BLUNT ANDREW JACKSON.

Stories of Andrew Jackson are thely to be pointed sod to have a practical application, as do the stories told of Franklin, in Mr. J. W. Forney's "An-sedotes of Public Men" there is given a story as it was told by James Buchauan at this own table. Although it contained a reproof from the presi-dent to one who was to succeed him. it is said to have been a favorite story

Shortly after Mr. Buchaoan's return from Russia in 1884, to the court of which country be had been sent by Jackson in 1832, and immediately fol-lowing his election to the senate he called upon "Old Hickory" with a fair English lady whom he desired to pre-sent to the head of the American pa-

Leaving her to the reception room downstairs, be ascended to the president's private quarters, where he found General Jackson unshaved, unkempt, in his dressing gown, with his slippered feet on the fender, before a blazing wood fire, smoking a corncob pipe of the old southern pattern. He stated his object, and General Jackson said that he would be very glad to meet the lady whom Mr. Buchanan desired to present.

Mr. Buchanau was always careful of his personal appearance and in some respects was a sort of musculine Miss Pribbe, addicted to spotless cravats and huge collars, rather proud of a foot small for a man of his large stature and to the last of bis-life what the ladies would call "a very good figure." Having just returned from a visit to the fashionable circles of the contipent after years of thorough intercourse with the etiquette of one of the statellest courts in Europe, he was somewhat shocked at the idea of the president meeting the emipent English lady to such a guise and ventured to ask if General Jackson did not intend to change his attire. Thereupon the old warrior rose, with his long pipe in bis hand, and, deliberately knocking the ashes out of the bowl, said to his friend:

"Buchanan, I want to give you a little piece of advice, which I hope you will remember. I knew a man once who made a fortune by attending to bis own business. Tell the lady I will see ber presently."

The man who became president in 1857 was fond of saying that this remark of Andrew Jackson humiliated him more than any other rebuke be had ever received.

He walked downstairs to meet the lady in his charge, and in a very short time President Jackson entered the room, dressed in a full suit of black. cleanly shaved, with his atubborn white hair forced back from his forehead, and, advancing to the beautiful visitor, he greeted her with almost kingly grace.

As she left the White House she spid to her escort, "Your republican presi-AUGUSTA and JACKSONVILLE dent is the royal model of a gentleman."

FORM GOOD HABITS.

Life is largely made up of habits They are meant to make life easier for us and better. A good habit, once formed, is like a towrope that pulls us along thereafter without our conscious effort. The more good habits we can form the sweeter and safer and more successful life will be ever after. Begin to form good habits now— this very day.
