world and clothes the faults of all mankind in the garment of tender forgiveness.

It was cowardly fear that caused Cain to cry out, "Am I my brother's keeper?" It is selfishness that makes the so-called christian trouble his mind with the question, "Who is the neighbor that I am to love as myself?" But the man who has true charity in his heart awaits no ecclesiastical decree proclaiming the brotherhood of man. He accepts its truth as unflinchingly and as willingly as he does the fatherhood of God. And having accepted its truth, he assumes the duties and obligations that follow in its train.

Is a kind word needed to cheer a downcast heart? He speaks it.
Has a weaker brother fallen to where he lies too weak to rise? He grasps his hand, raises him to his feet and lends him the untold strength of sympathy and fraternal love.

Does base calumny and the whispered lie, like hideous monsters, miring in the dark, assail his ears, seeking a friendly hearing? He blasts them with the withering fire of truth bravely spoken.
Gowns of silk and coats of broad-cloth are badges of no meaner blood in him than are printed cotton and humble homespun. "A man's man for a' that." And every man is his brother. The Good Samaritan, when he came upon the unfortunate traveler to Jericho who had fallen among thieves, did not examine his clothes but his wounds; he did not inquire his pedigree but his condition. And when he had provided for him at the Inn, he demanded no security for his debt.

Love ye another as you speak to the members of a particular family or to the influence of a particular religion. It was the command of the Master to all

TORTURING DISFIGURING
Skin, Scalp and Blood Humours

From Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age

Speedily Cured by Cuticura when All Else Fails.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalded head; the facial disfigurements, as in acne and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt-rheum--all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy, have made them the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the civilized world.

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely to all itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. This complete local and constitutional treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning and scaly humours of the skin, scalp and blood, and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure when all else fails.

Ask throughout the world: Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. (In form of Chocolate Coated Pills, per box of 25.) Ointment, 5c. Soap, 5c. Depot, London, 27, Chancery Lane, E.C. 4. Sole U.S. Agents, The Cuticura Mfg. Co., Boston, U.S.A. Put on the Cuticura Mfg. Co. Stamp for a Free Trial of Cuticura.

the listening world. And charity is but another name for that love. It reaches into the uttermost parts of the earth and ever was an open hand. Its tongue is taught no phrase of harshness. Its lips can speak no word of guile. But gentleness and truth ever attend upon its bidding. It exemplifies the truest worship of God. And it is this charity that has set a watchword for every faithful Elk.

PREST. ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE.

Congress Convened and Listens to the President's Advice.

Congress was called to order today and after organization the President's Message was read. The content were these--

He calls attention to the prosperity of the country but advises against extravagance. Battle ships, public buildings and water ways should only be considered when money is plenty. Capital and organized labor was given some attention touching as they do the National and social life. He advises arbitration and suggests a change in Federal and State laws to bring this about. No discrimination should be made by the government as to employment of union or non-union men.

Plans for beautifying the city of Washington were given. He commended the work of the agricultural department and suggested means of irrigating and restoring arid lands. National laws were suggested for the preservation of game. He refers to the Indians and their progress in Educational and Industrial affairs.

The tariff will be considered in a future message. Elections should be protected from fraud by special laws.

He commends the Jamestown exhibition urges an appropriation for it. The Government Printing office, he says, is operated to extravagantly and expenses should be reduced.

Stamp in Cotton Serious

Raleigh, December 5--The drop in cotton is felt in this section as a heavy blow. A great many farmers are holding their crop, and they now show no tendency to turn it loose. The penalties directors met today and stated that they had on hand all the cotton they had ginned, at least a thousand bales, all this being on the farm near Weldon. Most of it would have been sent to Norfolk, but for the fact that the Roanoke river has been so low that it could not be sent had it been at Norfolk perhaps some of it would have been sold. The directors are not in any need of money and say that they will hold the cotton. It is stated that an effort will be made for the general holding by growers and the turning loose of only small quantities at a time, as by taking this course and by greatly reducing the acreage next year, the price could no doubt be advanced very considerably. It was known that it was going to be a great crop as far as North Carolina is concerned as at least 15 per cent more acreage was planted, and then too the crop was a good one with a plentiful picking season.

Mr and Mrs Joseph S. Stevens, of Southport, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Monday.
