They settled ontakle the town and proceeded to develop the land by clearing away the woods and planting it with grain, fruit trees and organisated shrubs they had brought with them Peter Stayvesant called his residence and ground the Bouwerie, and the lane connection it with New Amountains. connecting it with New Amsterdam became known as Bouwerle lane, the settlement itself taking the name of Bouwerle Village, Sturresant's farm extended from the junction of what are now Third and Fourth avenues to Bev enteenth street and eastward to Second avenue, where at the corner of Tenth street his home was located.

A Mysterious Race. Ever since Pizarro's conquest of the Indians there had been rumors in the interior of South America of the existence of a strange tribe, said Major P. H. Fawcett, R. A. The evidence was necessarily weak, yet he had met half a dozen men who swore to a glimpse of white indians with red hair. Other statements and been made as to the existence of such a race with blue eyes. Plenty of people had heard of them, and they had even a usine-"Morphegon." or bats, meaning the people who hunted by night and hid during the day. Even in Paraguay, he was told, there was a tribe so shy as to be quite beyond communication and another where the men talked in one language and the women in another .-
