HUMAN NATURE

Be assured that those who do the worst enemies not to whom they have done evil, but to whom they have done good, but to whom they have done good, but to whom they have done good.

THE SIMPLE LIFE.

No Trouble For Australian Aborigines to Break Camp.

An Australian aborigine breaks the monotony of his life by frequent visits to other camps, but his preparations for these holidays have a simplicity about them which must appeal to many a worried housewife. It is thus described by Messrs. Spencer and Gillen in "Across Australia."

"Apart from ceremonies and dances, the one great break in the monotony of life is paying visits to strange camps. Packing up is not a tedious process. The man simply walks out of camp, carrying his spears, spear thrower, boomerangs and shield; the woman takes the youngest child across her hip, balances a pitch on her head, and with one arm round the child and a digging stick in her free hand, she is ready for the road. The girl children and younger women look after the puppies, which are never left behind on any account, and, when unable to walk, are carried in pitchis like young babies.

"Two minutes at most is all the time required for an aboriginal family to pack up and start and there is no trouble in regard to the horse while the owners are away. If any one chooses to occupy it during their absence he can do so, but the owners will see at a glance who has been in possession while they have been away."

Cardui Worked Like a Charm

After Operation Failed to Relieve Cardui Worked Like a Charm.

Jonesville, S. C.—"I suffered a womanly trouble," writes Mrs. J. Kendrick, in a letter from this place, "and at times, I could not bear to get on my feet. The doctor said I never be any better, and that I was never to have an operation, or I would have a cancer.

I went to the hospital, and they operated on me, but I got no better. The said medicines would do me no good, and I thought I would have to die.

At last I tried Cardui, and I began to improve, so I continued until I am well, and can do my own work. I don't feel any pains.

Cardui worked like a charm."

There must be merit in this medicinal vegetable, tonic remedy, for women's Cardui—for it has been in successful use for more than 50 years, for the treatment of womanly weakness and disease.

Please try it, for your troubles.
