COMING RECEPTION

Capitol City Making Final Arrangements.

Preparations for 50,000 Visitors. Fair Makes Good First Day. Decorations on Building. New State Bank Examiner. Haywood, Enters Upon His Duties.

Raleigh, Oct. 16.—The committee having in charge the reception of the President here met this afternoon and made the final arrangements. Secretary Loeb sent word by a gentleman who came here to look over the ground that it was desired to have the streets along which the procession would pass roped, as is done in the large cities, and Mayor Johnson said this would be attended to. The President will be taken to the Executive Mansion and after breakfast the line of march will be taken to the fair grounds, quite a section of the city being covered in the route. On the boat of the President's carriage will be a secret service man and three others will be in the carriage immediately following that of the President. On arrival at the fair grounds the procession will enter the race course, the Presidential party, the Governor, Council of State, etc., going to the right, and the military to the left. The military will then march past the President and Governor, who will be in the speaker's stand between the grand stand and the race course. Provision has been made by which at least 50,000 people can easily see the President. On the stand will be the President, and his party of seven, Governor Glenn, the Council of State and the personal staff.

Ten thousand persons visited the fair grounds yesterday and the street cars were crowded all day. Everybody seemed to be pleased with arrangements made.

A great deal of decoration was done today. For the first time the Postoffice was decorated. A regulation of the Treasury Department prohibits this, but all the occupants of the building requested that they be allowed to decorate it at their own cost, the work is very elaborate indeed.

General James D. Glenn, Private Secretary of the Governor, yesterday had the fourth attack of acute indigestion, and this was very severe, but today he is very much better though having fever.

State Bank Examiner Fabius J. Haywood, Jr., today began his official duties in the field, having for some days been at the office of the Corporation Commission, which appointed him.

BID FAREWELL TO THE OLD CHURCH.

Appropriate and Affectionate Services in the Old Centenary Methodist Church.

"Farewell a word that must be, and hath been a sound which makes us linger—Yet, farewell!"

—BYRON.

The last religious services in the old Centenary Methodist Church were held Sunday night. The congregation was very large and the services were impressive. There were many who were affected by the meeting and the thought of leaving a place which had such memories, some joyous and some sad, was one which brought the tears to many eyes. It was like parting with a dear friend and though the change is for the better the association and memories of the old church cannot be erased from the heart.

Rev. G. T. Adams preached a touching and appropriate sermon on the text found in Deuteronomy 1:4: "The Lord God Spoke Unto us in Horeb saying: Ye have dwelt long enough in this Mount." His remarks were to the effect that religious affairs grow and develop as secular things do and they have the same needs. A House of God should meet the requirements of His people who worship in that house the same as a private residence meets the demands of its occupants. A large and well built church is not for show, it is for the greater development of God's Kingdom, and as the church has been put into a larger and better house of worship as their responsibility in cases of Christianity increases. He spoke feelingly of the tender memories which hang around the old church and that if the walls could speak, wonderful things would be heard.

Following the sermon, the pastor officiated in a love feast in which all participated. Afterwards a testimony meeting in which several spoke words in a reminiscent mood and all pleading to renew their faith and to live more for Christ's Kingdom.

Royal Baking Powder renders bread, biscuit, cake and all flour foods finer and more healthful:

Baking powders made from alum, phosphates and other harsh, caustic acids are lower in price, but they are injurious to the stomach.

"The injurious effect of alum on the mucous coat of the stomach is positive and beyond dispute; it is both an irritant and an astringent. The use of alum in any article of food or article used in the preparation of food should be prohibited."

MORDAUNTS QUIT THE ROAD.

The Repertoire Company Break up on Account of Poor Business. The Mordaunt Stock Co., which was to have been the attraction and the Opera House all this week, broke up at Rocky Mount Saturday night at the actors have returned to New York. The reason assigned for the failure was poor business. It had been their misfortune to either follow high priced shows or to follow another repertoire company and the large crowds on which they are dependent for success did not materialize.

RAPID WRITERS.

Authors Who Did a Great Deal of Work in Little Time.

The rapidity of the ancient writers is seen from the great number of works prepared by them. Livy, for instance, wrote 142 books. Among the Romans, Cicero often wrote three or four important works in a single year. Of later writers, Dr. Johnson, Scott and Byron were all rapid writers. Byron, it is related, wrote "The Corsair" in ten days, while Scott wrote a work for which he was paid $1,000 in ten days. "Rab and His Friends," by Dr. John Brown, was written, it is said, at a single sitting.

The story is told that Dean Shipley once said to Heben, "Suppose you write a hymn for the service tomorrow morning," and by the next morning the hymn known all around the world, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," was written, printed and used in that day's missionary service. Chalmers was once asked how long it took to prepare a sermon. He replied: "That depends on how long you want it. If your sermon is to be half an hour long, it will take you three days; if it is to be three-quarters of an hour, it will take two or perhaps one, but if you are going to preach an hour, then there is not much occasion to think a great deal about it. It may be done in an hour."

Samuel Johnson would write at a single sitting the manuscript for forty-eight printed octavo pages. In one week he wrote "Rasselas" to pay for his mother's funeral, sent it off to the publishers without reading it over and was paid $100 for it.

SARCASTIC DEAN SWIFT.

Notes and Directions For Servants That He Wrote.

There was a servant problem when Dean Swift was alive just as there is today, and he died in 1735. In his "Notes and Directions For Servants" he wrote: "When you have broken all your earlier vessels below stairs, which is usually done in a week, the copper pot will do as well. It can hold milk, beat porridge, hold small beer. Apply it indifferently to all these uses, but never wash or scour it." And again: "If you want paper to stain a towel, tear the first book you see about the house. Wipe your shoes for want of a cloth, on the bottom of a curtain or a damask apron." "In roasting and boiling," he goes on, "use none but the large ones and save the small ones for the fire above stairs." Another touch that might have been written today is the following: "When a butter cleane the plate leave the whitening plainly to be seen in all the cracks, for fear your lady should not believe you had cleaned it." Once more: "There are several ways of getting out a ragged. You may run the ragged and against the wall, which puts the ragged out immediately, but may say if you cannot find time to do this, you may run the ragged in a tub of water, and then it will be ready in your hand like new."

FELL THIRTY FEET.

A Workman For Blades Lumber Company Suffers a Severe Accident.

Mr. Ellis Hall, a workman for the Blades Lumber Co. at their plant on Griffith street, is confined to his home on East Front street on account of painful injuries he received yesterday morning. He was at work repairing the pipe used to convey the saw dust from the saw mill to the ice factory and was sitting on the pipe, about 20 feet above the ground.

The pipe broke at a joint and he was thrown up several feet and when he struck the ground he landed on his back. His descent is judged to be all of 30 feet.

When he was taken home it was feared that his injuries were of a serious nature but Dr. Primrose was summoned who found that he was suffering from concussion of a vertebra, one of the small sections of the backbone. The doctor announced that he was not dangerously hurt but that he would be required to remain in bed for some time.
