LOCAL NEWS.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Geo. T. DUFFY—Steamer Trent. ATHLETES—Notice of Meeting.

High tide again yesterday. Cotton receipts at the Exchange foot up two bales.

Mr. H. T. Hurtt has opened a picture gallery on Broad street.

Eggs retailed at 15 cents per dozen yesterday at the market stands.

The Daily Patriot of Greensboro came to hand yesterday. It is an improvement on the other Greensboro papers.

Mr. Daniel Lane sent in yesterday a crate of the finest strawberries we have seen this season. They were "superb."

Rev. Father Oberle will preach to-night at the Catholic Church. He has held services there on the two preceding evenings.

We put the fare from New Berne to Norfolk, by way of O. D. S. Co., too low. It is $3.95 for second class, and $5.00 for first class.

In our estimate some days ago of the amount of butter sold here during the year, we made a wide miss in our guess. Instead of 12,000 pounds sold per year, there must be over 100,000 pounds. One dealer alone, Mr. Alex. Miller, sells as much as 15,000 pounds. But he has extra facilities for keeping it nice, and makes something of a specialty on this.

Hames and Hay.

Mr. W. H. Oliver in opening a bale of Northern hay on yesterday found a hame and part of a trace in it. Perhaps some one else may find the other hame in a bale, and another may find the balance of the harness, which, if put together would make a good outfit.

Narine News.

The steamer Experiment, Capt. Cannon, of the Clyde line came in on Wednesday night with a fair cargo of general merchandise.

The schooner Carrie Reed, Capt. Lindsey, of Bay river arrived yesterday evening with a cargo of corn consigned to Capt. Thos. Gates.

Personal.

Mr. Geo. M. Carr, canvassing for the New South is in the city, in the interests of his paper.

Mr. F. B. McCall of Pamlico called to see us yesterday. He reports the rice crop as looking well in his section.

Mr. W. J. Street proprietor of Nunn's Hotel at Kinston is in the city. He keeps one of the best hotels in the State. Sheriff D. B. Hooker of Pamlico called on us on Thursday. We are glad to hear the cold snap has not seriously hurt the crops of that fertile county.

Mr. C. Stevens of Richland county is in the city. He is one of the commissioners of the Quaker Bridge road and will attend a meeting of the board to be held in Trenton on Saturday.

The Athletes.

We publish below a list of the members of the Athletic organization in New Berne who have paid up the 25 per cent of their subscription. An inspection will show that some of the best men in the city are on the list, and this is a guarantee that it will prove successful. It is a much needed institution, especially for the young men of the city. The following is the list:

W. B. Boyd, J. L. Hahn, H. C. Stevenson, W. M. Bell, E. R. Roberts, J. D. Yeomans, J. L. Street, Geo. Ash, J. R. Jones, Henry French, Jos. Nelson, H. A. Rue, J. J. Tolson, J. W. Smith, C. Ives, Alex. Miller, S. T. Hurtt, S. R. Street, J. T. Rue, Geo. Slover, Radcliff, R. Hancock Jr., "I'll do it," C. H. Blank, H. A. Creagh, L. W. Hancock, Thos. Boyle, S. H. Gray, Ralph Gray, Wm. Sulstan, Thos. Daniels, R. H. Holm, R. O. E. Lodge, W. F. Rountree, Willie H. Rountree, A. W. Wood, Geo. Howard, B. A. Bell, Geo. N. Ives, C. Erdman, Jno. Dunn, R. Ulrich, S. K. Eaton, J. W. Harper, R. B. Claiborne, R. A. Richardson, Chas. S. Hollister, M. Patrick, W. B. Guion, J. M. Howard, Ed. Faison, Roberts, Jno. B. Howard.

The Horse Trade in New Berne.

We have been enquiring about the annual sales of horses in New Berne, and from what we learn, there are considerably more horses sold in Kinston every year than in New Berne. What is the reason for this? New Berne handles four or five times as much poultry and other farm produce, and it would be natural for these same farmers to buy their horses and mules, to make a new crop of cotton, at the place where they sold the old crop.

The reason is plain:—Joe, Lassiter at Kinston, in addition to being a good trader, used in the Kinston Journal a heavy "ad." with a picture of a fine horse, and the readers of the paper naturally went there to buy. Of course we are interested in getting advertisements for our paper, but we challenge one to find a flaw. The four Kinston business men who did the heaviest advertising in the Journal went well to the front in their trade. Qbitinger Bros. had a good trade to start with, and continued to increase; Einstein went from second rank well up in front; J. W. Grainger started from nothing and now leads Kinston in the amount of his sales, and Lassiter sells more horses in one year than could have been sold in five, several years ago.

The WEEKLY JOURNAL has now 38 many subscribers as it ever had, and expects to double its list in the next eighteen months—and what it has done for the Kinston dealers, it can do for the New Berne merchants. A good paper with a large circulation is the making of a city if the business men of the community take advantage of its columns to push their business.

Mayors Court.

Mollie O'Neil, you are charged with violating sec. 11 of Chap. 8 of the city ordinance, on May 17th, by lewd swearing and cursing on the public street. Are you guilty or not guilty?

"Yes sir, I am guilty," replied Mollie. "Let the witnesses be sworn in order to see to what extent she is guilty."

Wm. Colligan, Ed Bender and Dennis Wadsworth were sworn.

"Mr. Colligan," said His Honor, "will you tell us what you know about this matter?"

"I know nothing about it, sir, nothing at all, I heard loud talking but don't know anything about it."

"Stand aside."

"Ed Bender, tell us what you know about it."

"I heard some remarks made by her, to the lady of the store I suppose, didn't hear swearing—paid no attention."

"Did she attract attention, draw a crowd?"

"A lot of childing gathered up—you know how childing will do. She was a lettin' on a little and the other woman was lettin' on a little."

Dennis Wadsworth was the only one of the three sworn who seemed likely to corroborate the pleadings of the defendant. He testified to having heard some one cursing on the street and appeared to be drunk.

"Is she in the habit of drinking?"

"I saw her going across the street in a position like she was drinking."

McCarthy at this juncture asked His Honor the privilege of making a statement which he was allowed to do after being sworn. He stated that he had often seen this woman drunk; that she kept him up all night before last and that her character was bad.

"Mollie O'Neil, you have plead guilty, have you anything to say?"

"Yes sir, I was in Mr. McCarthy's store to get some meat for my dinner. After I got it he commenced to abuse me, and—"

"That had nothing to do with this case. If he did you a wrong you should have proceeded against him according to law. In consideration of being drunk and using bad language I shall have to fine you five dollars and cost, it being your first offense."

"Will you trust me till Saturday?"

"Take your seat, will arrange that after awhile."

"Good morning gentlemen," said James A. McDonald, as he stepped in at the door accompanied by the jailer and two policemen.

Removing his hat, an ugly scur appeared on his head, and from the looks of the stain on his left shoulder a little letting of blood was thought necessary in conquering him.

He was charged with being drunk and disorderly, which charge was sustained by the evidence of Marshal Gaakill and policeman Bowden. (He didn't deny the charge of having drunk a little but had no recollection of being disorderly.)

"Will you let me say a word, Mr. Mayor?" said he after policeman Bowden closed his testimony.

"Yes sir."

"I told 'em, if I remember rightly, that I had pawned my cap for the last load of ice, and—"

"Never mind," said His Honor, "that is another case. Take your seat."

"James A. McDonald, you are charged here with a second offense—violating Sec. 8 Chap. 2 of the city ordinance, resisting an officer. Are you guilty of this charge?"

"Well sir, we played around in here a little."

"Must have been pretty rough playing from the looks of the floor."

"Rough on my head, sir."

"Take your seat I will hear the testimony."

Policeman Hurtt and Mr. J. K. Willis were sworn.

Mr. Hurtt testified to the manner in which McDonald had acted after they got him to the station; how he came near tearing down the cell and making his escape; his summoning help; how McDonald kicked him in the face and bit Bowden's thumb, and that Bowden was compelled to use his club before they could ever quiet him.

Mr. Willis testified that he went over there and saw McDonald endeavoring to get away from the policeman; that the second time he went over he had to assist them in order to prevent his escape and that policeman Bowden was compelled to use his club but struck him a very light kick.

"Mr. McDonald," said His Honor, after the testimony was concluded, "come up here. When you were here before I was disposed to be merciful towards you. I furnished you money out of my own pocket to get away from the city."

"Out in Texas I expected for 'em to be rough but—"

"There is no mercy in me for you now. You broke the faith; you abused the mercy extended towards you before. I shall give you the full extent of the law. Twenty dollars and cost in each case or thirty days in jail for each offense."

"I am not one of them to beg off—you all know I'm a man."

"When you come out of jail I want you to understand you must leave the city if you have to leave in irons."

"Well, let's go jailer. Good morning gentlemen."

And off he went for Craven street hotel.

Kinston Items.

Corn and meal $1.00 a bushel.

Eggs have advanced to 15c. a dozen.

There was a slight frost here on the morning of the 17th instant.

Our old friend Robinson Wood thinks that men should imitate the rhinoceros, which manages to get along from day to day "on one horn."

Captain John D. Grimsley, of Greene county, at his brick yard near Snow Hill, on the 16th instant, had his right hand so badly mangled in his brick machine as to cause amputation of the right arm at the elbow.

The recent cold spell has caused bad worms to eat the young corn very badly in the low lands, and has given cotton a damaging set back. The cut worm is also in it. The injury to both corn and cotton will be quite serious.

Cleco Collins, confined in jail for the murder of his child, with other prisoners, filed the locks off their cell last Monday night and came very near making their escape. They were discovered by the jailer in time to stop them. The woman friend of Collins, with whom he had been living, confesses to have furnished him with a file several days ago. She has been committed to jail.

Those who assume to control Kinston Collegiate Institute under the new regime met last Monday night and tendered to Joseph Kinsey the management of the school as Principal, offering at the same time the position as music teacher to Mrs. Anna L. Davis. It is not known that she will go into this arrangement. It is understood, however, that Mr. Kinsey accepts the position, and will open the Fall Session with four teachers and make a Graded School of it. So there is "life in the old land yet." The right of ownership of the corporate name of this institution will be legally tested.

The steamer Trent, with her careful and popular officers, Capt. Taylor and engineer Lassiter, landed at Kinston wharf quite unexpectedly on last Monday with a picnic party of more than two hundred from Jolly Old Field. This large crowd—Commander Griffin apparently in command—moved up from the steamer into the Court House with their baskets, and after partaking of refreshments, sailed away on the fine steamer, "gay and happy still." Four unfortunate rights missed the steamer on her departure but overtook her at the railroad bridge, considerably reduced in breath and drenched with perspiration.

Cotton Seed.

MESSES. EDITORS:—The following is based upon a recent article by Professor Dabney of the Agricultural Experiment Station, or extracted directly from it: Six million bales of cotton are annually produced in the South, the seed of which amounts to the vast quantity of three million tons, but till recently this product has been very inadequately appreciated, and only a small part of the surplus has been used to which it can be put have been known. Year by year some new use has been developed, and it seems probable that in the near future the value of the seed will be in large proportion to the value of the lint. From a food for domestic animals, and a fertilizer when returned home to the soil, it has come to be used for human food in the form of table oil, lard and butter, and for general cooking purposes. And for use both for stock feeding and fertilizing, the meal when ground from the cake after the seed, has been hulled and the oil expressed has been found to be better than the whole seed.

As a feeding stuff cotton seed meal is rich in those elements which are digested and assimilated. The raw seed and the meal contain about the same amount of water and the same amount of mineral matter, a part of the latter being digestible and contributing to the formation of the bones and tissues, and though the meal contains but one-half the amount of fat it has also but one-fifth the quantity of indigestible woody fibre, while it contains twice the amount of flesh forming properties, twice the amount of nitrogen and twice the amount of digestible fibre, starch, and substances of similar composition.

Cotton seed meal, as compared with corn meal, contains much less water and but one-third the amount of digestible fibre, starch, etc., but four times the flesh forming properties, three times the fat, three times the crude fibre, and five times the mineral substances.

As a fertilizer cotton seed meal has many advantages over the raw seed. One-half the seed by weight is hull which is of comparatively small value not being rich in nitrogen or ammonia. The oil is of no value whatever as manure, being changed by the action of the soil into carbonic acid and water which are usually present in abundance.

The meal is especially rich in nitrogen (six and a half per cent), potash, magnesia and phosphoric acid. Estimating the ammonia from the nitrogen at twenty-five cents, and the phosphoric acid and potash each at six cents, a ton of cotton seed meal ought to be worth forty-six and a quarter dollars. The Georgia Board of Agriculture fixes it at forty-seven dollars and a half.

Morehead City Items.

They commenced to unload one of the barks of her rails yesterday, and from the number of trains leaving here loaded it looks as if the management of the Midland had commenced to lay their track or tracks with energy at last.

The Rev. J. E. Mann, presiding Elder for this district, preached for us on Wednesday night from the text: "And your covenant with hell shall be disannulled and your agreement with death shall not stand."—Isa. 28 ch. 18 v. The church was literally crowded with people, all of whom seemed to be deeply impressed. There never has been so much feeling shown on the subject of religion as there is in our town now, and the labors of the Rev. Mr. Puckett are being blessed.

On Wednesday last the two Norwegian barks in our harbor were literally loaded with bunting, and ever and anon a salute was fired on board of the Gull-bringa. All this was done in commemoration of the coalition or union of the governments of Sweden and Norway under the reign of King Oscar, it having taken place on the 17th of May. The Captain of the Gullbringa says they have had five National holidays since he has been here—Shrove Thursday, Good Friday, Easter, Prayer Day and Ascension Day. He says if any person is caught at work in Norway on either of the above days they are liable to a fine.

STATE NEWS.

Gleaned from our Exchanges.

—University Normal School opens June 15th.

—Wayne county Teachers' Institute opens June 13th.

—Bonitz's new hotel at Goldsboro will contain 70 nice rooms.

—A Nash county gold mine is panning out $40 per ton of ore.

—The small pox is raging at Clover, on the R. & D. R. R., says the Greensboro Patriot.

—Twenty new doctors received diplomas at the State Medical Convention, Alas for suffering humanity!

—The Roanoke News suggests Capt. W. H. Kitchen's name for Congressman at large. It is generally thought that Mr. Kitchen has had his full share of Congressional honors!

—News and Observers. The schedule on the Western North Carolina Railroad has changed to the summer schedule, and now Raleigh can pass on to Asheville without a change of trains. The train leaves Raleigh at 11:45 a. m., reaches Asheville at 9 a. m., and Waco Springs at 1 p. m.

—Greensboro Patriot. Mr. August J. Debevoise of Greensboro, Va., has patented the Bonbow machine which runs the Glasscock foundry and will put up a patent fruit evaporator for the purpose of drying fruit. This is an important and much needed enterprise, and promises to be highly successful. Farmers can find a ready market for much of the fruit that is every year wasted.

—Goldsboro Messenger. Snow fell on Monday in portions of Johnston county. The ground at Mill Creek Church, in the Beutonsville section, was covered with snow. We hear of hail in other neighborhoods.—This has been a hard year on horse dealers. Mr. J. F. Southernland lost fully $2,000 during the winter by horses dying from "pink-eye." We are glad to learn that the disease has abated.—The work on the artesian well has progressed to a depth of 80 feet. Mr. Weatherbee is well pleased with his work so far and thinks he will strike rock soon. The supply of pipe is exhausted which may delay the work a few days.

—W. Review. Hon. John W. Shackelford has introduced a bill asking for six thousand dollars to survey the lands between Morehead City and New River, northeast branch of the Cape Fear River, Waccamaw, South and Coleridge rivers, North Carolina.—The Association of Officers of the Third N. C. Infantry celebrated their 16th anniversary yesterday at the residence of Capt. W. A. Cumming and W. H. Northrop, on Greenville Sound. The day was passed very pleasantly and the committee of arrangements were universally commended for the manner in which they had prepared for the occasion. Letters were read from Ex-President Davis, Gen. W. R. Cox and Rev. A. Dell Meares. There were fourteen members present, and among them several non-residents. Appropriate speeches were made and many a reminiscence of past days suffering and daring were told among those who yesterday gathered around the festive camp-fire.

It is reported that Sir Alexander Tait is to become Canadian Minister of the Interior, in place of Mr. John A. MacDonell in the duties of that important office.

NOTICE!

NORTH CAROLINA PROBATE COURT.

CHAS. S. HARRISON, Clerk.

Jos. C. Harrison, Adm'r vs. the heirs at law of Betsy Brown, dec'd.

To MACKLIN MOORE, one of the defendants in above entitled proceeding:

You are hereby required to appear before the Probate Court of Craven county on Saturday June 24th, 1882, and
