When the Tuilleries was being repaired Napoleon suspected that the upholsterer's charges were higher than they should be. So he asked one of his ministers, who was with him, how much the ivory egg at the end of the bell rope ought to cost.

"I do not know," was the answer. "It shall be ascertained," said Napoleon. Thereupon he cut off the ivory handle, called for a valet, bade him dress himself in plain clothes, inquire the price of such articles at several shops in Paris and order a dozen as if for himself.

The valet bought them for two-thirds of the price that the emperor had had to pay. Napoleon, inferring that the same overcharge had been made in the other articles, deducted a third from the entire account and informed the tradesman that it was done at his own express command because on investigation he had found the charges to be exorbitant.

A DREAM AND A CRIME.

The Story of a Slumber Vision That Comes From Cicero.

Cicero furnishes us with a tale of two Arcadians, who, traveling together, arrived at Magara, a city of Greece, between Athens and Corinth, where one of them lodged in a friend's house and the other at an inn.

After supper the person who lodged at the private house went to bed and, falling asleep, dreamed that his friend at the inn appeared to him and begged his assistance, because the innkeeper was going to kill him.

The man immediately got out of bed, much frightened at the dream; but, recovering himself and falling asleep again, his friend appeared to him a second time and desired that, as he would not assist him in time, he would at least care not to let his death go unpunished—that the innkeeper, having murdered him, had thrown his body in a cart and covered it with rubbish. He therefore begged that he would be at the city gate in the morning before the cart was out.

Struck with this new dream, he went early to the gate, saw the cart and asked the driver what was in it. The driver immediately fled. The dead body was taken out of the cart and the innkeeper apprehended and executed.

No Secret Telegraph System.
Many persons are of the opinion that the wireless system of communication is particularly subject to tapping; but, according to the Scientific American, no telegraph system is absolutely secret. Any one familiar with the Morse code can read ordinary messages entering any telegraph office. At Poldhu, on a telephone connected to a long horizontal wire, the message passing on a government telegraph line a quarter of a mile away can be distinctly read. It has been shown that it is possible to pick up at a distance, on another circuit, conversation which may be passing through a telephone or telegraph wire. On one occasion an investigator was able to interfere from a distance with the working of the ordinary telephones in Liverpool.

Why Rain Clouds Are Black.
The color of a cloud depends on the manner in which the sunlight falls upon it and the position of the observer. It will be noticed that high clouds are always white or light in color, and this is because the light by which they are seen is reflected from the under-surface by the numberless drops of moisture which go to form the cloud. Heavy rain clouds, on the other hand, are found much nearer the earth, and so the light falls on them more directly from above, giving a silver lining to the cloud, though the under-surface appears black owing to the complete reflection and absorption of the light by the upper layers. Seen from above by an observer in a balloon, the blackest rain clouds appear of the most dazzlingly brilliant white.

Death by Boiling.
In old England, before the law was passed which prohibited "cruel and unusual forms of punishment," murderers were often condemned to death by boiling. In such cases the victims were chained in large kettles of cold water, which were gradually heated until it caused the flesh to drop from the bones. The last English victim of the "boiling death" was one House, a cook, who, it was alleged, had killed seventeen persons.

A Bad Egg.
"Owens is trying to strike every one he meets for a loan. He's a bad egg, that fellow."
"Why do you call him that?"
"When he's broke he makes the fact decidedly conspicuous."—Boston Transcript.

No Deception.
"Toff—You told me that horse was free from faults. Why, it's blind, dealer—blind? Well, that's not a fault. That's a cruel misfortune."—San Francisco Chronicle.
