Mr. A. H. Potter has had a rush for confectioneries during the past week. He has secured the services of an experienced and practical workman in French goods, F. G. Birchard of Philadelphia, and is manufacturing a superior article of stick candy.

The finest lot of trout brought to Beaufort this season were caught near Bottle Run Point on Tuesday night by nets belonging to Mr. Geo. N. Ives. There were about 400 of them and all were large. Many of them weighing more than ten pounds apiece.—Beaufort Telephone.

Schooner Arrivals.
The Benj. T. Biggs, Capt. Blockson, from Philadelphia on Saturday with a cargo of 201 tons of coal consigned to R. J. Harris of Raleigh.

River Steamers.
The following arrived yesterday evening: The Neuse from Jolly Old Field with 50 bales of cotton, through, and two passengers; the Contentina from Vanceboro with cotton and naval stores; the Trent from Bay River with 13 bales of cotton and 400 bushels of rice.

Graded School Notes.
Last Friday was examination day at the Graded School. Many have been working for the past month with the determination of winning the honors at this examination and those who were on the "Roll of Honor" last month were determined to sustain their reputations. The result will be published next Tuesday week.

An arrangement has been made with the City Physician, whereby the Principal of the Graded School will always be informed of any contagious disease that may exist in order that he may protect the children of the school.

Church Notices.
BAPTIST CHURCH.
The Pastor being absent there will be no services morning or night. There will be Sabbath School at 3 p. m., C. C. Clark Superintendent. Services at the Poplock Street Chapel at 4 o'clock. The public are cordially invited to attend.

CHRIST CHURCH—REV. V. W. SHIELDS, RECTOR.
Twenty-fourth Sunday after Trinity. Services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sunday School at 3:30 p. m., in the Chapel on George street. The public are cordially invited to the services of this church. Users always at the doors to seat visitors.

Farmer's Club.
The farmers of Beach Grove, in this county, have organized a club for the purpose of discussing topics connected with the farm, and, by consultation, interchanging views, etc., advance the interest of the farmer generally. The subject to be discussed at the meeting next Tuesday night is, "Does it pay better, at present prices, to raise corn and pork, or raise cotton and buy corn and pork?" This is a good, practical question and we hope to be able to have a reporter on hand to hear the discussion. We believe a Farmer's Club, properly conducted, is capable of doing much good and more so than to quarrel them, as there is no political party needed for the present.

The market here was firm though prices unchanged. Receipts light—141 bales—sales at 9 to 9.80. Sales for the week 1433 bales; corresponding week last year 1135 bales.

Trade for the Week.

There has been a general advance all along the line during the past week. The grocery and provision dealers report trade from "quiet" to a rush; the dry goods dealers, considerable improvement; hardware merchants, picking up; milliners, trade fair; confectioners, a rush. Wholesale dealers report a fair trade, though it is generally conceded that the "drummers" have to some extent injured the wholesale trade of the city. They not only visit the county towns but go to country stores and solicit orders, and with the present facilities for transportation on the rivers have no trouble in getting them. We note a further decline in the price of meats. New pork has dropped $1.00 per barrel; long clears two cents lower per pound. Sugar, coffee, molasses and syrups and breadstuffs remain unchanged. Collections for the week have been pretty fair. About 12,000 bushels of rice have been sold during the week at good prices, and 1,433 bales of cotton at prices not very satisfactory to the sellers.

Gen. Lewis on the Midland.

Gen. Lewis' report on the condition of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad brings one to the conclusion that the Midland management is under very poor business control, or that its owners expected to be ousted soon and have been running the road "for all it is worth in the present."

And the company cannot be much blamed if they have pursued the latter course to some extent. When Mr. Best entered upon this scheme he was persuaded by both Governor Jarvis and Senator Vance that he could recover the Western North Carolina road; and if this had been accomplished he would have had but little trouble in enlisting millions of Northern capital to build in the intermediate road. The scheme was a grand one, with every hope of brilliant success, provided the influence of a Governor and U. S. Senator would be able to accomplish anything. But their influence was naught, and the beautiful fabric of the mighty North Carolina system vanished into nothingness.

In the meantime Mr. Best had enlisted some considerable capital and the road was pushed on to Smithfield. But when it was seen that all hopes of a Western through-route were at an end, the influx of capital failed; and since that time a "forfeiture" has been stalling the Midland in the face, and the road bed has been suffered to run down and the rolling stock to get out of order.

Whatever the outcome may be, and however visionary and erratic Mr. Best has proved, it is certain that North Carolina has been greatly benefited by his work. The Western road is built, and through his exertions. A road to Smithfield is built, and with Northern capital introduced by him; and the Midland management has on deposit in New Berne enough collaterals, we suppose, to put the Atlantic road in as good order as when first received. And, last, the failure is mainly because he depended on promises from North Carolina leaders, and those promises have not been fulfilled.

The Midland.

The stockholders of the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad (running from Goldsboro to Morehead) held a meeting on last Friday, and declared the lease forfeited, which they had made of their road in June, 1881, to W. J. Best and his syndicate of Boston capitalists. This of course must put an end to all hopes of constructing the Midland road through to Salisbury, and who live along the projected line must make other arrangements, if we ever expect to have a railroad. We suppose this will be the last of Mr. Best in North Carolina, and although he has failed in his railroad schemes in our State yet he certainly has been of great benefit to the State, and is entitled to sympathy in his misfortune.—Outlook Record.

Pamlico Items.

(Enterprise.)
Mr. W. H. Sawyer removed to his handsome new dwelling at Bayboro last week. Mr. Sawyer is one of the leading spirits of our sister town, and is doing much toward building up our county seat.

Our friends at Bayboro are showing their progressive spirit in the way of getting up a brass band, and soon the ear-splitting cornet and deafening bass horn will be heard in the land. When fully organized they should secure the services of Amos Cook, in Newbern, as instructor.

Mr. Frank Barnett, of Gales Creek, came up yesterday with 2,600 pounds of seed cotton, which he sold to Mr. C. H. Fowler at $8.15 per hundred. Mr. Fowler has purchased several lots of cotton from this section and Goose Creek Island during the present season, aggregating several thousand pounds. This speaks well for Stonewall as a cotton market, and our people would do well to give this point a trial before taking their cotton out of the county.

A Reminder.

The death of George W. Burgess, at Norristown, Pa., last Sunday, has reminded older persons of the tremendous strides which have been made in the arts of civilization within the past fifty years. Mr. Burgess was the first man in America who made friction matches. He commenced their manufacture in 1831 in the city of New York, and shortly afterward failed. He subsequently engaged in various pursuits in other cities, and at the time of his death was 78 years old. His last invention was an improved form of match for setting off rockets, which has since been adopted by the U. S. Signal Service.

Flint and steel are to us now in the same category with powdered hair kneebreeches and other appliances of an age which seems long past, and yet the death of this man reminds us that it has not been so very long after all, since the traveler who would light his pipe had to carry flint and steel, and the housekeeper who would cook an early breakfast had to keep the coals smothered all night, or borrow "a chunk of fire" from a neighbor. It is hard to realize the progress of the age.—Charlotte Journal.

Bear Killing.

A few days since J. A. Mann and S. M. Garner of Newport, went to the head of Jones' pond to set for deer. Late in the evening a very large bear made his appearance near the place. Garner let Bruin have the contents of his gun first, but on approaching the fallen victim, he concluded to take Garner, who, with his empty gun, retreated, calling for Mann. Mann came to his rescue and the battle began in earnest, sometimes the bear retreating and sometimes the men. Thus by a series of advances and retreats, the men displayed their skill in the tactics of bear killing. Of course the men only retreated when their guns were empty. Bruin had to retreat when the guns were loaded. At last, after firing six guns Bruin fell, mortally wounded, and the fight ended. The fat on the outside of the bear, between the skin and the muscles, was two and a quarter inches thick. This was why he was so hard to penetrate to the vital points by the shots fired. He was one of the royal monarchs of the pocosin.—Beaufort Telephone.

The Duties of a Fireman.

A curious law suit, involving the question of what is the whole duty of a fireman, has just been remanded for a new trial by the Supreme Court of Wisconsin. While the Beckwith House at Oshkosh was burning, S. B. Page made an offer of $5,000 to any one who would rescue his wife, Charles Rief, a fireman on duty at the time, saved the woman and claimed the money; but was non-suited in Circuit Court. On appeal, the Supreme Court has reversed that judgment, closing its opinion as follows: "Inasmuch as the plaintiff could not rescue the body of Mrs. Page from the burning building without imminent peril of losing his own life, and inasmuch as it was not his duty as a paid officer and member of the fire department to do so, he is in a position to claim the reward alleged to have been offered by the defendant for such rescue."—Charlotte Journal.

A Narrow Escape.

Wednesday afternoon as the train was arriving at our depot, Mr. Elmore Gates thought he could drive his wagon across the track before the train reached him, but he didn't. The result was that Mr. Gates had his wagon knocked over, his load split, his jaw of molasses broken and the contents deposited on one of his little sons. "It don't make any difference," said Mr. Gates, "go on with your old train." It did not damage Mr. Gates' train.—Derham Post.

Millions of Crows.

Thousands and thousands of crows are nightly roosting in the strip of pines in the rear of the Torrence place, east of this city. They darken the air in their flight as they fly to the south in the morning and return to their roost at night. Their number seems to be almost incalculable. At night the pines sway beneath the weight of their crowding numbers, and if one fires a gun or makes any other noise to disturb them at night, the rumbling of thousands of wings make a roar like distant thunder, sounding weird and frightful in the ghastly darkness of the sombre pines. For years this strip of woods has been a crows' roost, but curiously only at intermittent periods.—Charlotte Journal.

His Freedom Once More.

Ten years ago Thomas Dunn, colored, was tried in Robeson county and sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary. He employed Messrs. Hindsdale & Devereaux, of this city, who applied to the Supreme Court of this State for a writ of certiorari, claiming that the sentence was illegal, in that the limit of punishment in such cases was ten years. The writ was granted, the Court sustaining the position taken by the petitioners counsel. The counsel then sued out a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Gilmer, and to-day, under Judge Gilmer's order Dunn was set free.—Ral. Visitor.

The Two Readjusters in the Next Senate.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Cameron and Mahone have worked together ever since the latter became a leader. They are otherwise united. Mahone and Riddleberger are perfectly free to act as they please. From what is known they are likely to have the support of Cameron, and perhaps of other Senators. On the strength of the returns of the recent elections, the Virginia Senators will, it is reported, take liberties with caucus decrees, and view the political situation in the United States through their own spectacles. Whatever is due to the Administration will be paid as the accounts are presented, but there will not be much owing when the balance is struck. According to reports, business will be done on the ready-pay plan hereafter. Mahone and Riddleberger will be very important personages in the next Senate, and they are already perfectly well aware of that fact.
