EARLY CREEK HISTORY. In the Time of Costes the Tribe Life Was Myllin.

The Creeks are an entirely differen rformed in the im ocated on the bank of the be tiful Lake Tezcuco, in the days of the ill starred Montesuma II. The archives the nation are here preserved in hieroglyphics, beautifully painted shells, strung together on deer tende Here are also preserved their most cherished relics, their green jasper altar and a life sized image of their great war god, both brought from their former home near Vera Cruz, Mexico. At the time Cortes made his appearince in that neighborhood, bent upon a career of conquest and plunder, the Creeks, as they are now called, were living a peaceful, idyllic life in a land made sacred to them by having been the home of their ancestors for untold ishes and bones of their wise and loved old men through many genera-tions. Gathering their warriors to What has become of the ordinance to wither, they gave battle to the invad ers, but weapons of stone and flint could make but little impression upon the steel clad warriors of Spain, and they were defeated with terrible slatghter. Gathering wives and liftle ones together and taking with them their most cherished possessions mong which were the records of their ice, the jasper altar and their war tod, holding in his extended right hand he sacrificial knife of flint, they made their weary way to the capital of Mon tezuma, the sacred city of Mexico, where they were warmly welcomed by that unfortunate monarch and where they fought bravely in defense of the devoted city. They assisted Gautomazin, the chivalric nephew of Monte zuma, in his glorious, if ill fated, attempt to regain the throne of his ancestors, and upon its failure and the attendant death of that young chieftain by torture, after the manner of

One bull dog was muzzled and fell a prey to one of the graceful, beautiful pets, a esigning mastiff, after which Mr. Bully deliberately put aside his muzzle and declares he will not wear it again nntil all of the dogs are muzzled. Who blames him?, not the Woman's Clut. For the sake of humanity muzzle the dogs, _ A bull dog terribly bit and tore a bright little fellew. That dog was killed, and one dog muzzled. A mastiff bit another promising boy, that dog was killed. Now what? waiting for another to do harm, muzzle, muzzle, muzzle all the dogs. "Let the Woman's Club take in hand the muddy side walks." That was very well put. It is intended to convey the idea that the
