WEDS GIRL HE SAVED

Rescued Her From Burning Building After Others Had Fled.
New York, Feb. 3.—A romance that began fourteen years ago, when they were children, culminated last night in the wedding of Irving Friedman of No. 100 Canal street and Miss Sarah Rosenberg of No. 62 Market street. Twice in that period Friedman had rescued her from death. One of the guests at the wedding was the bridegroom's father. They had not seen each other for twenty years until yesterday.

The bride is twenty-one years old and her husband is about twenty-four. Fourteen years ago Friedman lived in Ludlow street, and the boy and girl attended the same school.
One morning Irving waited for his little chum, and when she did not appear he went into the house to inquire. The girl's mother told him that Sarah had diphtheria and probably would be ill a long time. He was so absently minded in school that his teacher reprimanded him the next day he played "hooky." About 2 o'clock in the afternoon the fire apparatus went by and turned into his street. He followed and found the fire was in the Rosenberg home.

Most of the tenants had fled to the street, but little Sarah was not with them. The boy darted past the firemen into the smoke filled building and up the stairs. He found the girl all but overcome with smoke. Taking her in his arms, he carried his little playmate to the street, where he fell exhausted. He was shockingly burned and his face still bears the scars.

The Rosenbergs moved to another part of the city and the children were separated. One morning a year ago last summer young Friedman was going in bathing at Rockaway Beach, when he heard a scream. Out beyond the lifelines was a girl struggling frantically. She had been seized with cramp. Young Friedman jumped into the surf and after a struggle rescued her.

It was not until he had escorted the young woman to her home that Friedman learned he had again saved the life of his boyhood sweetheart. Sarah Rosenberg did not recognize him, either, but Mrs. Rosenberg did and she overwhelmed him with gratitude.
Young Friedman and Miss Rosenberg were married by Rabbi Rabinowitz in the synagogue at No. 22 Forsyth street. Later there was a reception in Clinton Hall.

SHORT PASSING EVENTS

While he and his wife were attending church Sunday evening, some one entered the home of Nick Simmons in Harvey town and stole about five dollars that had been left in a machine drawer. The thief entered through a window which he pried open and, from appearances, made a systematic search of the room. But Simmons, who is a thrifty and cautious colored man, for fear of just such a contingency had wisely taken the rest of his money with him to church. There is no clue as to the identity of the thief, though Simmons has suspicions of the guilty party.—Kinston Free Press.

SUCCESSFUL LAND SALE

Of Residence Lots at River View On National Avenue. Numerous Investors.

The auction sale of residence lots on National Avenue Thursday morning, was successful in every way, there being sixty-one lots sold in two hours, to a large gathering of interested buyers who eagerly bid on every lot put up. The sale was conducted by the Columbian Realty and Auction Company, of Greensboro, N. C., and was to the satisfaction of every one. To add more interest and favor to the sale, those who wanted to attend were driven out without charge, while a brass band enlivened the occasion.

Lots ranged in price from $975 down, none selling for less than $100, the sale aggregating about $16,000, and while buyers were given the privilege of paying on the installment plan, most of them took advantage of the discount for cash, paying down their money in full. It was said that many of the buyers intend erecting residences at once on their lots.

PERRY MUST RETURN TO WORK

No Suitable Berth Open For Navy Officer and Must Take up Old Work.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The Navy Department has ordered Commander Robert E. Peary back to duty. He will arrive in Washington tomorrow and probably be assigned to a post in his corps before the end of the week.

While no official announcement of the fact has been made, it is learned that the navy department, after exhausting every expedient to find a duty for Commander Peary, which would be in keeping with his dignity as discoverer of the North Pole, has abandoned the attempt.

There are a few unimportant offices, and the department has decided to allow, as far as it may, Commander Peary the privilege of making a selection from these.

During the time it has been casting about for a place in the corps of civil engineers to which to assign Commander Peary, the department has nursed the hope that Congress might come to the relief of the situation by making the explorer a rear admiral and tendering him a vote of thanks.

But as Congress, apparently, does not intend taking any action of this sort, the department finds itself in the position of being without an excuse or pretext of continuing Commander Peary's leave from duty.

It has wired him to come to Washington to prepare to enter active service, and a reply has been received, stating that he will report at the department tomorrow.

There is a peculiar pathos in the situation which finds a man, after twenty-three years of almost continued leave of absence spent in bringing to his country the glory and distinction toward which centuries of effort have been directed from every quarter of the globe, when success has been attained, to go without an expression of gratitude from his country and to again enter its service in a position the dignity of which is not in keeping with the prestige of his former achievements.

Assistant Pastor Ham Comes to Tabernacle.

Atlanta, Constitution 2—Rev. J. W. Ham, newly selected assistant pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church, arrived yesterday morning from New Bern, N. C., and immediately assumed the duties of his new office. Mr. Ham is a young man of attainment and energy, and is sure to prove a live wire in Atlanta.

Though for the past two years Mr. Ham has been pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church in New Bern, he is a native of Jackson, Ga., and has been in the ministry six years. He took his theological course at the University of Chicago, and is a disciple of Professor Hugo Muensterberg, the celebrated Harvard psychologist. Mrs. Ham will join her husband in a few weeks. She is a graduate of Elizabeth college of Charlotte, N. C., and is a soprano soloist of marked ability. Until the arrival of Mrs. Ham, Mr. Ham will be located at the Tabernacle dormitory.

Mr. Ham will make his first public appearance Friday night, when he will begin a two years' course on psychology as it related to the work of the Sunday school teacher. The lecture will be thirty minutes in length and will be followed by a thirty minutes' exposition of the Sunday school lesson for the following Sunday. Dr. Leo G. Broughton will close the evening with one of his popular Friday night Bible lectures. All Sunday school teachers and workers desiring to become teachers are invited to attend these services, regardless of denominational allegiance. Supper will be served for those who do not have the time to go home from their work before the services.

Mr. Ham, drew packed boxes during his pastorate in New Bern and 70 per cent of his hearers were men.

(The church of which Rev. J. W. Ham is Assistant Pastor, is a magnificent structure, four stories in height and one of the most imposing edifices in that city. The interior decorations are marvels of beauty and ingenuity.—En)
