FIGHTING WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC

Sensational Statements Attract Attention To Work

CRUSADE UNDER WAY

50,000 Persons in America Earn Living in Shocking Trade

Baltimore, Md., September 9.—By the statement that 50,000 persons in America earn their livelihood by participation in the white slave traffic, Stanley W. Finch, of the Federal Department of Justice, who is in charge of the crusade against the social evil, has attracted wide-spread attention to his work.

Mr. Finch's headquarters for the supervision of the work in the entire country, are located in the Fidelity Building. Baltimore has been chosen, he says, not because it is any better or any worse than any other large American city, but because it is convenient.

John J. Grgurevich, also of the Department of Justice, is in charge of the local details.

That one of the chief dangers to American girls of the working class is the demand for recruits for the ranks of the 250,000 white slaves of the country is Mr. Finch's belief. He also believes it his life work to eliminate this evil.

In two years he has sent to the penitentiary more than 300 of the men and women who conduct the business. "The devices to which the traders resort," said Mr. Finch in an interview "in getting hold of and dealing with their victims through their organized system are many, and reach young women and girls in all walks of life, but particularly those who go out into life to earn a living.

"No man's daughter, sister or wife is safe if she is young and attractive, from the wiles of these traffickers. Of course, however, they move along the lines of least resistance. In this connection the theatre, the moving-picture show, the cafe, the skating rink and the dance halls become instruments."

Mr. Finch first established national headquarters in Baltimore June 1 of this year. His system has been installed also in Richmond, Norfolk and cities of North Carolina and West Virginia. Offices will soon be opened in New York and other large cities. The plan provides for one officer of the organization in every city. It will take about 1,000 men for this plan.

HELD FOR COURT FOR RETAILING

In Default of One Hundred Dollar Bond Walker Is Locked Up

SOME HEAVY FINES

Mayor McCarthy Shows His Disapproval of Disorderliness

When Policeman A. L. Bryan on Sunday saw Ben Jenkins, July Brown and Oscar White passing some money to James Walker and noted that Walker was in an intoxicated condition, he guessed right away that the money was passed for liquor. He arrested Walker and notified the other three parties to be in court Monday and testify to the truth as to their dealings with Walker.

Monday the witnesses testified that they had bought whiskey from Walker and Mayor McCarthy bound him over under a bond of $100. In default he went to jail to await the next term of Superior court. Defendant and witnesses in this case were all negroes.

Two charges of larceny against William Jones, colored, sent him to jail to wait for final action by Superior court. He was charged with stealing two sets of harness from W. F. Crockett and some clothing from the steamer Emma J. Phillips.

Two negroes will have to pay twenty dollars and costs for disorderly conduct. Both were very disorderly, hence the heavy fine. John Sanders was disorderly because he was drunk. He kicked up high jinks on Smith street Sunday and Officer Bryan took him in tow. John Reddick was disorderly because he was mad. And mad with his own father mad enough to hurl a drinking glass at him yesterday morning in a negro-restaurant near the depot and painfully wound one of his hands. Reddick the elder was in court with the injured hand as evidence. Both Sanders and Reddick were slow about raising the amount needed to square their accounts with the city, but Chief Lupton said that it was surprising how promptly the amount to pay off a fine was sometimes raised by the relatives of the party in trouble. Officer L. H. Banks was the one who arrested Reddick.

George Cockerham, colored, was in court on the charge of peddling without license. He was required to pay the license and also a fine. This was the Mayor's way of demonstrating the truth that it is cheaper to pay a license tax than it is to try to get out of paying it.

Several other cases of less importance than those mentioned were also disposed of at yesterday's session of the city court.

ELKS NOTICE

There will be regular session of your Lodge to night at 8:30. You are earnestly requested to be present. By order E. R. T. B. KEHOE, Sec'y.

BRIDGETON

Houses are in good demand in Bridgeton now. There are numbers of people who would like to move here, but can't get houses to live in.

Bridgeton now boasts a hotel, The Davis on A street.

Mr. S. D. Parker has closed out his business in New Bern and has opened up a dry goods store in one of the new stores on Bridge street.

Mr. Perry Fulcher has moved his grocery store from his old stand in one of the new stores on Bridge street.

There has been much sickness here lately. Mr. S. G. Parker's daughter, Miss Geneva, had typhoid fever and was sent to the Stewart Sanitarium at New Bern, but has recovered.

Mr. S. D. Parker's little boy Guy has been very low, for seven weeks with typhoid fever, but we are glad to say he is improving.

Mr. K. Phillips little baby is very low. Mr. Phillips is having his home on Bridge street remodeled.

Mrs. J. B. Morton and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, and her sister, Mrs. A. M. Tingle, are at Stella visiting relatives.

Mr. Gooley is having improvements made on his home on A street.

Mr. W. H. Moore has moved his family back from New Bern in Mr. LeRoy Davis's home on A street.

VISITED HIS OLD HOME IN ENGLAND

Dr. Carter Returns After An Absence of Over Two Months.

IMPROVED IN HEALTH

Rain Every Day While He Was Away—Rains Not Showers

Rev. Dr. E. T. Carter, pastor of the First Baptist church, is at home again after a couple of months spent in England, of which country he is a native. The greater part of the time he was in Rochester, where he formerly lived. This is the cathedral city of England and he found the renewal of his associations with the numerous historic spots to be found there very delightful.

Not a little of his time in the mother country was spent in London, where at Pastors' College, presided over by Charles H. Spurgeon, he studied for the ministry. He also revisited London University where he was once a student.

His holiday was further marked by frequent excursions to Brighton, one of England's most famous watering places. He also visited Nottingham. "I understand you have been having it warm here," Dr. Carter remarked. "Well, you will probably be surprised when I tell you that at Brighton I wore my overcoat all the time when not in the house and slept under blankets during the entire summer."

"It rained every day while I was in England. And I am speaking literally. I don't mean that it rained all of every day, but not a day passed that there was not a rain; not a mere shower, but a rain. I did not stop noting daily rains until I was within twenty-four hours of New York."

Dr. Carter had not been in England in about a quarter of a century and he was curious to see what changes had taken place. One of the most conspicuous changes that he observed was the absence of the disorder which prevailed in the seaport cities when he was last in England. Then there was the present amount of drunkenness with a full complement of all the kindred evils. Now there is almost a complete absence of that sort of thing. All the time he was in Rochester, which with Chatham and several other cities so close to Rochester as to form with it practically one city, has a population of 350,000 he saw only two intoxicated people. The change for the better he attributes largely to the thorough education which the people of England have been receiving.

Although he lost twenty pounds in weight, Dr. Carter returns greatly improved in health. When he left here he was on the verge of nervous breakdown. Now he says he is feeling fine in every way.

He went over on the Mauretania and returned on the same ship. Both voyages were without mishap except that on the day before landing in the return trip there was a severe gale during which a seaman broke his back and one or two others were less seriously injured. The voyage back was made by the Mauretania in 4 days, 23-1-2 hours.

Mrs. Carter will leave tomorrow morning to spend her vacation in the mountains of North Carolina.

SOCIETY WOMEN

NOT GOOD RISKS

Washington, D. C., September 9.—F. D. Gold, Jr., of Greensboro, president of the American Life Conservation, was seen in Washington en route from Chicago, where he attended the annual meeting of the convention. Mr. Gold was quoted in Chicago papers as saying society women were not as good insurance risks as the woman who works for a livelihood.

Henry L. Rosenfeld, of the Equitable Life of New York, took issue with Mr. Gold in an interview in New York newspapers, and said that if there were any society women in the South whom Mr. Gold did not care to insure, the Equitable would be glad to get them.

"I stand on my original assertion that society women as a class are not as good risks as the women who lead the simple life," said Mr. Gold. "The insurance industry is an individual question and each person is a law unto themselves, but society women who follow the pace made by the 400 of the larger cities are not regarded by life insurance experts as good risks as the woman who pursues the more even tenor of her way."

DIED

At the home of her brother, Mr. N. G. Brinson, Reidsboro, N. C., Sept. 9, 1912, Miss Susan Ann Brinson, at the age of 73 years. She will be buried at the old family burying ground, near this place.

The widow here for as long as she has lived in the household, with her husband, Mr. W. H. Moore, who died in 1908.
