SHORT PASSING EVENTS

The public is cordially invited to attend the recital at Griffin Auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock.

The fire companies were called out yesterday afternoon to extinguish a fire that had originated in an old field in Parie Town. The only damage was the destruction of several old fences.

There are but very few prisoners in Craven county jail just at this time but those will partake of a Christmas dinner on that day the like of which they have doubtless never before eaten. Jailer Williams has purchased a pig and this will be served to them in barbecue style. Numerous other delicacies will also be served to them.

The Turner-Ennis N. C. Almanac for 1911 has been received. It is a most useful guide to the people of North Carolina, and every farmer, merchant and professional man should have one at his desk. It is a valuable publication and grows better and more complete with the passing of the years. Ennis Publishing Co., Raleigh, N. C.

While in conversation with one of the contractors yesterday, he informed the writer that it would be sometime in the latter part of January before the new Blades theatre which is now being constructed, will be completed. The managers of the theatre hoped to open during the first part of the month. This however will be impossible.

Although Christmas is near at hand and usually there is much rowdiness among the law breaking element of the city at this season, so far there has been but little of this in this city. In the police court yesterday afternoon there was only one minor case on the docket. This verifies the fact that there is but little disorderly conduct going on.

Already the annual influx of students homeward bound to spend the holidays with their relatives, has begun and will continue for the next five or six days. Practically all of the trains arriving in this city are behind time and it will continue to be worse until after the first of the year when pupils have all returned to their respective schools and colleges.

All of the crews on the Government boats which are located in this port will observe Christmas in a very appropriate manner. The sailor boys have recently received their pay for the month of November and during the past few days they have purchased many gifts to send to loved ones in other cities. An elaborate dinner will be served them that day on board of the boats.

Superintendent Reeves of the National Cemetery is having 69 trees removed as the growth has become much too dense. Several of the trees were very large and a number of head stones were removed temporarily to prevent their being injured. The 75 National Cemeteries in this country are visited every other year by the landscape gardener who directs the necessary improvements.

"A real Christmas gift to the shop girls, deliverymen, messenger boys, expressmen and letter carriers would be the purchase of your Christmas gifts now. If you do your shopping within the next few days, it will help to relieve the terrific strain to which all those who serve the public are subjected during the last week before Christmas. If every one were so thoughtful these faithful workers would not be so worn out by the demands of late shoppers as to be unable to enjoy the holidays."
