LITERATURE AND ART NEGLECTED

SOUTH BUSY WITH OTHER THINGS SAYS DR. HENDERSON AT SALEM.

(Special to the Journal) Winston-Salem, June 3.—"Literature and Art have been shamefully neglected in the South," declared Dr. Archibald Henderson of the University of North Carolina in his literary address today in connection with the concluding exercises of the one hundred and eleventh annual commencement of Salem Female College.

Dr. Henderson declared that almost all of the literature of the Southern States had been exploited by the women, who by their tenacity of purpose in the organization of literary clubs had belied the false National tradition that the South is a place of hospitality, beauty and fascination, but of useless women. The speaker made mention of several southern people who have won recognition. He spoke first of President Wilson, then of Walter H. Page and William Sidney Porter. He paid a high tribute to the literary ability of Miss Adelaide Fries of this city. Each of the names especially the last was greeted with hearty applause. Thirty-eight graduates received the A. B. degree, while certificates were awarded to twelve in special courses, vocal and instrumental music, and seven in domestic science.
