LATEST ELECTION NEWS.

RALEIGH, Nov. 15.—Correcting all figures as far as possible, Bennett is one hundred and eighty three ahead, with Hyde to hear from. S. A. ASHE.

Fresh pork plentiful in market yesterday. Retail price 15 cents.

The agents of the Jamestown Nursery are in the city delivering fruit trees.

Capt. Gates was in the cotton market yesterday with the handsomest grades in the field.

About one thousand bushels of rice were sold yesterday. The highest price paid was 1.05 cents per bushel.

The Presbyterian church is being reshingled. The carpenter says the old ones have been there 64 years.

Mr. A. L. Fullett has opened an oyster saloon at the market dock. He had some very fine garden oysters yesterday.

Messrs. Simmons and Havens sold 73 bales of cotton yesterday. Cotton brokerage in New Berne is not a bad business.

The steamer Cutler made her regular trip to Pollockville yesterday, carrying in tow Gen. Ransom's force to commence work on Trent river.

Steamer Trent came in last evening from Bay River and Adam's Creek with 3,298 bushels of rice, 100 bushels of corn, 4 bushels of wheat, 36 bales of cotton and 7 passengers. That load looks like the line will pan out well.

The biggest snake lie that has ever yet been told comes from Para in Brazil. A newspaper out there reports the discovery of a dead snake in Bahia de Sol that was 980 feet long. The snake correspondent of the New Berne Journal will please take notice.—Charlotte Journal.

Wednesday was Jones county day at the Cotton Exchange. Among the many farmers from that county we observed Messrs. A. P. Barrow, John Stallings, H. C. Foscoe, E. M. Foscoe, J. W. Wooten, J. W. Eubanks, Thos. S. Gillet, J. B. Banks, Jas. H. Banks, and E. M. Jarman.

Col. L. L. Pollak has just returned from a brief trip to Pennsylvania county, Va., where he has been to investigate that terrible scourge diphtheria. He says it is of the most malignant type, and that had as been the representations in the newspapers of the country, it is really worse than has been represented. He had sent some of his cure in advance for gratuitous distribution, and found off his arrival that it had been used in five cases with the most perfect success. He says that the section he visited has been terribly scourged.—Raleigh Visitor.

Call for Swift Creek.

"One hundred and eighty-three majority for Bennett, with Hyde to hear from," is the latest from the front. As George Credle is in Hyde the county may be considered safe.

The Swift Creek vote ought to be counted in. Better not throw away 148 majority when the matter is figured down so low.

Cure for Dyspepsia.

The Raleigh Visitor is responsible for this remedy. A man says he has cured himself of dyspepsia by eating white sand. Just common white sand picked up in the bed of a branch. He says that chickens eat sand to digest their food with, and he did not see why men might not do the same thing with profit. He ate a dose of sand every day and it cured him.

Origin of the Fire.

It having been supposed by some that the fire on Wednesday night, the 8th inst., originated from a stove pipe in Mr. W. F. Rountree's store, we are requested by Mr. Rountree to state that the roof took fire on the outside while the stove pipe extended through the end of the building and not through the roof.

Lighting from a stove, it must have been from a spark.

Your Name in Print.

Dr. D. H. Abbott, of Vandemere, is in the city.

Mr. T. F. Woodard, of Pamlico was in the city yesterday with a large lot of fish and sold for the highest price.

Mr. Walter Harding, of the Kingston Machine Shop, spent a few hours in the city yesterday, awaiting on the evening train.

Mr. O. F. Sugg, the insurance agent of the J. M. Company, at Raleigh, arrived in the city yesterday on the evening train.

Magistrate's Court.

W. G. Brinson Esq. had before him yesterday morning the case of Albert Perkins, ship builder, against John O. Gardner, for seventy-one dollars, balance of claim on repairing a boat. The defendant claimed that plaintiff had promised to do the work for sixty dollars, but plaintiff claimed one hundred and thirty-one dollars. L. J. Moore Esq. appeared for the plaintiff and Hon. C. C. Clark for the defendant. A jury was drawn and, after hearing the evidence and able speeches by counsel, returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff for seventy-one dollars—to be paid in greenbacks.

Cotton Tuesday.

Spots advanced one sixteenth in New York yesterday. November futures on first call were four points off, on the second call they had advanced 11 points, third call declined four, closing seven points higher than on the day before. The market remains unchanged but firmer at former quotations. Three hundred and fifty bales were sold at 9 1/2 to 9.85.

Cost of a Fair.

The first question to be considered in getting up a Fair is the first cost of getting under headway. This will depend a good deal on the ideas of the Managers. The Fair Grounds may be made to cost a mint of money, and they can be put up very cheaply—a mere matter of taste and means.

The ground can probably be leased at a small annual rent, say $100; and about 1,600 yards of fencing, at a cost of $500, ought to enclose the grounds. Then about $1,500 expended in plain buildings for display of exhibits ought to enable the Association to make a start. At the outside $2,500 ought to put the Fair in full operation. Not that a much larger sum could not be very profitably used, but this would do for a beginning.

We have no doubt fifty per cent of this sum would be realized from gate money, clear of all expenses, on the first year, and that in two years the entire amount would be refunded.

If then a stock company would raise the money and start the Fair on an economical plan, the investment would be a good one. And outside and above any question of direct returns for the money thus expended, the business interest of New Berne will gain an hundred fold by this Fair. Thousands of visitors will spend several days each year in the city and help to swell our trade. Farmers from various points on Pamlico Sound will send in their exhibits and from a personal visit many of them will divert their trade hither. And strangers from different points of the United States will probably visit the Fair, and occasionally one of them will be struck with exhibits of corn and rice from Hyde, or cotton and jute from Pamlico, or the fine grass fattened beef from Jones, or the fish-furnishing capacity of Currituck and lower Craven, or with one of the hundred attractions of this beautiful and fertile land, and from seeing its beauties, will be induced to come among us and help to build up the country.

We must have the Fair. There is too much to gain for us to hesitate about making extra exertions to secure it.

The Cotton Seed Oil Mill.

Messrs. Merrick & Apple, the Bradford county, Pennsylvania, gentlemen who have been here for the last week, looking after the establishment of a cotton seed oil mill, leave this morning, but will return in a few weeks, as it is understood they have positively determined upon the mill. Several of our own capitalists will be interested in the enterprise. It is learned that the plant for the mill will cost $40,000 or $50,000, and that the entire enterprise will represent about $100,000.

It is shown by reasonable calculations that the absence of such a mill from Charlotte has been costing the cotton planters in our tributary territory considerably over $100,000 per year, in the single item of the waste of the oil in the cotton seed used as a fertilizer; for the oil of cotton seed is not of the slightest value in enriching the soil and its extraction from the seed does not impair the value in this respect of the oil cake. The removal of the staple adhering to the seed which is done in the process of extracting the oil also adds much to the value of the cake, as provender, as the lint on the seed coming from the gin helps to form an indigestible mass in the stomach of cattle, while no such result follows with the cake.—Charlotte

Political Halucination.

How a Northern Man Becomes Crazy from Morbid Fears of Southern Political Methods as Conceived from a New England Education.
(Charlotte Journal.)

Last Friday a week ago, Mr. E. S. Hawks, a gentleman of Ashfield, Mass., reached Fort Mills, with three elegant bird dogs, which he proposed to train for the approaching field trials at High Point. He was thoroughly well equipped as a sportsman and trainer, and devoted himself to his business with much assiduity. But he soon began to exhibit peculiar symptoms of mental derangement which took the form of excessive fear, that, being a northern man and a Republican, he would be killed. The excitement attendant upon and following the election so wrought up the fears suggested by his evidently disordered brain that the proprietor of the house at which he lodged in Fort Mills, says he would frequently express the apprehension that he was to become a political victim, and when citizens of the village would enter the house and refer to politics he would hasten to his room and lock himself in, from whence he could be induced to come out only after much persuasion and assurance that no harm should be done him. These apprehensions were the only exhibitions of derangement he made, and as he appeared rational in all his other actions and utterances, no interruption was offered to his training of the dogs, which he continued with diligence and interest. He seemed extremely fond of the dogs, and took much pride in the excellence of their pedigree and the progress of their training. He valued them at $500 each.

Saturday morning last, with his gun and one of the dogs, he took the fields. He did not return to dinner, as was his wont, but a negro came with the story that while working in a cotton field that morning, he had heard a shot and a yelp and a moment after had seen Mr. Hawks flying like a madman through the cotton field, entering the woods again on the opposite side. In a moment he had heard another shot from the woods. It was feared that the poor fellow, in a freak of insanity, had killed himself, and a party of citizens was formed to search for him or his corpse. Proceeding to the spot from whence the first shot heard by the negro had sounded, the dead body of the dog was found with a pistol shot through its head. Following the trail of the insane man, his pistol was found in the woods beyond the cotton field; but nothing could be seen of the fugitive, although the search was continued throughout the afternoon and Sunday.

Yesterday morning Mr. Hawks entered the hardware store of Messrs. Brem & McDowell in this city. His appearance was wild and disordered in the extreme. He was dressed in a canvass hunting suit covered with mud and dirt, his hat was torn and the hair of his head protruded through the holes. His heavy hunting boots were wet, as though he had been wading in the water; his hands were torn and bleeding, and in his eyes there was the wild and unmistakable gleam of insanity. He created quite a commotion in the store when he entered, but Mr. Brem, who had met him when he passed through Charlotte on his way to Fort Mill, recognized him and his situation at once, having heard of his disappearance at Fort Mill. He told Mr. Brem his story. He had fled, he said, because he was convinced there was a conspiracy to take his life because he was a northern man and a Republican, but strangely enough he thought the negroes were to be the agents of his death. He had been pursued by them since Saturday morning; had shot his dog because he feared it would be the means of his discovery and capture. He had not had a mouthful to eat since he left Fort Mills, and had been hiding in ditches for two days and nights. He was taken to the Central Hotel by Mr. Brem, who telegraphed to Fort Mills for his dogs and baggage. He was well supplied for money, and leaves for his home in Massachusetts today.

Public Lectures.

Rev. Solomon Pool will deliver a public lecture this evening in Commons Hall, on the subject of education. Dr. Pool is considered one of the finest lecturers in the State. To-morrow evening Prof. Geo. T. Winston, of Chapel Hill, will deliver, at the same place, his celebrated lecture on "The Practical or Money Value of Education and our State System of Education." We hope our citizens will show their interest by attending these lectures. Prof. Winston addressed 900 people on this subject in Winston last week. No charges are made to attend these lectures, and certainly our citizens can spend one or two evenings in hearing our distinguished lecturers on subjects so important to our prosperity and happiness.—Charlotte

Found Dead in Bed.

Mrs. Albert Magnin and her three year old son have a room at the Cottage Hotel, which is kept by Mr. John Sugg as a boarding house. Not getting up at her usual time this morning, her acquaintances became alarmed, and after failing to effect an entrance through the door, the window to her room was hoisted and she was discovered laying across the bed with her head hanging off, dead, and her little boy in bed asleep unconscious of her death.

Coroner Wm. R. Richardson was notified, who summoned a jury and repaired to the place where the body was examined.

The following is the verdict rendered: That the deceased, Susan Magnin, came to her death either on the night of Thursday, Nov. 9th, or on the morning of the 10th from syncope, caused from long continued alcoholism.—Raleigh Visitor

The Haile Mine.

Dr. Spillsbury of the Haile mine in Lancaster county, S. C., brought to the U. S. Assay office in this city, yesterday, two bars of gold weighing 123.9 ounces, the result of one week's run of a twenty stamp mill. The value of these bars is about $2185. A first-rate week's work, Dr. Spillsbury reports that they have just received at the Haile the machinery for a much enlarged roasting machine.

There is now out upon the surface at the mine 1,500 tons of $40 per ton ore ready for the new furnace. Another fact concerning this mine not generally known in Charlotte is that the Desingolles chemical process for treating sulphurets, a plant for which is now being erected near this city, has been in successful operation at the Haile for nine months, during which time ores running as low as $3.00 per ton have been successfully treated.—Charlotte Journal.

Dastardly Act.

We learn that on Saturday night last, after George Congleton had gone to bed at his home, he was called up by parties outside and asked to show them the way to a certain place. Out of the goodness of his heart he arose, put on his clothes, and with a light proceeded to point out the road; but when only a short distance from his home he was thrown down, his torch extinguished and he roughly handled with lamp-black, etc. His cries soon brought assistance, when his assailants made for the woods in all directions. We suppose no harm was intended—only a rough joke for his exercising his right and voting for a colored man on election day. We condemn such action in any one. If Congleton saw fit to cast his vote for a negro it was no business of others to molest him for it.—North State Press.

Destroyed by Fire.

The grist mill and cotton gin, belonging to Mr. John Rand, who resides about 10 miles south of this city, were destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The mill and gin, which were together, were set on fire, just before day-break, but when the flames were discovered they had made too much headway to be checked. Besides the loss of the mill and gin, Mr. Rand lost eight bales of cotton, Mr. William Crowder one bale, and Mr. Clarence Rand, the remnants of several bales. The loss is estimated at $5,000. No insurance.—Raleigh Visitor.
