CADETS REFUSE TO DIVULGE NAMES

Entire Corps in Insubordination, and Court Fails to Discover Culprits.

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 29.—For the fourth consecutive day since the entire cadet corps of the United States Military Academy was put under arrest for giving the "silence" to Captain Longan, instructor in tactics, that body has continued to stand mute.

To a man, the cadets still refuse to divulge to the court of inquiry, the names of cadets who instigated the "silence" treatment, as well as the reason why it was administered. The return of General Barry, who is in command of the academy, has failed to alleviate the practical insubordination that now exists. He at one approved of the action of Commandant Silbey in placing the entire study body under arrest. The court yesterday examined thirty more cadets and today was still summoning them.

The court is now concentrating its efforts on getting the names of them who instigated the "silence." To meet this, it is declared the cadets have adopted a uniform policy of testimony. They tell the court that when the "silence" was administered, they merely saw several other cadets doing it, and so joined in the treatment themselves. Not one of the cadets had admitted premeditated conspiracy.

Jones County Man Drops Dead

A telephone message received in this city yesterday morning from Trenton, stated that Mr. John Jones, a white man 65 years of age, who lived with his son, Mr. Albert Jones, about four miles from that place fell dead on the previous day at his son's house. From the few details that could be learned in regards to the affair, it seems that Mr. Jones had partaken of a hearty breakfast and after arising from the table and walked over to the stove to get a light for his pipe. While in the act of lighting his pipe he was stricken with an attack of heart disease and fell over dead. Mr. Jones was well and favorable known in that section.

MITCHELL'S FALL OPENING

Throngs of Pleased Shoppers Crowded The Popular Store Throughout the Day.

Unquestionably the most successful Fall millinery opening in the history of the popular dry goods store of J. M. Mitchell & Co. was held yesterday from 9 a. m. until 10 p. m. This popular establishment was thronged "the live long day" by delighted shoppers who were "charmed" by the elaborate display of millinery and dry goods.

In the millinery department, which is managed by Miss Martha Glenn, who is well known to the people of this community as a milliner of wide experience and one who displays exquisite taste and rare judgment in the selection of her stock. There were many beautiful and artistic designs on display. Among the most popular shapes is the turban, among these are Jockey, Persian, Stove Pipe, Cuban, Mushroom and the plain box. All of these are destined to be very popular.

The popular shapes are enumerated: Parisian turban of brown persian silk and brown velvet cord at side with brown wing shaded to tan and finished with persian pins. Mary Garden, a little two-story turban of black velvet and black satin completely covered with ecru feathers and finished at front with gold fan.

West Side, a large black hat with top of delf blue French beaver and two large black willow plumes fastened to front going completely across the hat. One very striking hat for a Miss is a large black mushroom beaver with draped crown of fold cloth and a handsome cream lace scarf, finished at either side with bunch of blk poppies.

One hundred little bowl-shaped hats with Pocahontas band around crown going to the back in a decided point. A few others together with the beautiful decorations of green and gold, and the beautiful effects of the shaded incandescent lights the scene was indeed one long to be remembered and many complimentary remarks were made by the visitors.

The dry goods department also came in for its share of the favorable comment. Among the most noticeable articles to be found there were the lovely coat suits that are destined to be so popular this season.

The latest weaves and fabrics in worsteds, silks, satins, broad cloths and waistings were also on display. Taken as a whole, the opening was a brilliant success and Mr. Mitchell and his efficient corps of assistants are being congratulated upon carrying it on in such a successful manner.

Catching on Passing Trains

A number of small colored boys make it a habit to board the westbound trains at the passenger station every morning and ride out as far as the coal chute where the train stops to take on fuel. Yesterday morning several of these boys jumped up on the platform just as the train began to pull out. The engineer however, evidently decided that no coal was required and opened up the throttle when near the chute and when the train passed that point it was moving at a 20 mile clip. The boys seeing their predicament, all made a jump, three tore holes in the terra firma with their heads while the fourth literally plowed the ground up with his face. Such is the result of beating sides.

Days of Saloon Are But Few.

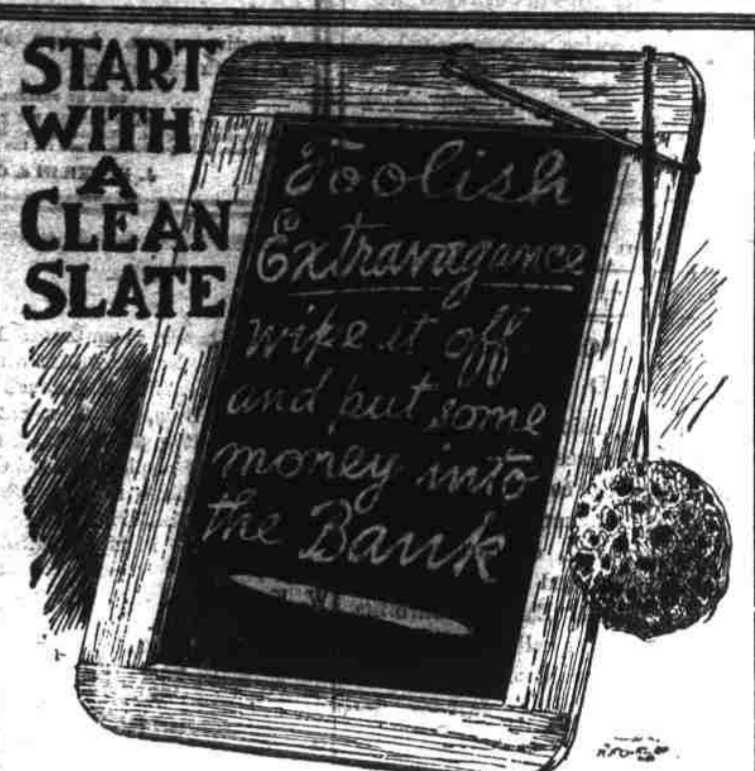

Norfolk, Va; Sept. 29.—The annual address of Mrs. Howard M. Hoge, president of the Virginia W. C. T. U. was the feature of last night's session of that body now in convention in Portsmouth.

There was a large crowd in attendance when Mrs. Hoge spoke and her words were greeted with applause, and in some instances cheering. Mrs. Hoge declared that the days of the saloon in Virginia are numbered. Virginia, she said, is certain to fall in line with other States and banish whiskey and the saloon from its borders.

Most of the night's session was devoted to the reading of reports and references to committees of various matters.

FALL SUGGESTIONS

FALL SEASON 1910. CONDITIONS GIVE GREAT PROMISE.

The cloud of gloom which seems to settle over this community as a result of conditions brought about by the backward Spring is lifting and the sun of prosperity is now shining by many who were disposed to be pessimistic, at least doubtful about immediate future.

This change is due in main to the crop prospects which are much better than the most sanguine could hope for, in fact indications now are for more than an average yield in all of the staples which go to the making of good times and even for more than an average yield in the chief crop; the South of course is dependent on cotton for its prosperity and prospects for this are good, but even should the yield not come to expectations the recent increase in price would go to make up the difference, and while the country as a whole is benefitted by a big cotton crop the South has an offset when there is a shortage. With good crops will come a decrease in living expenses and the more that can be saved from the table the more there is left for the adornment of the person to analyze the situation in all of its elements of strength, the fall of 1910 is full of promise for us all.

As the fall season will soon be in full swing, in preparation for the same we have broadened the scope and increased the lines of each department, we take the liberty of suggesting to you the great importance of a personal visit to our store. It is perhaps unnecessary to enumerate the many advantages to be obtained by coming to us. We have space only to point out a few redeeming points.

Our Millinery Department is full of the richest colorings and styles the world's market affords; this will surely be a variety season in regards to shapes and materials. We find a tendency to hold to the large shapes which have been so popular, and yet there are a great variety of turbans and small shapes being used, this will give the milliner a better opportunity to please her customers as it will not be necessary to compel buyers to take the only shape in vogue whether becoming or not. The large hats have a tendency to broaden in the back and narrow in front, brims drooping considerably. Smaller hats have high brims rolled close to the crown, this is very effective, turbans are made with high crowns, mostly body of hats are Felts, Beavers, Satin, Corded Silk, Velvet and Velvet combined with Silks and Satin.

The wise Dry Goods Merchant of the day realizes that competition is so keen that he would keep his customers he must bind them with a chain that cannot break. The strongest connecting links are honest dealings and the best values for the least money.
