Fine shower of rain yesterday.

No Mayor's Court for two days.

Only one marriage license issued last week by the Register of Deeds.

Elder J. B. Parsons will preach at Temperance Hall today at 11 o'clock.

No cotton received at the Exchange yesterday. Prices unchanged.

Judge Gilmer passed up the road yesterday. He holds court in Wayne to-morrow.

Capt. W. A. Thompson will attend court at Goldsboro next week canvassing for the Journal.

It is Street's Ferry and not Swift Creek to which the Methodist picnic will go on Tuesday next.

Chl. John D. Whitford left for Raleigh yesterday, to attend a meeting of the Directors of A. & N. C. R. R.

Robert Hancock Jr. arrived on the train yesterday morning. He is superintendent of the document room at Washington City.

Mr. W. A. Fulcher, Foreman in the Newbern office, in transferring the "form" from press to imposing stone on Friday night dropped the same, which falling on his heel inflicting a painful wound. No bones broken.

We are very glad to hear of the appreciative kindness shown the family of Mr. John M. Roberts, late of the Southern Express Company, by all the employees of the Company, on the sad journey homeward. Sympathy is sweet.

We publish by request an article on New Bern Academy of 1819, published in the Journal of Commerce of this city in 1876. It is very interesting, and in reciting the power it possessed in the olden times, is very suggestive of what it ought to be doing now.

We were pleased to meet in the city yesterday, Mr. J. W. Grainger, of Kinston. His health is somewhat improved. He has by liberal advertising built up a large trade in the buggy, wagon and engine business and speaks of establishing a branch house in this city.

Killed by Lightning.

During the thunder storm yesterday two negroes and three white men were killed by lightning near Black Creek, Wilson county. We have not learned the names of the parties.

Fairy Flowers.

The Secretary of the Memorial Association requests all who attend the memorial exercises on Wednesday to carry flowers for the purpose of decorating the graves of our dead.

Everybody's Book.

A small pamphlet with the above title, published by P. M. Hale of Raleigh, and edited by Col. Walter Clark has been sent us for review. The book is neatly printed, and if distributed free would deserve some commendation. But while purporting to contain legal information to the value of 25 cents to the buyer, it is really an advertisement for Walter Clark, and the legal contents rather common place in character—might well be given as an offset for the "ad."

Commissioners' Proceedings.

The County Commissioners held a special meeting on Saturday, to consider a proposition from the Trustees of the New Bern Academy for the sale of the lot on the corner of Broad and Craven streets. The Board made the following order:

That the committee appointed to confer with the Trustees of the New Bern Academy be instructed and are authorized to make the following proposition to the Trustees:

The county will lease the lot on the corner of Broad and Craven streets for a term of ninety-nine years at an annual rental of $940, with the privilege of buying the lot at any time within ten years for $4000, to be paid in bonds of the county running thirty years at 6 per cent. interest, or for the cash, at the option of the county.

A committee was appointed, consisting of Commissioners Brinson, Mallison and Biddle, to investigate the feeding of the prisoners in the county jail.

The Confederate Monument.

The funds for the erection of the monument over the Confederate dead in Cedar Grove Cemetery have been exhausted, and still the monument is not complete. A large portion of the funds were used in building the vault, and for this reason the monument is still unfinished. For the purpose of raising funds to complete it, a mite box will be conspicuously placed in the cemetery on Memorial Day, and all who attend are earnestly requested to contribute a mite for this noble purpose.

New Court House.

We were in error a few days ago when we stated that the County Commissioners had not adopted a plan and specifications for the new Court House. The drawing which is at the Register's office, shows the building to be 94 feet long by 53 wide, two stories high. The first story is to be thirteen feet one and a half inches between joists, the first twenty feet in the clear. The lower floor is to be divided into four rooms 25-6 by 18 each and one room 12 by 18. There is to be an entrance at each end and on one side with a passage 12 feet wide. In the rear end is to be two fire proof vaults, one 12 by 18 the other 12 by 12.

Memorial Services.

The citizens and the several organizations of the city will assemble at the Academy Green on Wednesday evening. Precisely at 5 o'clock p. m. the procession, in charge of the Chief Marshal, W. B. Lane, and his assistants, will move for Cedar Grove Cemetery, with music by the New Bern Silver Cornet Band. When the procession is formed around the monument the ceremonies will be performed in the following order:

1. Music by the choir, led by Prof. De La Croix—Guard Around the Tomb.

2. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. L. C. Vass.

3. Music by the choir—"Not Forgotten."

4. Address by Dr. James F. Long.

5. Music by the choir—"Rest, Soldier Rest."

6. Benediction.

7. Doxology, in which all are requested to join.

Kinston Items.

Young Mark LaRoque, son of W. D. LaRoque, died on Friday night. He was a bright and promising boy and his death is sad and untimely.

This is a dull Friday—almost a "Black Friday." Everybody, little and big, are off to the picnic below New Bern.

Several of the Sunday Schools of this place united and got up this monster picnic, carrying away six or seven hundred people on pleasure bent, most of them joyous and happy Sunday School pupils, a large lot of indomitable widows, widowers and old maids, with an elegant supply of baskets plethoric with all the delicacies and substantial of the season.

Soon after the departure of the train the town put on a solitary and deserted air. Even the beasts of the field sympathized with the idle and lazy-looking merchants, and sought to splay their trade. Squire King's old hornless cow walked inquiringly into one of his new brick stores in search of something green—even a green trader. She met with a hearty welcome, having been energetically ejected by the disgusted and insulted merchant.

Homecoming.—Louis Croom, col., living on the farm of Jesse L. Kennedy, in the Falling Creek section, was killed by Henry Kennedy, col., on the night of the 3d instant.

Croom suspected Kennedy of improper intimacy with his wife while he was absent attending the meetings of the Samaritans. On the night of the killing he induced his wife to believe that he had gone to the Lodge, but really concealed himself under his house. Shortly after Croom was supposed to be gone Kennedy entered the house, when Croom heard what occurred in the house. Kennedy, finding he was caught, moved off to a neighboring house, and Croom followed him up threateningly, when Kennedy, warning Croom not to advance on him, shot him through the left eye, producing almost instantaneous death. Kennedy made his escape and has not yet been taken.

Beaufort Items.

The Methodist Sunday School picnic at the Fort to-day.

The Executive Committee of this county, I learn, have endorsed Hon. C. C. Clarke, of your city, for Congressman at large.

One of our merchants tried to sell a sewing machine this week to a gentleman from the country. "Why," said he, "I have a better machine than that; had it forty-six years." He meant his wife, of course.

Professor Brooks, of Johns Hopkins, has arrived, and is preparing for his summer work. A larger number of students will be present than ever before. The special study will be "The oyster, its life and habits."

Mr. J. C. Davis is having built, according to his own drawing and plan (which he has been carrying in his pocket for five years), a sharpie fifty feet long. This will take the lead in size of any boat of the kind known to our people.

Mr. Wm. Hardesty, foreman of the Grand Jury, a worthy and prominent citizen of this county, lost a fine horse yesterday. About the time Mr. Hardesty was to start home his horse took sick, and despite all that could be done, died.

The revival at the Ann street Methodist Church, under the pastorate of Rev. N. M. Jurney, has closed. It is believed much good has been accomplished. About twenty-three have professed faith in Christ, and about that number will join the Church. The Church is undergoing repairs, and will be completed by the District Conference in June. It will be a pious Church when done.

The Superior Court has been in session during the week. Judge Gilmer presiding. His charge to the Grand Jury was the best I ever heard. I could not help taking his hand at the hotel and thanking him. He said to me that while in Asheville last summer he met Mr. Bishop Wightman, and during a conversation the said "Oh, Judge, what an opportunity you have for doing good!" and, said he, that remark has followed me till now, and I have endeavored to profit by it. Letter from Dr. Burkhead.

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 3, 1882.

DEAR JOURNAL.—I visited the Publishing House of the M. E. Church, South, this morning. There I met quite a number of the "brethren." I found the "Missionary Secretary," Rev. A. W. Watson, D. D., hard at work getting ready for General Conference. The Doctor is a man of the intellect and great force of character. There is much talk of electing him Bishop. He is a member of the Baltimore Conference. When I handed him $100 for Foreign Missions from New Bern he seemed greatly pleased that the good people of our little city had responded so promptly to his appeal in behalf of the good cause. As I entered the office of Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald, D. D., editor of the Christian Advocate, he rose and greeted me warmly, and referred at once to the revival in New Bern, saying he rejoiced with us in the great work. After some conversation about the people of North Carolina, the duties and toils of his own position as editor of our "Church Organ," were discussed. Pointing to a box under his table, which will hold perhaps three bushels, he said "that box should be embalmed. The whole church owes it a debt of gratitude; for it is a great friend of the Methodist Church. It has been emptied nine times in the last five years. It is now about half full of rejected articles." Just think of the poetry, eloquence, history, science philosophy and theology which this box consumes—thrown into its open mouth by this cruel editor! How many brilliant authors—search the columns of the Christian Advocate from week to week to find their splendid productions; but search in vain! They say "dead men tell no tales," and this editor sits there with scissors in hand, cuts the throats of all these beautiful creations and throws them in this waste box and seems to take real delight in this business, and to think he should have the thanks of the whole church for this wholesale slaughter! The Doctor is a native of North Carolina. He is a warm-hearted, clear-headed and hard-working editor. He came to Nashville via California. He is one of a great number who can testify that "North Carolina is a great State to move from." Many North Carolinians become distinguished after they leave their native land. Dr. Fitzgerald is one of the best editors in the United States. He is a good man and a sincere and earnest Christian.

I also called on Dr. Cunningham, the editor of the Sunday School papers. He is a man of pleasant manners. He too came to Nashville via China. But he is the "right man in the right place." The Doctor is a member of the Holston Conference. I hope these two editors will be re-elected.

I saw Dr. McFerrin, book agent. He is looking well and some of the Nashville people want him elected Bishop—although he is perhaps more than 75 years old.

Rev. R. A. Young, D. D., six feet six inches high—is as genial as ever. I think he stands higher than any man in the General Conference.

I am domiciled at the elegant home of L. F. Benson on Vine street, near the centre of the city. Mr. Benson, a lay delegate from California, is also to stay at Mr. Benson's. The East and West meet together.

Nashville is growing rapidly. It is perhaps, now, the "Athens" of the South.

The Cumberland River which runs through the city, is now very peaceful and quiet. One can hardly realize, that only two weeks ago it run many thousands of the population of Nashville out of their homes.

If this hurried scroll finds its way to the "waste box," I shall not complain. L. S. BURKHEAD.

Emigration.

NEW BERNE, May 6th 1882.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—The remarks of yours on the enquiry of the gentlemen of Pennsylvania as to the Piedmont section of North Carolina, brings to mind conclusions that I had long since reached, and it is that this State should look to our northern neighbors for immigrants, rather than to Europe.

There is in Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania a positive overflow of population—that is of agricultural population—who seek cheaper lands, larger farms than they can command in their present locations unless at an extravagant outlay of money, especially in this case in Pennsylvania. As an illustration in February 1880 there was an emigrants train made up in the Cumberland Valley for the west, which when concentrated, from various routes, at Harrisburg, contained over four hundred and fifty persons old and young. These were all actual citizens of the State they were leaving and their motives will be best explained by the following incident:

The writer, had the pleasure of dining with a gentleman living near the Cumberland Valley Rail Road, his home was one of those old fashioned farms of that section, stone barns, stone fences, and an air of comfort and solidity combined on every side. At the table he stated that in the winter he should take his family to the west—Kansas or Colorado the probable destination. To the enquiry why he left so comfortable a home in such a fertile country as he had, to undertake the hardships of a western life, to rear his children under so many disadvantages, as he must meet there his answer was, substantially this; said he "when my father died he owned all the land that comprises the farms that I occupy, the one my sister occupies and the third the home of my brother.

He left but three children each of us received from his estate a home sufficient to raise and comfortably support the three families.

Now I have five children and I cannot possibly provide for them as my father provided for me if we remain here—therefore I have sold this farm for eighteen thousand dollars, and with that sum can buy sufficient land in the west to divide among my children and leave them double the quantity that I received from my father and give them a fair start on the road of life.

Although my wife and self are getting on in years, yet we feel that in separating from old associations relatives and neighbors we are discharging a duty to our children paramount to all other.

I do not propose, however, to lose all interest in the old homestead nor the old State. I own a lot in the Cemetery over on the Hill—which you say you have visited—and have lately sent over a wagon load of earth from this farm, and placed upon that lot so that we shall ever have an interest here in the sacred soil of my childhood home."

This family was a part of the 450.

The West is well advertised; samples of wheat, oat, and other grain is placed in glass cases at the various Railway stations and the curious are informed by painted and printed notices, that this was grown in such and such a section of the west, how much per acre etc. Then maps of the various sections and grants are all about you, Rail road Routes clearly defined, cities that are, and cities that are to be, are all located, winding up generally with the imperative command "Buy your tickets by this route" quicker time, less charges etc, while information of the South is well illustrated in the following:

A gentleman from this State was at the church in Philadelphia in which General Washington formerly worshipped and after service asked the usher some questions about the building which betrayed his rural descent. You are not from the city then said the usher. No said the Carolinian. I am from North Carolina.

"Are you?" said the clever gentleman "then wont you let me take you in and introduce you to our minister, he is from down your way?"

"From our way?" said the Carolinian. "Yes sir he is from Cuba."

No disrespect is meant by the recital of this incident, but it shows that the eyes of but few persons are turned toward us and likely never will be until a more systematic effort is made to attract attention than has been heretofore made.

Spicy and Pointed.

The Runners have it, that we were beaten in our ward last Monday, which is a bald headed lie. We were not a candidate at all. We did favor Mr. J. W. Harrell, the regular nominee, for Councilman, and worked for him, but the Parson ran an Independent ticket and was elected. We had the Parson beat on Saturday night, but he got a chance to preach in Andrew Chapel on Sunday, while Bro. Farmer was away, and of course, he preached a powerful sermon. We are informed, that he took his text in Psalm, and at the time he was speaking about Saul, Jonathan and David, and just as he spoke of the arrows, the Holy Spirit came down from glory, and the sisters got happy—and Oh! what a time there was. The Parson, sometimes, preaches to save souls, but that sermon was preached to save votes, on Monday. Every brother of the cross walked up to the ballot box and voted for the Parson. Anyone with common sense knows, that Harrell could not poll more votes than Saul, Jonathan and David, and "that is what's the matter with Hannah."—New Bern Lodge.

Gov. Jarvis on Graded Schools.

I congratulate the people of Durham on the result of the vote on the graded school question. As rapid as has been the growth and prosperity of Durham in the past, I shall expect both to be still more rapid and marked in the future. A town that provides for the certain education of all its children will reap its reward in good citizens, good government, in virtue, intelligence and wealth. Well done for Durham. Her example is worthy of imitation.

"I wanted very much to come up and be with you Thursday night, but I was so situated that I could not come.

"God bless and prosper the graded school is the prayer of

Your obedient servant,
