EQUITABLE POLICY

Holders of North Carolina to Organize at Charlotte.

Protes Wanted From Non-Attendants. Complaint Against Telephone Poor Service.

Weekly Tar Heel New Republican Newspaper is Out.

Raleigh, Nov. 10.—Preparations are being made for a big celebration for the Junior Order United American Mechanica here on the evening of November 27, it being in the form of a joint celebration by the six councils of Wake county. A class of fifty odd candidates will receive the degrees including Governor Glenn. Following the initiations there will be a banquet during which the following toasts will be delivered: "Patriotism", Prof. E. L. Middleton, Cary, "Public Schools", State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. Y. Joyner; "The Bible in the Schools", Prof. C. E. Brewer, "Immigration", State Auditor B. F. Dixon and "Our Order", Z. P. Smith. The festivities will be under the auspices of the Capitol City Council which now has a membership of about 225.

Hon. J. E. Woodard, of Wilson, has filed with the North Carolina Corporation Commission a complaint in the name of the business men of Wilson against the North Carolina Telephone Co. for poor local service and inadequate long distance service in conjunction with the Bell lines.

The Weekly Tar Heel the New State republican paper fathered by Congressman Spencer Blackburn made its appearance here last night being printed in Raleigh with Greensboro date line. It comes out in sixteen page form and makes a creditable showing. The printing will be in Greensboro as soon as the plant is installed. It is understood that T. B. Eldridge, now news editor of the Industrial News will be the managing editor of the Tar Heel.

At a meeting of a number of the North Carolina policy holders of the Equitable Assurance Society of New York held here today it was decided to hold a general meeting at Charlotte November 22, to organize a State association the policy holders having for its purpose the keeping of the policy holders informed of the doings of the society, advise with trustees and directors especially D. A. Thompson, director for North Carolina and to set for the protection of the policyholders of the society. A committee consisting of D. A. Thompson, Charlotte, R. N. Nelson, Littleton, J. R. Young, Raleigh; J. Y. Joyner, Raleigh, and S. L. Rogers, Raleigh was named to receive proxies and suggestions from any policy holders in the State who cannot attend the Charlotte meeting and represent them in the meeting. This meeting is held in accordance with a suggestion made by Trustee Grover Cleveland in a letter to Gen. R. M. Nelson of Littleton some days ago.

United Confederate Veterans.
Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 25, '05, Comrades:
During the war between the States many brave Confederate soldiers who had been captured in battle, were imprisoned on Johnson's Island, in Lake Erie, near Sandusky, Ohio. In that band of poorly clad, half-starved, worn soldiers, were men from every Southern State and many from North Carolina. The severe climate, insufficient food and lack of attention and medical care, killed many of them. These lie buried on the Island far from home and friends.
A few months ago, to save this spot from being sold and the remains of our comrades from being dug up and desecrated, the Robert Patton Chapter, U. D. C., of Cincinnati, contracted to buy the plot of land in which they are buried. These noble ladies, who have taken this sacred ground under their loving care, have paid a part of the purchase money, some $600.00, but need some $2,500.00 to complete the purchase and put the little cemetery in order. They have called on us for assistance. It is our sacred duty to help them.
All Camps in this State are requested to contribute to the fund now being raised, and Commanders are requested to bring this matter before them.
The Daughters of the Confederacy are also earnestly requested to help us, and contributions from anyone will be gladly received.
All contributions should be sent to General James L. Metts, Wilmington, N. C.

Fraternally,

SAILORS MUTINY AT CRONSTADT.

Are Subdued by Cossacks and Imperial Guard. Report Mutiny is Crushed.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 10.—The city was in a future of excitement all of yesterday and late into the night over the news of the mutiny at Cronstadt. Many sensational reports were sent out but sufficient details have been received to prove that about 3,000 sailors and a battalion of artillerymen from one of the forts indulged in a mutiny which was only put down by about 7,000 Cossacks and troops of the imperial guard hastily dispatched from St. Petersburg and from the garrisons near Peterhof, and that guns had to be employed.

Before the arrival of the troops the sailors, many of whom were drunk on liquor plundered from the spirit shops, had set fire to the market and to several groups of houses. About 300 sailors were still holding out at midnight, and although these are expected to surrender today the authorities became so alarmed that the Paul Regiment of the guard was dispatched to Cronstadt at 1 o'clock this morning.

The Governor of Cronstadt telegraphed the general staff at midnight that the mutiny had been crushed, and that there was no likelihood of any renewal of the revolt today. As soon as the news of the mutiny was received he sent the Seventh and Eighteenth equipages of the sailors of the guard were locked in their barracks and the barracks were surrounded by Cossacks. The sailors were furious with rage and shouted from the windows that they were ready to join their munitous comrades.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

The Ideal Market Hog.
While it is difficult to describe the ideal hog, the following points cover the chief desirable features: In a general way, the hog should have a smooth, finished appearance and should possess a symmetrical outline, with well balanced development in all parts. He should stand squarely on sound, strong feet, with well shaped hams showing plenty of bone to carry him to the desirable weight without breaking down.
The head and neck should be of medium weight, shoulder and ham smooth and laid evenly with the side, the top firm and compact. There should be no deposits of surplus fat behind the shoulders, over the ribs, around the tail, head or along the bottom line.
Fortunately we find the ideal type of hog in the most profitable one for the farmer to produce. The characteristics described stand for economy in production, early maturity and highest market value, so that in the production of medium weight market hogs of high grade the interests of both the producer and the consumer are concerned. Address of J. J. Ferguson, before the Nebraska Swine Breeders' Association.

Goethe's Masterpiece

The tragedy of "Faust" has been one of the few dramas that time cannot kill. Other plays have come on the stage, had their day and have been retired to oblivion but like the strength of Faust "goes on forever." It has been before the public for years, yet let it appear year after year and it will be interesting to note how many persons go to see the performance the second or third time.

Lewis Morrison is acknowledged to be the best representation of Mephisto who has ever had that character. His name has become a household word and it is impossible to separate him from that character as it is to detach the fame of the great Booths from their Shakespearean successes.

This remarkable scenic production will appear at the New Masonic Opera House tonight.

"When We Were Twenty-One."

It is said that the scene of this sweet and powerful love story is laid in England. Col. Audaine, a soldier of proved gallantry and honor, is invaded by long service in India and returns to his native land to die. His gentle wife, whose life is bound up in his, succumbs first from sheer contemplation of the approaching final separation. In a few days the broken-hearted husband follows her. They leave behind an only child, a sunny tempered boy, whom they fondly called the "Imp" with nothing but his brave father's untarnished honor as his legacy. This boy, the dying man commits to the care of four loyal friends whom he has loved as brothers, ever since they were chums at school. To one of the quartette, Dick Carew, he especially confides the future of his orphaned son; but the others look upon the boy as being equally the property of all and so he is tenderly cared for by the four fathers instead of one until he is twenty-one.

The "Imp" is brought up in Dick's home in which a lady, Mrs. Brickson and her daughter, Phyllis, are also members of the household. Phyllis, a beautiful winsome girl, possessing all the witchery of a face that mirrors the emotions of her soul, as water reflects the sunshine and the cloud, is duly selected by the quartette as the "Imp's" future wife and the young people are engaged before the "Imp" attains his majority. The "Imp", however, is something of a scamp; as he fails to appreciate the good luck the gods have thrown his way. He becomes infatuated with and finally marries a notorious adventuress, a music hall singer, known as the "Fire-Fly" but only to be thrown over by her, as soon as she discovers that the "Imp" is not heir to the fortune she thought he was. The realization of the "Fire-Fly's" worthlessness awakens all that is good and noble in the "Imp" and he quickly makes reparation for his past follies. During the action of the play there has developed a strong love between Phyllis and Dick which in the end proves one of the most delightful scenes of the whole play. Seeing is believing. Ask anyone who has seen "When We Were Twenty-One."

Our Supplement Tomorrow.

In the supplement tomorrow the advancement of women in the business world is the subject of the first article. The beautiful Duchess of Marlborough who was formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt is a champion of the new woman and her views are aptly expressed in the article.

There is danger of a coal strike unless some very efficient arbitration takes place before next April, we may expect a worse strike than the one of 1902-03, a short but important piece will be seen in the supplement.

A few days ago a man performed the daring feat of scaling the side of the flat iron building in New York City. It was the talk and wonder of the whole world. An interesting piece is in the paper.

The story about grapes is worth reading.

Ladies should remember the fashion letter which will occupy a column on one of the inside pages. This letter is prepared by one of the famous leaders of fashion in New York, and his views are absolutely correct and up-to-date.

Ancient witchery was believed in by only a few but the true merit of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve is known by every one who has used it for boils, sores, tetter, eczema and piles.

Death of David Shepard Bell.

This good man died at his home near Bogus, Carteret county, N. C. Nov. 7, 1905, in his 84th year. Few, indeed, are those who, at his advanced age, have retained the strength and agility of youth as they were exhibited in this remarkable man. He could mount a horse with the easy spring of a man of 30 and rode as erect and graceful as a young cavalry officer. He loved company and with fine conversational gifts kept his listeners entertained. He was without vice or evil habits, but sober, manly and true. Here was laid the foundation of his rich vivacity and youthful old age. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him and we part with him sorrowfully.

Mr. Bell was a member of the M. E. Church South and died in her faith. He leaves his surviving family a legacy richer than gold and estates, the exemplary character of an honest and upright life. His wife and daughter, and three sons who survive him have our deepest sympathy for we are a mourner with them over the actual loss. Let us dry our tears and live righteous lives that our departure below may be ready and our unity in Heaven certain.
