The dock at the foot of Craven street is being repaired by the city authorities.

Mr. Sam Smallwood bought in a lot of new rice yesterday at 90 cents per bushel. Price is going up.

Mr. J. I. Rhem has sown this fall one hundred dollars worth of cabbage seed. They are up and growing nicely.

Two of our New Berne ladies have taken stock and been enrolled as members of the Athletic and Social Club.

Three hundred bushels of corn were sold yesterday at 81 cents per bushel. The market has an upward tendency.

Sheriff Koonce of Jones carried up to the penitentiary yesterday, Alford Ward and Charles Whitfield, sentenced for 10 and 15 years.

A good sprinkling of Jones county-men in the city yesterday. The Republican candidate for Clerk of Superior Court "set 'em up."

The skating at Weinstein's Hall on Tuesday night was fine, and the sport delightful. The Hall will be opened for ladies to-morrow night.

We learn from the Star that J. W. Collier alias George Harris, convicted of rogering in the Criminal Court, received five years in the penitentiary.

Mr. J. C. Whitty's Machine Monthly No. 3 is on our table. It gives a very interesting summary of news as well as being a good advertising sheet.

Another colored man, Isaac Forbes, came in yesterday with 11 bales of cotton. Numbers of the colored people in this county are accumulating wealth.

There are thirteen prisoners in the county jail. One of these—Lena Grice, a strong, healthy looking negro woman, is serving out a two months' term for vagrancy.

The dime party at Rev. Mr. Eason's last night was quite a success. The editor returns thanks for the ice cream and cake sent in. He had a representative present, our neighbor of the Machine Monthly, who did justice to his share of this delicious treat.

Good Crop

Morris McDaniel, of Jones, who was in the city yesterday reports that he has 2½ acres in cotton and over three thousand pounds have been picked from it already. He thinks he will get twelve or fifteen hundred pounds more.

Off to the Fair.

Messrs. J. C. Parker, John W. Collins, Joseph Simmons, George Summerhill, Furniford Wilcox and T. B. Henderson all excellent farmers of Jones county, arrived last night on the steamer Trent and took the train this morning for Raleigh to attend the Fair.

A Night Watch.

Mr. B. A. Bell, the jeweler, has a neatly constructed watch by which a blind man, or a man in the dark can tell the time to a minute. By touching a spring on the inside it will strike the hour, and by touching another it will strike the number of minutes. It will also strike the number of quarter hours. Good watch for those who walk at night.

Your Name in Print.

Mrs. M. E. Manly returned from Baltimore, where she has been visiting her sons and daughter during the summer months, on Tuesday night.

Mr. R. J. Lassiter of Smithfield was in the city yesterday.

Mr. Ed. Havens, son of our townsman Jonathan Havens, of Washington arrived in the city yesterday evening.

Cotton Yesterday.

Cotton had its "ups and downs" yesterday. The first telegrams showed futures off six points and spots 4 lower, and the noon reports carried futures down four more points. This carried consternation among buyers, and but for Dall Bros. a panic was imminent. This firm bulled the market keeping the figures up from 10 to 10½, and buying near 200 bales. Late in the evening futures went up 9 points and the day closed with sales of ten bales by T. A. Green, Esq., at 10 5-16. During the day 250 bales were sold.

Sea Turtles.

On Wednesday morning Bill Lovick and Alfred Tilghman brought in two large sea turtles—the largest ever brought to this market—which were on exhibition, one at Ulrich's wharf, the other at E. B. Lane's. They were caught in the nets of these fishermen about thirty miles down the river from here, and measured three feet across, five and a half feet long and seven feet around. They had holes in their back shells and had evidently been roped before.

River Steamers.

The Tyger Lily tailed for Hyde county last night with a good cargo of general merchandise.

The steamer Trent arrived from Polkville last night with 57 bales of cotton, 12,900 feet of lumber, 200 bags of cotton seed and seven passengers. She sails this morning for Stonewall, and will hereafter make two trips per week to and from that point.

The steamer Defiance of the Clyde line arrived from Baltimore on Wednesday morning with a large freight. She will sail this morning with naval stores and about 800 bales of cotton.

New Berne too Far Off.

"Who is that large white haired man standing over yonder?" asked a JOURNAL reporter of a bystander at Smithfield on Monday last.

"That is Major Smith."

"Is that Joe Turner's 'blow your horn Billy'?"

"Yes, yes, ha, ha, ha."

"I believe I'll drum him for the JOURNAL."

"He is very liberal about taking papers. He takes fifteen, and a few days ago he read all of his papers and had to fall back on the history of the United States. Says he learned something from it that he never knew before."

The reporter kept an eye on the Major and finally cornered him in the market house buying a bunch of fish, fresh from Beaufort.

"Wouldn't you like to take a New Berne paper Major?"

"Oh no, oh, no, no; New Berne is too far off. I take the 'New York Herald and I don't care to take one any farther from home than New York!'"

The reporter shoved a Weekly JOURNAL at him and requested him to take it home and read it that night, which he did and there was no trouble in "taking his scalp" the next day.

Among the Milliners.

Seeing so many attractive "ads" in Wednesday's JOURNAL from the Millinery establishments in New Berne, a JOURNAL special reporter directed his footsteps towards the places described, merely for a glimpse—not to enter in and interview the ladies commanding.

On Pollock street he finds the familiar face of Mrs. Mary D. Dewey, and although family afflictions have borne so heavily on her within the past year, yet she is cheerful and seems as much absorbed in business as she has been wont for many years. We find her stock complete in every particular, and she and Miss Hannah as ready as ever to serve her customers with all that is fashionable and handsome, in the most beautiful style of goods. Amid all the other pretty things he saw the "latest agony" in ribbons. Go and see it reader.

On Pollock street Miss Kate L. Carraway's goods invite attention, and certainly the most fastidious taste can here be satisfied. On inquiring the news from Boston as the "ad" first appeared in the JOURNAL, we learn that it was the printer's mistake (oh those careless printers!) who read Boston instead of Baltimore. Here we find a sea of ribbons and bonnets and trimmings, just utterly lovely, and with a sales-lady attentive to every wish.

Next on Pollock street is the Millinery House of Mrs. S. H. Lane. Here is displayed the most beautiful assortment of all the most fashionable goods of the season, and fair hands are performing such cunning designs in manipulating laces and arranging flowers that the reporter is at a loss which most to admire, the beautiful fabrics of art or the elegant taste of the ladies in charge. Today is set for the OPENING of this House.

Then comes the old established House of Miss Harriette Lane. Here we find a most gorgeous display of everything that is handsome, and we are almost bewildered at the tempting display of beautiful goods. What taste and skill were used in making the lovely selections! What excellent judgment shown in their arrangement and display! With such an assistant as Mrs. Julia Jordan it is impossible for any lady to visit this place without having her wants catered to in the most pleasant and profitable manner.

We doubt if the State can produce four Millinery houses where a greater profusion or a more gorgeous display of goods are made, and where more affability and courtesy are shown customers than can be found in the houses named above.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a regular meeting of Eureka Lodge No. 7, I. O. O. F., held in the city of New Berne, N. C., on the 16th day of October 1882, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, In His infinite wisdom the Supreme Grand Master of the Universe has removed from our midst and Lodge on earth, to the Grand Lodge above, our well beloved and faithful brother S. N. Dewey, and although our grief is never so great, we will bow with humble submission and resignation to His divine will, keeping in view the Divine injunction that "He doeth all things well," and that we do not sorrow as those without hope. Therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of S. N. Dewey this Lodge has lost a true and faithful member, one who was strictly devoted to the tenets of the order, and was ever ready to answer the distress call and the community an upright, honorable and highly useful citizen.

Resolved, That as we deposit the sprig of evergreen into the grave of our deceased brother, as an emblem of "undying life" and a token of our friendship, his many virtues will ever dwell greenly in our memories.

Resolved, That we deeply and sincerely sympathize with the widow and all who are called upon to mourn the death of brother Dewey—and may the "God of all comfort" buoy them up under this heavy stroke, and sustain and comfort them in their affliction.

Resolved, That the above preamble and resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Lodge, a copy be engrossed and furnished the widow, and also a copy be furnished the journals of the city for publication.

A Trip to Smithfield.

On Monday last ye local of the JOURNAL boarded the Milland train and dashed away to Smithfield where court was being held by that able, conscientious and affable Judge, John A. Gilmer. The crowd in attendance on Monday was rather small, but on Tuesday morning they poured in from every direction until the number must have exceeded a thousand.

After dinner General W. R. Cox, the Democratic candidate for Congress in the fourth district, addressed a large audience from the piazza of the Fuller House, making a very effective speech. The General seems to be very popular in Johnson, and will no doubt receive a large vote. He was followed by his opponent, Thos. P. Devereux, who claims to be neither Democrat nor Republican. When the reporter left he was trying to corner the General about signing a paper recommending Jim Harris as a proper person for Minister to Hayti, and then going for him, Devereux, because he had declared his intention to vote for Harris instead of Busbee. We could not stay to see how the General smoothed over this little bit of apparent inconsistency.

The people of Smithfield are very much concerned about what will be done with the A. & N. C. Railroad on the 10th of November. They fear that it will be transferred to some corporation that will cut off the Smithfield branch and destroy the present freight facilities which they enjoy. If this should be done Gov. Jarvis will certainly raise a hornet's nest about his head. There are marks of improvement in every direction about the town—all done since the building of the new railroad—the old court house has been repaired and enlarged and now presents a fine appearance; trade is active, and the place is getting to be a good cotton market. While only a few bales have been sold there heretofore, it is estimated that at least ten thousand bales will be marketed this year if the railroad connection is not interfered with. As this cotton will all pass through New Berne and much of it change hands here, it is well that our business-men should use their influence to keep up the railroad connection.

The Yellow Fever in Pensacola—Extent of its Ravages, Etc.

It is probable that very few have understood fully the extent of the ravages of yellow fever at Pensacola. We saw a private letter yesterday from a prominent lawyer of that city, who is also a member of the Board of Health, addressed to a gentleman in this city, in which he says:

"We are having a sad time, my dear friend, and cannot yet see the beginning of the end. Though two or three thousand of our citizens fled upon the approach of the fever, yet the number of cases will not fall short of 1,500, with a very large death rate. Our physicians are heroes. I cannot, on paper, give you an adequate idea of the suffering of our people. The doctors are doing, and have done, their whole duty. We need good nursing to aid them and have not the money to pay first-class nurses. The weather is warm and damp, and nothing but a black frost will stop the disease. Even those who have before had the disease are being now stricken down."

The letter further states that Mr.

Watters, son of Mr. Wm. Watters of this city, who is sick with the fever, is doing well and receiving the best possible attention; his physician, a former North Carolinian, and a graduate of Chapel Hill, having the reputation of being one of the first yellow fever doctors in the world.

Money is needed by the sorely afflicted citizens to secure suitable nurses, and the good people of Wilmington, who have had in the past to contend with a similar visitation, and know something of the trials and sufferings which it entails, should not be the last to respond to the appeal for aid.—W7L Star.

Washington Letter.

(From our regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 18, 1882.

There are certain signs in and about the Capitol that suggest the near approach of the Government. The President, it is true, has not returned from his fishing excursion. The legislative personnel is scattered over the political field, many of them struggling for a foothold in the 48th Congress. But the Supreme Court is here; many newspaper correspondents have returned and native butterfly Washington has come back from summer resort and is in training by her veteran mother for another race for the matrimonial cup. A majority of the ornate but useless diplomatic corps display their faultless clothes and manners on the drive and promenades. The contingent of young army and naval officers at Washington never grows less, but continually grows worse as West Point and the Naval Academy turn them out with the rapidity of a machine.

The many hotels of the city have been renovated and painted. The boarding houses and restaurants encouraged by good times, and cheap beef from Chicago, have increased their capacity and everything is being put in readiness for the advent of the Government.

The season will open two or three weeks earlier than usual on account of the Garfield Monument Fair for which great preparation has been made. It was originally intended that this Fair should be held only in the rotunda of the Capitol, and Congress passed a special act granting the use of the rotunda for an Industrial and Art Fair for the purpose of raising funds for the erection of a monument in Washington to the memory of Garfield—but the demand for space has been so great that it has been found necessary to rent the Masonic Hall and the Skating Rink as annexes. The Fair will doubtless attract many visitors, and taken in connection with the permanent monuments and museums of Washington will be the occasion of a pilgrimage to their country's Capitol many who have not been here before. Every year makes Washington better worth seeing. Improvements are constantly going on. Our Capitol has not the completeness, the finish, and the solidity of Berlin, Brussels or Paris, but to this impeachment it may with great propriety plead the baby act and promise to make a better showing when it is half as old as the youngest city of Europe. It would surprise many who have seen Washington only from the routine places to know how large a portion of the city is occupied by shanties and negro hovels in a condition of filth and dilapidation that would disgrace a Hottentot village. Those who promenade Pennsylvania avenue and Connecticut avenue, who drive through the Parks, or admire the marble palaces that "Uncle Sam" has built, know nothing of this architectural paradox; but let them walk, they cannot drive, through the muddy and gullied streets of South Washington and they will be astonished to see the thousands of pig-sty habitations of men and women there. There is a slow, but steady encroachment on this quarter of better residences and this almost unnoted improvement pushed by private enterprise is accomplishing more for the city than Government appropriations.

Government Expenditures Increasing.

WASHINGTON, October 15.—The books of the Treasury show that the ordinary expenditures of the Government during the first quarter of the current fiscal year were over $11,000,000 in excess of the ordinary expenditures during the first quarter of last year. This result is attributable to the extravagance of Congress at the last session. The increase will grow rapidly larger during the remainder of the present year, and especially after the large additional force of pension clerks become acquainted with their work.
