Powerful Lesson on Selfishness.

News & Observer Jan 13:
No play teaching a more powerful lesson has been seen in Raleigh than "A Message From Mars," which yesterday afternoon and last night delighted two audiences in Raleigh.

The play is a splendid one in itself outside of the lesson it teaches, and was presented by a very capable company, which won praise. The evolution of the lesson tonight is by unimpeachable, and these kept the audience constantly in deep interest.

"A Message From Mars" came in a dream to a most selfish man and the Martian visitor whom he saw taught him that selfishness is the greatest of crimes and that "Otherdom" or caring for other people is the greatest good. This was the teaching in the play and throughout there ran a pretty love story. The Martian won, the selfish man became a big hearted noble one, and his sweetheart saw happiness.

As a play the performance is one that is greatly enjoyable. As a sermon against selfishness no more powerful one has ever been preached in any pulpit in Raleigh. It is a play that can not offend in the slightest degree, and it is so cleverly presented that it will delight any audience, and send the people away with better impulses for having seen it, and for having heard set forth the very highest ideals of human living.

Our Bigness.

Bigness is said to be a quality which appeals especially to Americans. However that may be, a purely scientific interest justifies the spreading of information contained in a recent bulletin of the United States geological survey about the size of the United States. The area of the United States proper, exclusive of Alaska, island dependencies and the Panama strip, is given as 3,026,780 square miles. The absence hitherto of an official standard resulted in a discrepancy between the computations of the census bureau and the general land office. A conference was called between these departments and the geological survey, and the bulletin of the geological survey is the result—Youth's Companion.

The Table Top Cold.

"You have, madam," said the physician, "what I call a table top cold."
"What is a table top cold?" the lady asked.

"It is a cold brought on by marble tops in the late fall and winter. You ladies always wear short sleeves, and you always lean your bare arms on the icy surface of marble tables. This contact sends a chill all through you—a chill that you disregard. But in the morning you awake with a heavy cold. "Marble table tops in the winter should be covered with a cloth if they are going to be leaned on. Then the table top cold would disappear."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Real Estate in Korea.

One of the most astonishing regulations has been made regarding the transfer of real estate in Korea. No one is to be allowed to sell or buy real estate except by permission of the governor. This is apparently a move on the part of the Japanese to prevent the selling of any land in Korea except to people that they approve, for the governors are, of course, under the Japanese advisers. It makes no difference that foreigners have as good a right to buy land as the Japanese. The matter will have to be tested in the courts before the powers will allow their citizens to be curtailed in their privileges to the peninsula.—Korea News.

A Plague of Malaria.

The excessive prevalence of malaria in Greece is engaging the attention of English physicians. It is said to be checking the development of rural life and is a very serious thing for the nation. Out of a population of 2,500,000 there were 250,000 cases of malaria annually, and the deaths were about 1,700. Last year the number of cases increased to 900,000 and the deaths to 5,910. Professor Savas of the University of Athens and physician to King George is initiating a movement to deal with the plague.

A Mechanical Man.

Frederick Ireland, a German inventor, has produced a mechanical man, made of wheels and springs, which enable it to walk, write and ride a bicycle. A writer in L'Illustration (Paris) gives a description of the remarkable invention and says "all that it lacks is speech and hearing." The inventor has named his androids algotarsels.
