IMPORTANT HEARING ON INLAND WATERWAY.

The Journal has published the letter of Congressman Small's to Congress man Thomas, noting some important facts concerning the proposed Inland Waterway from Norfolk to Beaufort and the importance of this water route in its future Learing upon the commerce of this section, as well as its industrial

Therefore the hearing in this city or November 21st, when the citizens of New Bern may give expression to their views on this proposed waterway, be sides offering it their support and endorsement is a matter demanding thought and preparation, so that when the Board meets in this city they can learn at once how this community feels, and if it will act, on the move ment to secure this waterway.

Congressman Small has done a great deal of work in forwarding this project and Congressman Thomas has also given his best aid towards its furthering, but what is now wanted is the support and endorsement of the citizens in this section where the Inland Waterway is lose your health, because indigestion in Time of Peace. In the first months of the Russia-Japan war we had a striking example of the necessity for preparation and the early advantage of those who, so to to speak, "have shingled their roofs in dry weather." The virtue of preparation has made history and given to us our greatest men. The individual as well as the nation should be prepared for any emergency. There is scarcely any error so popu There is scarcely any error so popular, yet so unfounded, as that which invariably attributes unbounded indo-jence to the monaptic orders of former days. To them we owe the preserva-tion of literature, both in the pains they took to perpetuate history by their in-bors in transcribing and by their dilibors in transcribing and by their dili-gence in the education of youth.

In the large monasteries a chamber was always set apart for writing al-lowing space in the same apartment for other quiet amployments also. The transcribers were superintended by the abbot, prior, subprior and precentor of the convent and were distinguished by the name of "antiquarit." These in the name of "antiquarii." These in 11.22 dustrious persons were continually oc-11.43 cupied in making new copies of old manuscript books for the use of other monasteries, and by this means many were educated and our most valuable historical records were preserved.

The Angle-Saxon monks were most celebrated us writers and were the originators of the small reman letter used in modern times. The greatest delicacy and nicety were deemed essential in the transcribing of books, whether for the purpose of general instruction or for the use of the convents. Careless and illegible writing is therefore but seldom to be met with among the remains of monastic industry, and when crasures were made they appear to have been done with the utmost core and skill. For this purpose the monks used pumice stone and they were also provided with a

With so many impediments to the multiplication of books as were attendant upon their slow production in this manner, it is not a matter of surprise that the monks enjoyed simost t monopoly of this kind of labor, as in truth they were the only body of men who could properly conduct it. The expense of preparing books was proverbially great, and large estates were frequently set apart for the purpose of purchasing them. In addition to the cost of transcribing, the materials of which books were composed were sources of great expense. The leaves in many instances were composed of purple vellum for the purpose of show ing off to more advantage letters of gold and silver. The binding was often ery gorgeous, although of rude construction.
