RARE BEN JONSON.

He Was Fat and Coarse and a Worse Bully Than Dr. Johnson.

"Rare Ben Jonson," who is admired by everybody and read by nobody, was a distinctly unpleasant individual who had few real friends during his lifetime. A good many people pretended to like him and enjoy his society because they were afraid of him. He was not only vindictive with his pen, but he was quick to imagine insults or slights and was prone to resent them with his fists.

Originally a bricklayer, he was big and burly and strong as a government mule until so weighed down by fat that he could scarcely navigate. After recovering from a sickness once he said he had been at death's door, where upon some forgotten humorist remarked that death didn't have a door big enough to admit him.

Jonson had a powerful frame and huge, hairy hands; his face was heavy and florid; the lower part covered with reddish whiskers, and he was extremely slovenly in his dress. He was a worse bully than Samuel Johnson. The latter, with all his faults, never raised a rough house.

Jonson fought two duels and killed his man on both occasions. His first was with a soldier during wartime, and he was not brought to account for that. Later he killed an actor with whom he had some trifling quarrel and for this was sentenced to death. The sentence was commuted, but he was branded upon the hand before being given his liberty.

His life was stormy, and when he departed there was no overwhelming grief. The fact that his name remains a household word is strange, for not one man in a million has ever read his works.—Chicago News.

THE TROOPER'S PORTRAIT.

And the Conditions Under Which It Was Painted by Detaille.

M. Jules Claretie, who was a friend of Edouard Detaille, tells a charming anecdote of the famous painter in the Paris Temps. One day a young trooper rang at his studio door and asked if M. Detaille would mind taking his likeness.

"Who sent you to me?" asked Detaille.

"My good comrades of the regiment, who say that you are jolly good at catching a likeness, and as I wanted to send a Christmas present to my people I thought I would have my portrait done by you. How much will you charge me?"

"How much have you in your pocket?" asked Detaille.

"Twenty-six francs." And the trooper pulled out the money, tied up in his handkerchief, adding, "Perhaps that won't be enough?"

"Oh, yes, lots," said Detaille. "Sit down." And he had soon painted the soldier's portrait on a small wood panel.

"There you are. I hope your people will like it."

"I think they will," said the trooper. "It isn't bad at all." And he untied the four corners of the handkerchief to pay Detaille his 26 francs.

But Detaille stopped him. "No. Keep your money. But you must do two things—first of all, spend it all in drinks to my health, and secondly, don't send me your comrades to have their portraits done. I should be overworked."

The Real Boss.

"I doubt if Kitty will be happy when married. She's always had her own way too much."

"Oh, but Jack will let her go anything."

"I'm not thinking about her husband, but about her cook."—Boston Transcript.

BOYD TALKS FACTS.

Mr. Cortland Adams of West Troy, N. Y. pays the UNION CENTRAL LIFE INSURANCE CO. $27.25 annually. He received last month a dividend of $31.51, but $44.26 more than he paid the Company. In fact since 1904 Mr. Adams has received more in dividends than his insurance cost.

A New Bern policy holder has just received a dividend exceeding 50 per cent. of the premium. The UNION CENTRAL LIFE pays largest dividends and sells good, "old line" life insurance the lowest of any other company in the wide, wide world. Are you "unionized"? If not, see Boyd and get in the Union Central quick.
