of Starvation.

Pittsburg, March 4.- Mrs Bessle Anlerson, a young widow with three young children, walked into one of the most fashionable hairdressing establishments in the city today, let down her hair and displayed it to the proprietor.

Her Crown of Glory Staves.

"What will that be worth to you?" she asked with a tear-stained face. "Goodeers, woman, you cannot mean to tell me you intend to part with that wonderful head of hair. It is the most beautiful I have ever seen," said the shopman as he closely inspected the silken meshes which reached to the
