ORIGINAL JACK HORNER.

Really Existed and Got a "Plum Jack Horner of the Christmas pl really existed, though whether he de served the title of "good boy" is exceedingly doubtful. He was, however fortunate rogue. When Heury VIII. suppressed the monasteries and drove the monks from their nests the title deeds of the Abbey of Mells were demanded by the commissioners. The abbot of Glastonbury determined that he would send them to London, and as the documents were very valuable and the road infested with thieves it was difficult to ge them to the metropolis safely. To accomplish this end he devised very ingenious plan. He ordered a savory ple to be made, and inside be put the documents, the finest filling i ple ever had, and intrusted this dainty to a lad named Horner to carry up to London to deliver safely into the hands for whom it was intended But the journey was long and the day cold, and the boy was hungry, and the ple was tempting, and the chance of detection was small. So the boy broke off a piece of the ple and beheld a parchment within. He pulled it forth, innocent enough, won dering how it could have found its way there tied up in pastry, and arrived in The parcel was delivered, but the title deeds of Mells abbey were miss-his pocket. These were the juiclest plums in the ple. Great was the rage of the commissioners and heavy the vengeance they dealt out to the menks. But Master Jack Horner kept his secret, and when peaceable times were controved he claimed the estates and re-

Interesting Grant Relie. President Roosevelt has presented t the war department for its historical collection a section of a log from th cabin which General U.S. Grant bullt for his family near St. Louis after his resignation from the regular army before the ovening of the war of the rebellion. The section is from a log which was used in making a frame fare plus $2.00. presented to Andrew Carnegie acknowledging his gift of $1,000,000 to the Library association.

The interesting relic was sent to the president by C. F. Blanks of St. Louis who bought the cabin and presented i to the city of St. Louis for preservation blueget nuck. It was avhillisted . the St. Louis exposition and attracted much attention. As the president had no sultable place to display the frame containing the section of wood he sent it to the war department, where it has a place in the reception room of the secretary of war.

A descriptive book sent with the relie shows pictures of the cabin as it stood on General Grant's farm and recounts the history of how Grant built the cabin as a shelter for his family in 1854, at a time when he was considered a fall are by his relatives and friends.
