Official Paper of New Bern and Craven Counties.

The convention of Baltimore as being the right city in which the national democratic party shall hold its convention in 1912.

With the democratic party outlook today, the place of the next convention is all important.

Location because of political effect, either in the nomination of candidates and the policies to be given out for campaign help.

The national democracy should today feel assured of sufficient backbone and individuality to feel free of adopting doubtful expedients.

Baltimore has the political atmosphere that is strongly democratic. It is a city well equipped to entertain and well entertain.

Baltimore is on the border line of democracy's always great stronghold, the South, and it would be a compliment to the Southern democracy if Baltimore should be named as the convention city for the National Democratic party in 1912.
