UNENFORCEABLE LAWS.

Every municipality must have a code of laws, by which its citizens are to be governed, and hardly a single municipality but which has more laws that are not enforced, than it has laws which are put into faithful execution upon offenders, regardless of their social or financial status in the community.

The unenforceable law may be terme the law which could legally be put into effect, but which an acquiescent public sentiment decrees shall not be enforced and every Mayor, Chief of Police, and even the policeman on duty, knows exactly the local sentiment, and passes by those who may violate these laws, of the non-enforceable character, and it does not need any public announce ment in the local newspaper to give notice what these non-enforceable laws

But while every municipality has such laws, there is no cessation in creating new laws and ordinances, which in turn will fall dead immediately after their enactment. These laws which may be for the restriction amelioration, or the absolute removal of some local abuse or offense against public morals and decency, arouse many workers for their enactment, yet these same workers once they have secured the passage of the law, are the people who will sit quietly by and see the law become an unenforceable one, because of a lax sense of public sentiment, which for some reason has be come indifferent on the matter, for which the very law was passed to govern and control

The public sentiment which dialikes the stringent enforcement of every local enactment is not peculiar to any one municipality, it is to be found everywhere, in a degree, yet the growth of this sentiment which excuses so easily the non-enforcement of the law in special instances, is a most danger- be enjoyed very much. Miss Joe guilty persons who deserve the full sen tence of the law, yet escape because of the previous and growing laxity of the enforcement of just laws in minor

THE NEW RAILROAD.

Will No Longer Be "Put Out And Walk. But The Real Thing.

Work on the Pamlico, Oriental Western Rail Road is progressing and farmers in that section who have waited for these many years to hear the mort of the steam horse will soon have their dreams realized. The road is beng constructed at the rate of a half mile per day. They have reached Goose Creek, beyond Reelsboro and the big trestle over that stream, 1,200 feet in ength, is rapidly approaching comple-

While the bridge is being finished, which will take several days, most of the work will be devoted to putting the road which has been built so far in a afe condition for travel. That done and the bridge ready for the rails there will be nothing to interfere with the completion of the road to Bayboro which it is hoped will be accomplished by June 1st.

revivalist, Rev. S. R. Stephens, de scribed as a Frenchman, told an au lience recently of the fearful ven geance visited by the Almighty upon a blasphemer in Ohio. According to Stephens this sinner had named a stalk of corn after the second person of the Trinity and one clear day went out with sicle and announced that he was going to cut it off the face of the earth. Immediately there came a clap of thunde and a tongue of fire descended upon the hapless wretch, who wondered to tell, broke out into a flame. He burned four days, parching the earth and causing fissures to appear in it. At last a hole was dug and the blazing carcass rolled into it, where it continued to burn three days longer. The revivelist said that he himself had seen this awful sight, although the heat was intense that he could not anproach the body closely. A hearer of Rev. Stephens branded this, story as a whopper and was sued for slander, the preacher declaring that he could prove the truth of the wonderous happen

The defendant has sent a letter to Governor Herrick from Florence, N. Stephens asserts. - Secretary Galloway has been assigned the task of verifying or disapproving the story. The writer of the letter avers that the revivalist is still preaching in North Carolina

ARBOREAL COURTSHIP.

Antics of the Rooks When the

"It is always amusing to watch the rooks in the period of their courtship." says an English writer, "When the male bird first begins to seek a mate the fact is soon made known to the world at large by a curious hoarsening of his voice. There is no accounting for tastes, according to an old proverb, and to the female rook there is no mu sic equal to the hoarseness that her 3,624 14 | lord begins to show about the middle of January. Then begin the violent tournaments of which she is a passive spectator. The two claimants for her favor often begin pecking at one an other at the very tops of the trees, and as in the fury of their onslaught they lose foothold they drop and drop and drop till they bump against the ground often at the very feet of some human onlooker who has been watching their proceedings with interested curiosity Darwin tells us of similar incidents is the life history of deer and cites as somewhat of an argument against th doctrine of the survival of the fittest that while two lordly and robust stag are fighting for the hind it will ofter happen that a timid and feeble third stag will come in and carry off the

"But no such capriciousness as that is allowed the female rook. Probably before the battle begins he who aspires to be her future lord and master has palected the home to which they are to live and should any other rook at tempt to share it with her he will figh him to the death. In this case the sur vival of the fittest is insured. When once they are mated the rooks eem to stick together and be subject to little further molestation, though occasionally, I think, a gay Lothario will not to. But in that case the whole col ony of rooks unite against him and peck and beat him with their wings till

Origin of the Lucifer Match. The late Sir Isaac Holden's inves tions in connection with the wool comb ing ladustry have almost obscured from the public's remembrance the fact that he was also the originator of the fucifer match. This happened while filling the position of lecturer on chem-tarry at the Castle Street academy. Reading. Hosten himself did not realize the importance of his discovery. Not so, however, a pupil of his covery. Not so, however, a pupil of his father about it. This youngster, who chanced to be the son of a London manufacturing chemist, at once wrote to his father about it, and shortly after the first matches were issued to the world.—London Mail.
