THE FIRST PRINCIPLES OF FI-NANCIAL SUCCESS.

For the youth of today to reconcil money getting of the twentieth century, with those principles which were part of the education of the youth of a half century ago, appears too much for the average mind to undertake, for with the examples of wealth accumu-Intions to be seen on every side, the question of principle seems to be of amall account.

Franklin has, said- "The way to wealth is as plain as the way to market. It depends chiefly on two words, Industry and Frugality; that is, waste neither time or money, but make the best use of both."

Industry, unfortunately, has a harsh sound to most of the young. It is associated with regular labor, fixed tasks and an accounting for every minute and hour, how spent. Industry, also has the record of giving wages in stipulated amounts, in certain payments, and in money only, that is fairly and honestly won through toil and personal effort.

There is no fascination of get-richquick, through Industry. It promises its followers success, but it is a success which may be just a plain every day success. No trumpets to blare the name, no parade, no music, just success which may only be the inner consciousness of right done, honestly

And Frugality is less tempting, even than Industry, for it means the giving up of so many comforts, which are to day set down as necessities, and so be cause your next door neighbor, your friend you meet on the street or at the Frederick Manuall, Ma

The half off-liches in his scalp were not dead and in 10 days he had bair all over his bead. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and locaring as any one could with." Newbro's Herpields works on an old principle and with a new dis-covery-desirey the cause and you re-move the effect. Herpields destroys the green their causes dandruit, failing hair, and finally buildness, so that with the save goes the effect causot remains to a finally buildness, so that with the save goes the effect causot remains to The Herpicke Co. club, enjoys them. Frugality, in age of rapid weath getting, and its consequest luxurious living, is too slow to be followed, with her promises of wealth in the end. Speculation never is found in the company of Industry and Frugality, for Speculation says "today, wealth and all that it gives, is yours. Industry and Frugality may keep their promises in the distant future, but think of the denials and hardships which are your portion while waiting for wealth through following Industry and Frugality."

These first principles, leading to financial success, are as true today in their results, as when the great Franklin uttered them. It is the impatience of the ag a, that has relegated Industry and Frugality to the rear, as being unsuited to the temperament of twentieth century progress, in this age when a mile a minute is too slow, when news twelve hours old is out of date, and when a wireless telegraphic system keeps every steamship on the high sens in close communication with every passing event on the land.

It is the idea that wealth, fame, honor, may come without the effort. that Industry can be eliminated, that is so fatal. Every great in vention, the very speed of the present century in every line, is the product of Intry and Frugality, which have found wir colmination today, and the pur-it by the individual of these same old ranciples will also find their just and fort reward in the future, as they we in the past.
