SHORT PASSING EVENTS

Don't forget the "Lake" at the Park House today. The subject of the discourse for Sunday night at the Tabernacle Baptist Church, will be "A Home With The Devil In It." All are cordially invited.

Mr. J. G. Morrisette, of Scotland Neck, is in the city for a few days and will soon go to Nashville, Tenn., where he will establish a Pepsi-Cola bottling plant.

The Norfolk train was an hour and a half late last night, due to a freight wreck that detained the passenger train. The wreck was the other side of Elizabeth City.

The window in the Cashill Hardware Company's store is suggestive of the advance of the season when the hie, the rake and the spade will come in handy. The implement window is filled out with all kinds of things that a teacher or gardener wants. It is a very attractive display.

A country newspaper threatened to publish the name of a young man who was seen with his sweetheart's head on his shoulder if he didn't come across with a dollar in subscription. Thirty-seven young men slipped in and paid for the paper and letters were received from three others saying that they would subscribe just as soon as they "sold a little cotton."

In paying respect to the memory of the Father of his Country, and in making use of the traditional hatchet, we would advise not to chop down cherry trees or any other valuable tree but if anyone wants to chop let him chop the blighting upas tree of falsehood, slander, malice, envy and spite. It will do a splendid service and may give the executor fame like unto Washington's.

A rather novel sight yesterday was the appearance of five cars all bearing hand turned axes. They came from the Oliver Riggs factory at Core Creek, and were delivered to the Cutler-Blades Hardware Company. These hand turned axes are taken in preference to any other kind of handle and the market for them is very active; over 200 dozen having been sold in a short time.

The horse belonging to Mr. N. M. Farrow gave a good example of the strenuous life last evening by running down Middle street, with a small son of Ham holding on to the ribbons in powerful terror. The animal ran for three or four blocks and collided with two carriages on the way down. The horse was stopped at South Front street, and the driver was thrown out. He sustained painful but not serious bruises. The buggy was a wreck.
