SCHOLAR STATESMEN.

England's Distinguished List, From Bacon to Morley.

For nearly three centuries there has been a close association between scholarship and statesmanship in England. From the time of Francis Bacon to that of Lord Morley of Blackburn there have seldom been wanting among the conspicuous leaders of one or the other of the great parties some men who were deeply interested in learning or letters and some who had earned distinction as writers or students.

England's political history is rich in names, like those of Sir William Temple, Bolingbroke, Pulteney, Carteret, Burke, Fox, Canning, Derby, Gladstone, Beaconsfield and Salisbury, not to mention those of Swift, Addison, Grote, Macaulay and Mill, whose owners would be remembered, or had at least the power to make themselves remembered, if they had never taken an active part in public affairs.

Of England's prime ministers during the past hundred years one wrote brilliant satirical verse; another translated Homer; another was the author of the best political novels in the English language; another amused his leisure with classical scholarship and theological controversy; another occupied himself with serious scientific research; another has added to our libraries some charming historical and biographical studies.—Edinburgh Review.

PLANTING SPONGES.

Methods of Making Them Grow In Use on the Florida Coast.

Biscayne bay, Sugar Loaf Key, Anclote keys and Key West, on the Florida coast, are the principal places in this country where experiments in sponge culture have been made. The various methods are as follows:

"Seed" sponges are cut into small pieces and, after having been attached by wiring or spindle to circular or triangular cement blocks, are dropped or lowered (depending upon the depth) to rest on the ocean bottom, where they remain for a year or two until they reach a size proper for commercial purposes. They are then taken by the hook, when new cuttings are attached and the cement blocks let down again.

Another method was to string them on a wire held horizontal by stakes driven in the bottom. In doing this, however, various difficulties arose. The sponges became loose and rotated on the wire, enlarging the holes made through them, and the action of the salt water corroded and destroyed the wires until, after many trials and experiments, a lead wire with a copper core was successfully used.—St. Nicholas.

Always Ready to March.

"There isn't an army post in the United States whose garrison couldn't make ready inside of an hour to start off for any point," said an army officer. "Clockwork? Well, there's nothing mechanical about it. A man naturally is ready when he sleeps and lives with his equipment at all times. There would be no confusion. How could there be when a trooper has his clothes, his gun, his bandolier with its ninety rounds of ammunition, his web belt with ninety rounds of ammunition and his twenty-four hour emergency ration that he always keeps in his haversack? The tentage is always lying ready for use, and when the men are going on a short march two men share a small shelter tent, half of which is carried by each man. Yes, sir, right after the bugle sounds, in half an hour, a man can sort out his belongings and be ready to go anywhere."—New York Sun.

No Reward for a Tin Mine.

For some unknown reason there is a widely prevalent idea that the United States offers a reward for the discovery of a tin mine that can be worked at a profit. Many letters are received by the geological survey every year asking about this supposed reward. Where the rumor started is unknown, but it seems to be fostered by unscrupulous or ignorant persons who have mining stock to sell. The survey's officials say that the United States does not offer and so far as known to them never has offered a reward for the discovery of a tin mine or any other mine.

A Reasonable Favor.

"So you have determined to sue me for breach of promise?" "Yes." "With damages?" "Of course." "Well, say, I've got just one favor to ask of you. Don't sue me for less than $100,000. I haven't got a dollar in the world that I can call my own, and it might help my credit."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Model Cookbook.

"What—you have written a new cookbook for your wife? How did you do it?" "Easy enough. I wrote the name of each dish and underneath it the restaurant where it can be had best."—Ellegende Blätter.
