THE PARSON'S MISTAKE.

It Changed His Mind About the Customs of the Fine Folks.

A Scottish parson whose parish was remote from great cities was invited to a house party at a certain castle, and after much persuasion from his family and friends accepted. Mrs. Walford in "Memories of Victorian London" says that the elderly clergyman had never before been inside a large country house and was not at all familiar with the customs in vogue. He arrived about 5 o'clock and found the men just returned from shooting and the ladies from driving, all being at tea in the hall.

It seemed nice and sociable on a chilly November afternoon, and delighted to find such simplicity prevailing where he had not looked for it, he partook heartily of cake, sandwiches and so forth.

At a little before 7 o'clock some neighbors, who were merely calling, took themselves off, and the rest of the company broke up and went upstairs with bedroom candles in their hands.

"Well, this is better still," thought my humble friend, and he rehearsed to himself the phrases he would use to describe the situation afterward. He would emphatically repudiate the notion that the "aristocracy" kept late hours and were too much addicted to conviviality. He heard himself saying: "Late hours, indeed? I haven't been to bed so early since I was a boy."

He judged that he had been asleep some time when the sound of a gong reverberating through the passages made him start up in bed. What was the meaning of it? What terrible thing had happened? Could the house be on fire?

Finding the back stairs close by, down he rushed to the housekeeper's room and electrified the good woman by demanding breathlessly:

"What is it? What's the matter?" "Lor', sir, nothing ain't the matter," said she reprovingly, "except that you'll be late to dinner. The second gong sounded five minutes ago, and you're not half dressed!"

Such speed did he make, however, on being thus enlightened that he actually got into his evening clothes and was in the drawing room before half the other guests appeared. "But," said he, "I never had the chance of delivering the speech I had so carefully prepared exculpating great folks from the charge of evil ways."

A THREE FOOT LEAP.

As Thrilling Behind the Scenes as For the Audience in Front.

The opera is "Tosca." You sit breathless in your seat in the last act waiting for the climax, when Tosca shall find Cavaradossi not shamming, but dead by the trickery of the slain Scarpia, and shall run and leap over the parapet to be dashed to pieces far below. The captain and his guards look over the edge, aghast at the sight. You rise from your seat thrilled.

Now go behind the scenes and watch Tosca leap. Nearly every one who can leave his post does go back stage, left, for this climax, which is as exciting in the reality as it is in the pretense for those who sit on the other side of the footlights. Before the curtain went up a stage hand had dragged across and thrown down just beneath the parapet a mattress some twelve inches thick and the size of an ordinary bed. The opera moves swiftly. The soldiers fire the volley, and Cavaradossi falls. Tosca, learning the truth, rushes to the parapet, looks backward toward the audience, stands magnificently defiant and leaps.

It is a good three feet in the vertical to the mattress. Do not think that the prima donna, however plump she may be, strives to save or catch herself. That leap is too great an opportunity for histrionic realism to lose one little part of its effect. She lands plump at full length, fairly taking the breath out of her, while the back stage watchers get the real gasp. It is perhaps half a minute before she recovers herself. Then she gathers herself together, all businesslike again, and hurries through the press of stage hands, chorus, super, principals, down front stage to receive the curtain calls.—New York Post.

Paper Money.

The earliest paper money issued in America was in Massachusetts in 1690 in order to satisfy the demands of clamorous soldiers. The first authorized by the Continental congress was in May, 1775. Six years later it ceased to circulate as money. Benjamin Franklin and his partner, D. Hall, printed the bills of the colony of Delaware. On the face of the note in conspicuous letters was the warning, "To counterfeit is death."

An Endearing Act.

Wife (pleadingly)—I'm afraid, Jack, you do not love me any more—anyway, as well as you used to. Husband—Why? Wife—Because you always let me get up to light the fire now. Husband—Nonsense, my love! Your getting up to light the fire makes me love you all the more.—Lippincott's.

Why They Are Happy.

"There goes the beautiful Elsie! They say she is very happy with her husband, the young artist!" "Happy? Well, as you take it! It is true they harmonize splendidly. He does not understand her, and she does not understand him!"—Pileggi's Blatter.

Nothing can possibly be conceived in the world or even out of it which can be called good without qualification except a good will.—Kant.
